PREFACE

THIS book is designed for pupils in the higher grades in grammar schools, and for such other classes as require a systematic and comprehensive course in English Grammar with practical training in the elements of Composition.

The aim of the work is to give the pupil such a mastery of the fundamental facts of the English language as will aid him in its clear comprehension and correct use, and to cultivate his taste for good literature.

The method of presentation appeals to the intelligence of the pupil. Every principle is presented in connection with illustrative examples; by this means the pupil is led from the observation of particular facts to general conclusions. These examples have been selected with great care from the works of the best writers, and they not only serve to make clear the points under consideration, but also aid in the cultivation of the pupil's literary taste, and help him to see that the laws of language are derived from the usage of the writers and speakers.

Abundant and varied exercises for the application of principles presented are given throughout the book. These exercises are carefully graded, and are characterized by definiteness and power to awaken the interest of the pupil.

The work in Grammar is divided into four parts. Part First treats of the Sentence and the Parts of Speech, and lays the foundation for the pupil's mastery of the sentence by emphasizing the function of a word in a sentence as determining the class to which it belongs. Part Second takes up the subdivisions of the Parts of Speech and Inflection, giving in the present edition a fuller treatment than was given in the former one to certain topics, such as the subjunctive mode, the infinitive, and the auxiliaries of mode, and making provision for special training upon words and forms often misused. Part Third gives an unusually full treatment to Syntax, with numerous examples from literature illustrating the leading English constructions. Part Fourth takes up the study of the Structure and Analysis of Sentences in such a manner as to give the pupil real help in understanding a writer's meaning. It provides for a careful study of clauses in connection with the complex sentence, and contains clear and concise models for oral and written analysis and a great abundance of carefully selected matter for illustration and practice.

Part Fifth relates to Composition, and in this edition contains much new matter. The work includes an elementary study of the paragraph; simple exercises in narration, description, and exposition, in connection with the study of examples from different writers; special study of choice poems; an extended study of letter-writing and related subjects; and a great variety of other exercises based upon the pupil's observation, experience, or reading.

The Appendix contains a brief sketch of the history of the English language, rules for the use of capital letters and marks of punctuation, and a list of the most common abbreviations.

PART FIRST

THE SENTENCE AND THE PARTS OF SPEECH

CHAPTER I

THE SENTENCE

A sentence is the expression of a complete thought in words; as, —

1. The fire burns brightly.
2. The sky is clear.

A sentence may —

- (1) State or declare something; as, The leaves are falling.
- (2) Express a command or an entreaty; as, Look at the leaves:
- (3) Ask a question; as, What makes the leaves fall?
- (4) Express sudden or strong feeling; as, How silently the leaves fall!

A sentence that states or declares something is a declarative sentence.

A sentence that expresses a command or an entreaty is an imperative sentence.

A sentence that asks a question is an interrogative sentence.

A sentence that expresses sudden or strong feeling is an exclamatory sentence.

EXERCISE 1

In each of the following examples, tell for what the sentence is used and what kind of sentence it is:—

1. Nearly all the night-birds fly on wings that make no noise.
2. Every day is the best day of the year.
3. How the early settlers prized the apple!
4. A friendly eye could never see such faults.
5. Many flowers close their petals during rain.
6. The house was built of stone.
7. We heard the distant roar of the surf.
8. How beautiful is the rain!
9. Night is the time for rest.
10. How many persons entered the room?
11. We could hear the chattering cry of the king-fisher.
12. What an admirable piece of work this is!
13. On the cross beam under the Old South bell
The nest of a pigeon is builded well.
14. A tear stood in his bright blue eye.
15. I had three fine rosy-cheeked schoolboys for my fellow-passengers.
16. Beware of entrance to a quarrel.
17. Let us do right to all men.
18. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.
19. Few know the use of life before 'tis past.
20. The troops were concealed by a thick wood.
21. The fisheries are the chief support of Yarmouth

EXERCISE 2

Select from your Reader (1) three declarative sentences; (2) three imperative sentences; (3) three interrogative sentences; (4) three exclamatory sentences.

CHAPTER II

SUBJECT AND PREDICATE

In each of the following sentences, tell (1) what the assertion is about; (2) what is said or asserted about the thing named:—

1. Birds fly.

3. Rain falls.

2. Fishes swim.

4. Water evaporates.

Every sentence consists of two parts. One part names that about which something is said, and is called the subject; the other part tells what is said or asserted about the thing named by the subject, and is called the predicate.

The subject of a sentence names that about which something is asserted.

The predicate of a sentence tells what is asserted about the person or thing named by the subject.

EXERCISE 3

State the subject and the predicate in each of the following sentences, giving in each case a reason for your statement:—

1. Plants grow.

4. Leaves fall.

7. Parrots talk.

2. Animals move.

5. Rivers flow.

8. Quails whistle.

3. Men think.

6. Ice melts.

9. Thrushes sing.

CHAPTER III

MODIFIED SUBJECT AND PREDICATE

The subject and the predicate may each be expressed by a single word, or by two or more words; as, —

1. Birds fly.
2. Some birds fly swiftly.

In the second sentence above, the word some limits the meaning of the word birds, by showing that not all birds are meant. The word swiftly adds to the meaning of the word fly, by showing the manner of flight.

When a word limits the application or adds to the meaning of another word in this manner, it is said to modify that word, and is called a modifier; as, this moment, kind words, speak softly, step quickly.

The subject without modifiers is the grammatical or simple subject; as, Leaves fall.

The grammatical subject with its modifiers is the logical or complete subject; as, The dead leaves fall.

The predicate without modifiers is the grammatical or simple predicate; as, Time flies.

The grammatical predicate with its modifiers is the logical or complete predicate; as, Time flies swiftly.

EXERCISE 4

Name the complete subject and the complete predicate, in each of the following sentences:—

1. Language is the highest mode of expression.
2. The first spring wild-flowers yield no honey.

3. The old oaken bucket hangs in the well.
4. The palm tree is found in every country from the Tigris to the Atlantic.
5. The blue smoke widened slowly upward through the quiet August atmosphere.
6. This wonderful tree stood in the centre of an ancient wood.
7. The other colonies were not slow in acting.
8. Two important steps had now (to be taken at once,
9. A merciful man considers his beast
10. The good old year is with the past.
11. All plants of the same kind need the same sort of food.
12. The summer breezes go lightly by.
13. Every individual has a place to fill in the world.
14. A wise son heareth his father's instruction.

CHAPTER IV

ORDER OF SUBJECT AND PREDICATE

I. IN DECLARATIVE SENTENCES

The subject of a declarative sentence is usually placed before the predicate. This order of parts is called the usual order; as, —

The well-curb had a Chinese roof.

But sometimes, especially in poetry, this order is transposed or inverted, and the subject is placed after the predicate; as, —

Up springs the lark.

Sweet is the breath of morn.

EXERCISE 5

Change the following sentences from the transposed order to the usual order, and name the complete subject and the complete predicate in each:—

1. Blessed are the pure in heart.
2. Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight.
3. On their right was a steep hill.
4. Into the valley of death
 Rode the six hundred.
5. At the head of the bay is the town.
6. Here will we build our habitations.
7. Behind him came a throng of officers.
8. Up flew the windows all.

II. IN IMPERATIVE SENTENCES

The subject of an imperative sentence is thou, ye, or you. It is seldom expressed; thus,—

Come into the garden (= [You] come into the garden).

When the subject is expressed, it is usually placed after the verb; as,— Praise ye the Lord.

In familiar language, the subject sometimes comes before the verb; as,—

You stand here. You keep still.

EXERCISE 6

Copy the following sentences, supplying the subjects that are understood and enclosing them in brackets:—

1. Listen to this account of the fire
2. Fling wide the gates.

3. Throw part of the cargo overboard.
4. Speak gently to the erring.
5. Cleanse thou me from secret faults.
6. Be not weary in well doing.
7. Rejoice in the prosperity of others.
8. Follow the directions carefully.

III. IN INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES

The subject of an interrogative sentence is usually placed after the predicate, or after the first word of the predicate; as,—

Has the sun spots?

Does the sun shine?

When an interrogative word is used as the subject, or as a modifier of the subject, the subject and predicate are in the direct order; as,—

Who comes here?

Which side won?

EXERCISE 7

Name the subject and the predicate in each of the following sentences:—

1. Why does the earth become cooler after sunset?
2. Why is it sometimes foggy in the morning?
3. What causes the fog to disappear?
4. What wind is accompanied by a clear sky?
5. Did you ever see a cloudless sky?

IV. IN EXCLAMATORY SENTENCES

Most exclamatory sentences begin with how or what, and the subject and predicate are often transposed; as,—

How beautiful is night !
What an excellent likeness this is !

Sometimes, however, a declarative, imperative, or interrogative sentence is written or printed with the exclamation point at its close, to give greater emphasis to the thought. It is then called an exclamatory sentence; as, —

The war is actually begun !
Give me liberty or give me death !
Who can foretell the result !

EXERCISE 8

In the following examples, (1) tell the kind of each sentence; (2) name its subject and its predicate. Give a reason for your statements: —

1. How excellent is thy loving-kindness !
2. What a deep-rooted plant it was !
3. How wonderful is sleep !
4. What a crisis had now arrived !
5. Here we are at last !
6. How lightly past hardship sits upon us !
7. What real service to others did you render yesterday ?
8. Consider the lilies of the field.
9. Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.
10. How blessings brighten as they take their flight !
11. Kind hearts are more than coronets.
12. Truth seeks open dealing.
13. A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance.
14. Make yourself necessary to somebody.

CHAPTER V

NOUNS

Which words in the following sentences are used as names?

1. Benjamin Franklin discovered electricity.
2. A certain man planted a vineyard.
3. The shadows dance upon the wall.

A word used as a name is a noun. A noun may be the name of —

- (1) A person; as, Homer was a great poet.
- (2) A place; as, Cairo is the capital of Egypt.
- (3) A thing we can see, feel, hear, smell, or touch; as,
(a) The stars are bright. (b) Ice is cold. (c) The bluebird sings. (d) Violets are sweet.
- (4) Something that we can think of but cannot perceive by the senses; as, (a) Kindness wins friends. (b) Wisdom is better than strength.
- (5) An action; as, Rowing expands the chest.

A noun is a word used as a name.

EXERCISE 9

In each of the following examples, (1) tell whether the sentence is declarative, imperative, interrogative, or exclamatory; (2) point out the nouns in it, and tell what each names:—

1. He goes on Sunday to the church
And sits among his boys.
2. How quietly the child sleeps!

3. A large island covered with palms divides the Nile into two branches.

4. His door was always open to the wayfarer.

5. Hear me with patience.

6. From what port did you sail?

7. He came early in the spring to the settlement of New Plymouth.

8. The breeze comes whispering in our ear,
That dandelions are blossoming near,
That maize has sprouted, that streams are flowing,
That the river is bluer than the sky,
That the robin is plastering his house hard by;
And if the breeze kept the good news back,
For other couriers we should not lack.

EXERCISE 10

Write (1) two sentences, each containing the name of a person; (2) two sentences, each containing the name of a place; (3) two sentences, each containing the name of a thing perceived by the senses; (4) two sentences, each containing the name of a quality; (5) two sentences, each containing the name of a feeling. Underline the nouns in the sentences written.

CHAPTER VI

PRONOUNS

For what are the italicized words used in the following sentences?

1. I met a little cottage girl,
She was eight years old, she said.

2. "Sisters and brothers, little maid,
How many may you be?"
3. "How many? Seven in all," she said,
And wondering looked at me.

A word used for a noun is a pronoun. By the use of the pronoun, we can avoid the repetition of a noun, and designate a person or thing without naming it. A pronoun may designate —

- (1) The speaker or the speaker and others; as, I, my, me, we, our, us.
- (2) The person or persons addressed; as, thou, thy, thee, ye, your, you.
- (3) A person or thing, or two or more persons or things, that have been previously mentioned; as, he, his, him, she, her, hers, it, its, they, their, them.

A pronoun is a word used for a noun.

EXERCISE 11

Point out the pronouns in the following sentences, and state for what each is used: —

1. Train up a child in the way he should go.
2. Nearly all the night insects are comparatively noiseless in their flight.
3. The books remain where you left them.
4. When I turned again to look for the bird, I could not see it.
5. Crinkle-root is spicy, but you must partake of it delicately, or it will bite your tongue.
6. Trust men and they will be true to you; treat them greatly and they will show themselves great.

7. She folded her arms beneath her cloak.
8. As the route of the friends lay in the same direction, they agreed to make the rest of their journey together.
9. Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.
10. A belted kingfisher suddenly appeared in the air just in front of me, where he hovered for a moment as if doubtful whether to fly over us and go up the river or to turn about and retreat before us.

EXERCISE 12

Write (1) two sentences, each containing a pronoun used to designate the speaker; (2) two sentences, each containing a pronoun used to designate a person addressed; (3) three sentences, each containing a pronoun used for the name of a person or thing spoken of.

CHAPTER VII

ADJECTIVES

Find in the following sentences words used with nouns to describe or to point out the things named:—

1. A tall shrub grows by the brook.
2. The plant has yellow blossoms.
3. These flowers appear in autumn.

In the examples above, the word tall describes the shrub named, in regard to height; the word yellow tells the color of the blossoms; the limits the application of the noun plant to a particular plant; these points out the flowers referred to.

A word used to modify the meaning of a noun or pronoun is an adjective. An adjective may show —

(1) What kind of thing is named; as, large city, bold warrior, merry heart.

(2) How many things are mentioned; as, ten commandments, twelve months, some lakes, many books.

(3) How much of a quantity is referred to; as, little rain, less time.

(4) What thing is spoken of; as, this house, these trees, yonder cottage.

An adjective is a word used to modify the meaning of a noun or pronoun.

Name the adjectives in the following sentences, state the use of each adjective, and tell what it modifies:—

1. Two ships were anchored in the bay.
2. Blue were her eyes as the fairy flax.
3. A wise son maketh a glad father.
4. Brave hearts were ready for bold deeds.
5. These people are honest, kind-hearted, and industrious.
6. The statue is nearly seven feet in height.
7. The wax candles were now lighted, and showed a handsome room, well provided with rich furniture.
8. The doe was a beauty, with slender limbs, not too heavy flanks, round body, and aristocratic head, with small ears, and luminous, intelligent, affectionate eyes.
9. His withered cheek and tresses gray,
 Seemed to have known a better day.

CHAPTER VIII

VERBS

In the following sentences point out the words that tell or assert something of the thing named:—

1. Birds sing.
2. The wind blows.
3. He is a soldier.

A word that asserts is a verb. A verb may assert—

- (1) Action; as, Children play.
- (2) Being or existence; as, God is.
- (3) State or condition; as, (a) The picture hangs on the wall. (b) The infant sleeps.

A verb is a word that asserts.

Some verbs consist of more than one word; as, —

A ball will roll. The book has been found.

Such compound forms are sometimes called verb-phrases.¹

The word that denotes the person or thing about which the assertion is made is called the subject of the verb; as, —

The gardener pruned the trees.

EXERCISE 14

Point out the verbs in the following sentences, state what each tells, and name its subject:—

1. The song-birds nearly all build low.
2. The weasel is an enemy of the birds.

3. The curfew tolls the knell of parting day.
4. He springs from his hammock, he flies to the deck.
5. The pigeons fly in great clouds from village to village.
6. The kettle sings, the cat in chorus purrs.
7. They robbed the wild bees of their honey, and chased the deer over the hills.
8. The horses neighed, and the oxen lowed.
9. She pointed to the web of beautifully woven cloth in the loom.
10. A fire blazed brightly on the hearth.
11. The shadows dance upon the wall.
12. The troops marched steadily on.
13. When breezes are soft and skies are fair,
 I steal an hour from study and care.
14. Thus the night passed. The moon went down; the stars grew pale; the cold day broke; the sun rose.

EXERCISE 15

Write sentences containing the following words used (1) as nouns; (2) as verbs:—

bark	walk	fear	sail	salt
rock	look	dream	water	hope

EXERCISE 16

Write sentences containing the following words used as the subjects of verbs. Underline the verbs:—

moon	iron	soldier	singer	wind
courage	grocer	river	organ	bell

CHAPTER IX

ADVERBS

In the following sentences point out the words that show how, when, or where actions were performed:—

1. The boat moves slowly.
2. He always spoke the truth.
3. The child stood here.

Give the verb in each sentence, and tell what word modifies its meaning.

A word that modifies the meaning of a verb is an adverb.

Sometimes an adverb is used to modify the meaning of an adjective; as, —

It is very cold.

The sleeve is too short.

Sometimes an adverb is used to modify the meaning of another adverb; as, —

The boat moves very slowly.

Do not walk so fast.

An adverb is a word that modifies the meaning of a verb, an adjective, or another adverb.

EXERCISE 17

Mention the adverbs in the following sentences, and tell what each modifies:—

1. The bell rang sharply.
2. She turned, and looked back.

3. How hard a lesson it is to wait !
4. How silently the snow falls !
5. The common wild birds of the woods were everywhere.
6. Faster and faster we sped.
7. The shower soon passed.
8. The statement is perfectly correct.
9. But we steadfastly gazed on the face that was dead,
And we bitterly thought of the morrow.
10. Catbirds differ greatly in vocal talent.

EXERCISE 18

Write (1) five sentences, each containing an adverb modifying a verb; (2) three sentences, each containing an adverb modifying an adjective; (3) two sentences, each containing an adverb modifying an adverb.

CHAPTER X

PREPOSITIONS

In the following sentences point out the words that join nouns or pronouns to other words:—

1. They sailed up the river.
2. No one spoke to him.
3. The clock in the steeple struck three.
4. She is fond of music.

A word used with a noun or pronoun to show its relation to some other word in the sentence is called a preposition; as,—

The leaves fell to the ground.

The noun or pronoun used with a preposition in this manner is called its object. A preposition is usually placed before its object, but sometimes it follows it; as, —

The boat is on the shore. What are you looking at?

A preposition usually joins a noun or pronoun to —

- (1) A verb; as, He lived by the river.
- (2) An adjective; as, They are ready for battle.
- (3) A noun; as, It is a package of letters.

A preposition is a word used with a noun or pronoun to show its relation to some other word in the sentence.

EXERCISE 19

Mention the prepositions in the following sentences, tell between what words each shows a relation, and name its object: —

1. A fair little girl sat under a tree.
2. The dining table stood in the centre of the room.
3. The boy was pleased at the prospect of taking a long journey.
4. At midnight I was aroused by the tramp of horses' hoofs in the yard.
5. The habits of our American cuckoo are extremely interesting.
6. Into the street the Piper stepped.
7. They were eager for the contest.
8. Every day the starving poor
Crowded around Bishop Hatto's door.
9. Like the leaves of the forest, when summer is green,
That host with their banners at sunset were seen.
10. I see the lights of the village
Gleam through the rain and the mist.

EXERCISE 20

Tell whether the italicized words in the following sentences are adverbs or prepositions, giving reasons in each case:—

1. Is your employer within ?
2. The work will be done within a week.
3. It rolled down the hill.
4. Slowly and sadly we laid him down.
5. A voice replied far up the height.
6. Lift up thine eyes unto the hills.
7. They passed by.
8. He sat by the well.
9. Your hat is behind the door.
10. Do not lag behind.
11. A beautiful picture hung above the altar.
12. The eagle soars above.
13. The multitude went before.
14. The cat lay before the fire.
15. By thirty hills I hurry down,
Or slip between the ridges,
By twenty thorps, a little town,
And half a hundred bridges.

EXERCISE 21

- (1) Write five sentences, each containing a preposition expressing a relation between a verb and a noun.
- (2) Write five sentences, each containing a preposition expressing a relation between two nouns.
- (3) Write three sentences, each containing a preposition expressing a relation between an adjective and a noun.

CHAPTER XI

CONJUNCTIONS

In the following examples, find (1) short sentences joined by the italicized words; (2) similar words or groups of words that are so joined:—

1. The walls are high, and the shores are steep.
2. They came, but they did not stay.
3. Slowly and sadly we laid him down.
4. We have been friends together,
In sunshine and in shade.

A word that connects sentences or similar parts of the same sentence is a conjunction. A conjunction may connect—

(1) Two sentences; as, Be just, and fear not.

(2) Two phrases¹; as, Through days of sorrow and of mirth.

(3) Two words; as, (a) Time and tide wait for no man (nouns). (b) Her voice was low and sweet (adjectives). Sink or swim (verbs). (c) Look before and behind (adverbs).

A conjunction is a word that connects sentences, or similar parts of the same sentence.

EXERCISE 23

Point out the conjunctions in the following sentences, and tell what they connect:—

1. The floods came, and the winds blew.
2. Freely we serve, because we freely love.

3. He reached the well, but nobody was there.
4. The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.
5. She must weep, or she will die.
6. The flames danced and capered in the polished grate.
7. Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I give my heart and my hand to this vote.
8. Three years she grew in sun and shower.
9. The waves beside them danced ; but they Outdid the sparkling waves in glee.
10. Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

EXERCISE 23

Show which of the italicized words in the following sentences are prepositions, and which are conjunctions : —

1. They came, but they did not remain.
2. He cares for nothing but money.
3. All the family were present, except one son.
4. Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.
5. I have not heard from them since yesterday.
6. Since you are here, you might remain.
7. The children ran after the procession.
8. He came after the exercises had closed.
9. The building will be completed before the leaves fall.
10. It stands before the fireplace.
11. Stay here until I come.
12. They will remain abroad until November.
13. He died for his country.
14. Our bugles sang truce ; for the night-cloud had lowered.

EXERCISE 24

Write sentences containing conjunctions joining (1) two sentences; (2) two nouns; (3) two adjectives; (4) two verbs; (5) two adverbs.

CHAPTER XII

INTERJECTIONS

What words in the following sentences form no part of either subject or predicate?

1. Alas! we have delayed too long.
2. Hark! was that a knock?
3. Hurrah! the day is won.

What feeling is expressed by the use of the word alas? By the word hark? By the word hurrah?

A word used to indicate sudden or intense feeling is called an interjection. Interjections may express—

- (1) Joy; as, hurrah! huzzah!
- (2) Pain or suffering; as, ah! oh! alas!
- (3) Surprise; as, ha! lo! what!
- (4) Disapproval; as, fie! fudge!
- (5) A desire to call attention; as, ho! hey! hark!
etc., etc.

An interjection is a word used to indicate sudden or intense feeling.

Point out the interjections in the following sentences, and tell what they express:—

1. Alas! I am undone.
2. Away! we must not linger.
3. Hush! it is the dead of night.
4. Halloo! who stands guard here?
5. Ah! whence is that flame which now glares on his eye?
6. Oh! how many broken bonds of affection were here!
7. But hush! hark! a deep sound strikes like a ringing knell.
8. Ha! feel ye not your fingers thrill?
9. Alas! they all are in their graves.
10. Oh! the boat is safe enough.
11. O look! the sun begins to rise.
12. And lo! from the assembled crowd
 There rose a shout, prolonged and loud.

EXERCISE 26

Write ten sentences, each containing one of the following words used as an interjection:—

hark	whew	ho	hurrah	hush
fie	pshaw	alas	ah	fudge

CHAPTER XIIIREVIEW OF THE PARTS OF SPEECH*EXERCISE 27

Mention some of the different uses of words in a sentence.

What do we call a word that is used as a name? A word used instead of a noun? A word that asserts?

How many classes of words are used as modifiers? What are these classes called? How does the adjective differ from the adverb?

How many kinds of connecting words have been considered? What are they called? In what way are prepositions and conjunctions alike? How do they differ?

Mention a class of words not grammatically related to the other words in a sentence.

How many kinds of words have been considered?

Words are divided into classes according to their uses in sentences. These different classes of words are called parts of speech. The parts of speech are :—

- | | |
|-------------------|----------------------|
| 1. The Noun. | 5. The Adverb. |
| 2. The Pronoun. | 6. The Preposition. |
| 3. The Adjective. | 7. The Conjunction. |
| 4. The Verb. | 8. The Interjection. |

EXERCISE 28

Distinguish between the uses of the italicized words in each of the following examples, and name the part of speech of each word:—

1. Then rushed the steed to battle driven. The troops appeared in battle array.

2. Farewell! a long farewell, to all my greatness. Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot.

3. It was over in one second. Omit the second stanza. I second the motion.

4. He is as good as he is strong. Who will show us any good?

5. They visited a far country. Far flashed the red artillery.
6. This is the best answer that was given.

He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small.

7. The horse is a fast walker. The child is fast asleep. When ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance. The shades of night were falling fast.

8. He is still here. Now came still evening on. There is a good fire, still the room is cold.

EXERCISE 29

Name the part of speech of each italicized word in the following sentences, giving in each case a reason for your classification: —

1. His to-days are never yesterdays.
2. The lion shall lie down with the lamb.
3. As I looked up, I saw the boat before me.
4. There is a calm for those who weep.
5. The laborer is worthy of his hire.
6. The good south wind still blew behind.
7. It is not finished yet.
8. Swiftly, swiftly sailed the ship:
 Yet she sailed softly too.
9. Ere I go, you must consent.
10. Think, before you speak.
11. Still waters run deep.
12. We look before and after.
13. The down train is late.
14. He had experienced many ups and downs in life.

15. Up went the steps, bang went the door, round whirled the wheels, and off they rattled.

16. We talked about the trees.

17. On right, on left, above, below,
Sprung up at once the lurking foe.

18. The very village was altered.

19. Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thy house.

EXERCISE 30

(1) Write sentences containing the following words used as nouns:—

to-morrow fear paper ring America

(2) Write sentences containing the following words used as verbs:—

stand fear paper ring water

(3) Write sentences containing the following words used as adverbs:—

to-morrow after before since over

(4) Write sentences containing the following words used as prepositions:—

till before after over for

(5) Write sentences containing the following words used as conjunctions:—

till before after since for

To the Teacher.— Give additional exercises, if they are needed, to impress the fact, that it is not the form of a word, but its use in a sentence, that determines what part of speech the word is.

CHAPTER XIV

PHRASES

In the following examples, find combinations of words used like parts of speech:—

1. The leader is a courageous man.
2. The leader is a man of courage.
3. What did you see there?
4. What did you see in that place?

A combination of words performing a distinct office in a sentence, but having neither subject nor predicate, is a phrase.

EXERCISE 31

In the following sentences, state the use of each italicized phrase:—

1. The cargo of the ship is valuable.
2. There groups of merry children played.
3. I stand upon my native hills again.
4. The road to the river is straight.
5. The command of the general must be obeyed.
6. Two officers of the company were killed in battle.
7. The dress of the fugitive betrayed him.
8. The ships sailed down the bay.
9. Let us go from this place.
10. He did the work in a satisfactory manner.

CHAPTER XV

CLAUSES

Tell how many assertions are made in each of the following sentences, and name the subject and the predicate in each assertion:—

1. When the signal was given, the boats started.
2. The building was condemned, because it was unsafe.
3. I believe that he is honest.

A combination of words performing a distinct office in a sentence, and having a subject and a predicate, is a clause.

A clause that expresses the leading or principal thought of a sentence is an independent or principal clause; as—

They trimmed the lamps as the sun went down.

A clause that depends upon some other part of the sentence for its full meaning, is a dependent or subordinate clause; as,—

They trimmed the lamps as the sun went down.

EXERCISE 32

Find the principal clauses and the subordinate clauses in the following sentences, and tell how each subordinate clause is used:—

1. You may remain where you are.
2. Speak as you think.
3. If our cause is just, we shall succeed.
4. What his decision will be is uncertain.
5. Remember what has been done for you.
6. She listened attentively while he was speaking.
7. When the fire was extinguished, the crowd dispersed.
8. He left the room as I entered the door.
9. Learn from the birds what food the thickets yield.
10. Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

SUBDIVISIONS OF THE PARTS OF SPEECH AND INFLECTION

CHAPTER XVI

CLASSES OF NOUNS

I. PROPER AND COMMON NOUNS

Point out in the following sentences (1) the nouns that name special persons or things, (2) the nouns that apply to every one of a class of persons or things: —

1. The White House is the official residence of the President of the United States. The corner-stone of the White House was laid by General Washington.
2. Paris is called the finest city in the world.
3. Longfellow is the most popular American poet.

A name that belongs to an individual person or thing is a proper noun; as, Clarence, New York, Thursday, Lake George.

Proper nouns and words derived from them begin with capital letters. When a proper noun is made up of two or more words, each word generally begins with a capital letter.

A name that applies to every one of a class of persons or things is a common noun; as, boy, city, day, lake.

EXERCISE 33

(1) Write sentences containing a name that applies to every one of a class of (a) persons; (b) places; (c) buildings.

(2) Write sentences containing the name of an individual (a) poet; (b) statesman; (c) city; (d) country; (e) lake.

II. COLLECTIVE NOUNS

Point out the nouns in the following sentences that name collections of persons or things, and tell of what each collection is composed:—

1. The speaker was afraid to face the audience.
2. The Assembly adjourned at twelve o'clock.
3. There is no flock, however watched and tended,

But one dead lamb is there.—LONGFELLOW.

4. Are fleets and armies necessary to a work of love and reconciliation? — PATRICK HENRY.

A noun that in the singular number applies to a collection of persons or things is a collective noun; as, family, jury, swarm.

Collective nouns are usually common; but when a collective noun is applied to an individual body, as in the second example above, it is proper.

EXERCISE 34

Write sentences containing words used to name a collection of—ships	soldiers	sailors	wolves	sheep

bees	thieves	buffaloes	fish	chickens

III. ABSTRACT NOUNS

Point out each word in the following examples that is the name of a quality or condition of a person or thing:—

1. The length of a river.
2. The bravery of the soldier.
3. The growth of the plant.

A noun that is the name of a quality, action, or condition of a person or thing, apart from the person or thing itself, is an abstract noun; as, goodness, happiness.

An abstract noun that is the name of an action is sometimes called a verbal noun; as, walking, singing.

Abstract nouns are formed—

(1) From adjectives; as, brightness from bright; honesty from honest; patience from patient.

(2) From verbs; as, invention from invent; singing from sing.

(3) From nouns; as, childhood from child; knavery from knave.

EXERCISE 35

Point out each noun in the following sentences, and state the class to which it belongs:—

1. The child's illness is of an alarming nature.
2. Wisdom is better than strength.
3. He has repented of his folly.
4. The time of the singing of birds has come.
5. His writing was illegible.

6. Charity covereth a multitude of sins.
7. How poor are they that have not patience !
8. How little they knew of the depth, and the strength, and the intensity of that feeling of resistance to illegal acts of power, which possessed the whole American people !

EXERCISE 36

Write the following words in columns, and opposite each word place the corresponding abstract noun : —

industrious	weak	bright	warm	honest
temperate	walk	courageous	true	wise
sweet	judge	beautiful	just	innocent
proud	conceal	deceive	high	dull
long	please	learn	hard	pure

CHAPTER XVII

INFLECTION OF NOUNS—NUMBER

Some words are changed in form to denote a change in their meaning or their relation to the rest of the sentence ; as, book, books ; boy, boy's ; you, your ; write, wrote.

The change in the form of a word to denote a change of meaning or relation is called inflection.

The inflection of a noun or pronoun is called its declension ; the inflection of an adjective or adverb is called its comparison ; the inflection of a verb is called its conjugation.

Tell how many forms each noun in the following examples has, and whether each form denotes one or more than one:—

book	watch	fox	piano	potato
books	watches	foxes	pianos	potatoes

The distinction between one and more than one is called number.

The form which denotes one thing is the singular number; as, bird, match, leaf.

The form which denotes more than one thing is the plural number; as, birds, matches, leaves.

NUMBER FORMS OF NOUNS

Give the plural of each of the following nouns, and tell how it is formed:—

bird	canto	chimney	cuff
boat	piano	day	gulf
trap	solo	key	roof
paper	folio	alley	life

I. Nouns regularly form the plural by adding s to the singular; as, river, rivers; halo, halos; valley, valleys; chief, chiefs.

II. Nouns ending in a hissing sound like that of s, x, sh, ch, and z, form the plural by adding es to the singular; as, gas, gases; tax, taxes; thrush, thrushes; match, matches; topaz, topazes.

EXERCISE 37

Write the following words in columns, and opposite each word write its plural form:—

battle	tack	marble	bridge	arch glass	race ¹	rose	brooch	niche
latch	fish	mesh	prize	hoe
box	larch	lens	ditch	hedge
chorus	metal	rush	bush	ice

Which words in the list above add es?

III. Most nouns ending in o add s to the singular to form the plural; some add es; and a few add either s or es.

EXERCISE 38

*Form the plurals of the following words by adding s to the singular:—*

alto	cuckoo	halo	oratorio	soprano
banjo	duodecimo	junto	piano	stiletto
cameo	dynamo	memento	portfolio	trio canto	embryo	nuncio	quarto	two chromo	folio	octavo	solo	tyro

The plurals of bravo, lasso, mosquito, and motto are formed by adding either s or es; as *bravos*² or bravoes; lassos or lassoes; mosquitos or mosquitoes; mottos or mottoes.

EXERCISE 39

*Form the plurals of these nouns by adding es to the singular:—*

¹ Words ending in silent e drop the final e when es is added.

² The form that is preferred is placed first.

echo	embargo	negro	tomato	torpedo
hero	mulatto	potato	tornado	veto

The plurals of buffalo, cargo, domino, and volcano are formed by adding either es or s; as, buffaloes or buffalos; cargoes or cargos; dominoes or dominos; volcanoes or volcanos.

EXERCISE 40

Form the plurals of eight nouns that may add either s or es, placing the preferred form first.

Give the ending of the singular nouns in the following examples, and tell how their plurals are formed:—

city	story	Jay	chimney
cities	stories	days	chimneys

IV Nouns ending in y preceded by a vowel, add s to the singular, to form the plural; nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant, change y to ies; as boy, boys; chimney, chimneys; city, cities; lily lilies.

EXERCISE 41

Write sentences containing the plurals of the following words:—

body	colloquy ¹	berry	jury	alley
copy	soliloquy	ferry	journey	pulley
daisy	vanity	lily	mystery	duty
fly	buoy	quay	donkey	Marcy ²

¹ Qu stands for kw, hence the y of colloquy and soliloquy is really not preceded by a vowel sound.

² Many proper names do not follow the rule, but simply add s; as, Henrys, Stacys.

How are the singular nouns in the following examples changed to make each mean more than one?—

proof	gulf	fife
proofs	gulfs	fifes

V. Most nouns ending in f or fe form the plural by adding s to the singular ; as, roof, roofs ; safe, safes.

The following nouns change f or fe to ves :—

beef	knife	self	thief
calf	leaf	sheaf	wharf ²
elf	life	shelf	wife
half	loaf	staff ¹	wolf

EXERCISE 42

*Make (1) a list of ten nouns, ending in f or fe, that form their plurals by the addition of s ; and (2) a list of ten other nouns that form their plurals in ves.*

CHAPTER XVIII

IRREGULAR PLURALS OF NOUNS

Tell how the plurals below are formed :—

man	foot	mouse	ox	child
men	feet	mice	oxen	children

VI. Some nouns form the plural by changing the vowel of the singular ; as, man, men ; goose, geese ; tooth, teeth ; foot, feet ; mouse, mice (also changes s to c).

¹ Staff (a stick or pole), staves or staffs ; staff (a body of officers), staffs.

² Wharf, wharves or wharfs.

In a few nouns the plural ends in *en*¹; as ox, oxen; brother, brethren; child, children.

Give the number of each italicized noun in the following examples, and notice its form : —

1. A sheep before her shearers is dumb.
2. The sheep are feeding in the pasture.

VII. Some nouns have the same form in both numbers ; as, deer, sheep, swine.

Other nouns which have the same form in both numbers are brace, dozen, head, pair, and yoke when used after numerals, and head, sail, cannon, fish, trout, and heathen, when used in a special or a collective sense.

VIII. Some nouns are used only in the plural ; as, — aborigines	clothes	scissors	tidings	trousers

assets	dregs	thanks	tongs	vitals

IX. Some nouns plural in form are now generally used as singulars ; as, — amends	economics	measles	physics

ethics	mathematics	news	politics

X. Some nouns, originally singular, are now generally used in the plural ; as, alms, caves, riches.

¹ The old plural kine (= kyen) is still used in poetry, and such forms as eyen (eyes), hosen (hose), and shoon (shoes) are found in several dialects.

XI. Some nouns have two plural forms differing in meaning; as:—

brother, brothers (by blood); brethren (by association).
 cannon, cannons (separately); cannon (collectively).
 die, dies (stamps for coining); dice (cubes for gaming).
 fish, fishes (separately); fish (collectively).
 genius, geniuses (men of genius); genii (spirits).
 index, indexes (tables of reference); indices (signs in algebra).
 penny, pennies (number of coins); pence (amount in value).

EXERCISE 43

Write sentences containing the plurals of the following nouns, and tell how each plural is formed:—

woman	foot	cannon	shad	deer
tooth	ox	mouse	fish	genius
sheaf	enemy	buoy	crutch	reef
wharf	colloquy	envoy	life	fife

EXERCISE 44

(1) Tell which of the following nouns are used in the singular, and which in the plural.

(2) Write sentences illustrating their correct use:—

alms	eaves	politics	thanks
amends	dregs	riches	tidings
aborigines	mathematics	scissors	tongs clothes	news	shears	victuals

EXERCISE 45

Make a list of the following nouns, and write opposite each its singular:—

genii	geniuses	pence	brethren	indices
beeves	brothers	fishes	wharves	pennies
lives	indexes	women	staves	halves
cannons	elves	sheaves	dice	dies

CHAPTER XIX

PLURALS OF COMPOUNDS

Tell how each plural form below is made from the singular:—

spoonful	brother-in-law	man-servant
spoonfuls	brothers-in-law	men-servants

XII. Some compound nouns form the plural like single words, others make the principal word plural, and a few change both words; as, cupful, cupfuls; mother-in-law, mothers-in-law; woman-servant, women-servants.

EXERCISE 46

Write the singulars of the following nouns, and tell how their plurals are formed:—

I

Brahmans ¹	forget-me-nots	merchantmen
cupfuls	Frenchmen	mouse-traps
dormice	Germans	Normans

¹ The words Brahman, German, Mussulman, Ottoman, and talisman are not compounds of man.

Englishmen	grandfathers	stepsons fellow-servants	handfuls	talismans fishermen	major-generals	tooth-brushes

II

aides-de-camp	fathers-in-law	men-of-war
attorneys-at-law	hangers-on	sisters-in-law
commanders-in-chief	knights-errant	sons-in-law

III

knights-templars	men-servants	women-servants
------------------	--------------	----------------

XIII. When a title is prefixed to a proper name, the compound may be made plural by changing either the title or the name; as, the Misses Brown, the Messrs. Gray; or the Miss Browns, the Mr. Grays.

The title is always made plural when it is used with two or more names; as, Messrs. Stone and Wood; Generals Grant and Lee.

XIV. Letters, figures, and signs add the apostrophe (') and s, to form the plural; as, Dot the i's; Cancel the 5's; Write the +'s on a straight line.

EXERCISE 47

Write the plurals of the following compounds:—

countryman	maid-servant	man-trap
horseshoe	mother-in-law	toothpick
four-per-cent	mouthful	attorney-general
goose-quill	footboy	Miss Hill journeyman	footman	Mr. North

CHAPTER XX

NOUNS WITH FOREIGN PLURALS

XV. Many nouns taken from foreign languages retain their original plurals ; as : —

SINGULAR	PLURAL	SINGULAR	PLURAL
alumnus	alumni	genus	genera
analysis	analyses	index	indices
animalculum	animalcula	larva	larvæ
antithesis	antitheses	memorandum	memoranda
apex	apices	nebula	nebulae
axis	axes	parenthesis	parentheses
basis	bases	phenomenon	phenomena
cherub	cherubim	radius	radii crisis	crises	seraph	seraphim
datum	data	stratum	strata
erratum	errata	terminus	termini
focus	foci	thesis	theses
formula	formulae	vertebra	vertebrae
fungus	fungi	vertex	vertices
genius	genii	vortex	vortices

Some foreign words which are in common use form the plural in the usual way, often with a difference of meaning ; as formulas, indexes, geniuses.

EXERCISE 48

- (1) Make a list of the foregoing singular nouns from foreign languages, and opposite each write from memory its plural.
- (2) Write (a) five nouns that are used only in the plural ;

- (b) two nouns plural in form that are used in the singular;
 (c) three nouns having the same form in both numbers.

CHAPTER XXI

INFLECTION OF NOUNS—GENDER

Which words in the following list denote males? Which denote females?

man	father	host	man-servant
woman	mother	hostess	maid-servant

The distinction between words to denote sex is called gender.

A noun that denotes a male is of the masculine gender; as, man, heir.

A noun that denotes a female is of the feminine gender; as, woman, heiress.

A noun that may denote either a male or a female is of the *common gender*¹; as, parent, friend, robin.

A noun that denotes a thing neither male nor female is of the neuter gender; as, book, sky, joy.

The gender of nouns is distinguished in three ways:—

(1) By different words; as, —

MASCULINE	FEMININE	MASCULINE	FEMININE
bachelor	maid	earl	countess
boy	girl	father	mother
brother	sister	gentleman	lady
buck	doe	hart	roe

MASCULINE	FEMININE	MASCULINE	FEMININE
husband	wife	ram	ewe
king	queen	sir	madam
monk	nun	son	daughter
lord	lady	stag	hind nephew	niece	uncle	aunt
papa	mamma	wizard	witch

(2) By different endings. The chief feminine ending is ess.

Some nouns form the feminine by simply adding the suffix ess to the masculine; as, — baron	baroness	Jew	Jewess

count	countess	lion	lioness
deacon	deaconess	patron	patroness
heir	heiress	priest	priestess
host	hostess	shepherd	shepherdess

Other nouns shorten the ending of the masculine, or make other changes, before adding ess; as, —

actor	actress	abbot	abbess
benefactor	benefactress	duke	duchess
enchanter	enchantress	emperor	empress
hunter	huntress	governor	governess
preceptor	preceptress	marquis	marchioness
tiger	tigress	master	mistress
waiter	waitress	negro	negress

A few other feminine endings, such as ine, a, and trix, appear in words taken from foreign languages; as, —

MASCULINE	FEMININE	MASCULINE	FEMININE
hero	heroine	infante	infanta
Joseph	Josephine	signor	signora
Paul	Pauline	sultan	sultana
Augustus	Augusta	administrator	administratrix
czar	czarina	executor	executrix
don	donna	testator	testatrix

(3) By prefixing or annexing words indicating the sex;

as, —

MASCULINE	FEMININE
man-servant	maid-servant
men-singers	women-singers
he-goat	she-goat
cock-sparrow	hen-sparrow
peacock	peahen

EXERCISE 49

Make a list of all the masculine nouns mentioned in the foregoing lists, and opposite each write from memory the corresponding feminine noun.

EXERCISE 50

Point out the masculine, the feminine, and the neuter nouns in the following sentences, and tell which nouns may denote either males or females:—

1. We learned the ways of the fish, the birds, the bees, the winds, the clouds, the flowers.
2. Night closed in, but still no guest arrived.
3. Leaving the boatmen at the camp, I spent the greater part of the night in the very heart of a jungle.

4. Temperance and labor are the two best physicians of man.
5. Though Grandfather was old and gray-haired, yet his heart leaped with joy whenever little Alice came fluttering, like a butterfly, into the room.—HAWTHORNE.
6. I have had playmates, I have had companions.
—CHARLES LAMB.
7. Brethren, the sower's task is done.—BRYANT.
8. I rise, my Lords, to declare my sentiments on this most solemn and serious subject.—BURKE.
9. Little Effie shall go with me to-morrow to the green,
And you'll be there, too, mother, to see me made the Queen.
—TENNYSON.
10. Brothers, sisters, husbands, wives,
Followed the Piper for their lives.—ROBERT BROWNING.
11. The lamps shone o'er fair women and brave men.—BYRON.
12. What would we give to our beloved ?
The hero's heart, to be unmoved,
The poet's star-tuned harp, to sweep,
The patriot's voice, to teach and rouse,
The monarch's crown, to light the brows ?—
He giveth His beloved sleep.—E. B. BROWNING.

CHAPTER XXII

INFLECTION OF NOUNS—CASE

Tell the subjects of the verbs in the following sentences:—

1. The boy bought a watch.
2. An officer caught the thief.
3. Birds build nests.

What did the boy buy? Whom did the officer catch?
What do birds build?

The noun or pronoun that denotes the person or thing receiving the action expressed by a verb is called the object of the verb.

State the offices of the italicized words in the following:—

1. We followed the shepherd's dog.
2. The horse's bridle is broken.

When a word is used to show to whom or to what something belongs, it is said to denote possession.

Find in the following sentences a noun used (1) as the subject of a verb; (2) as the object of a verb; (3) as the object of a preposition; (4) to denote possession:—

1. The boy stood by the door.
2. He heard his father's voice.
3. A wave upset the boat.

The relation which a noun or pronoun bears to some other word in the sentence is called case.

A noun or pronoun used as the subject of a verb is in the nominative case; as, —

The bell rang. I hear a lark.

A noun or pronoun used to show possession is in the possessive case; as, —

The child's eyes are blue. She is my friend.

A noun or pronoun used as the object of a verb or of a preposition is in the objective case; as, —

They launched the vessel. Come with me.

How many case forms have the nouns in the foregoing examples? Which one is indicated by inflection? The possessive case of nouns is the only one that has a special form.

Nouns are inflected for number and for the possessive case.

A noun is said to be declined when its number and case forms are regularly arranged; as,—

DECLENSION OF A NOUN

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
Nom.	boy	boys
Poss.	boy's	boys'
Obj.	boy	boys

EXERCISE 51

State the kind, the gender, the number, and the case of the nouns in the following sentences:—

1. This tree stood in the centre of an ancient wood.
2. The waves rush in on every side.
3. Grandfather's chair stood by the fireside.
4. The stranger shook his head mournfully.
5. Birds have wonderfully keen eyes.
6. He shook his head, shouldered the rusty firelock, and with a heart full of trouble and anxiety turned his steps homeward.
7. Dark lightning flashed from Roderick's eye.—SCOTT.
8. When the rock was hid by the surge's swell,
The mariners heard the warning bell.—SOUTHEY.
9. The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.—GRAY.
10. They shook the depths of the desert gloom.—HEMANS.

EXERCISE 52

(1) Write five sentences, each containing a noun in the nominative case.

(2) Write five sentences, each containing a noun in the possessive case.

(3) Write five sentences, each containing a noun in the objective case.

CHAPTER XXIII

POSSESSIVE CASE

Point out the nouns that are in the possessive case, and tell how each possessive is formed:—

1. She knelt by the lady's side.
2. The ladies' gallery is closed.
3. Men's voices were heard.

(1) Add the apostrophe and s ('s) to a singular noun, to form the possessive; as, boy, boy's; man, man's.

The s is sometimes omitted in poetry for the sake of the metre; and it is also omitted in a few words where too many hissing sounds would come together; as, for conscience's sake; for righteousness's sake; for Jesus's sake.

(2) Add the apostrophe (') to a plural noun ending in s, to form the possessive; as, boys, boys'; ladies, ladies'.

(3) Add the apostrophe and s ('s) to a plural noun not ending in s, to form the possessive; as, men, men's; children, children's.

The possessive sign does not always denote possession. It is used to show authorship, origin, kind, etc.; as, Lowell's poems; the sun's rays; men's clothing.

EXERCISE 53

Point out the nouns in these sentences, tell how each is used, and name its case:—

1. The lark's song rang in her ears.
2. The sound of horses' hoofs was heard in the distance.
3. The scene brought to mind an old writer's account of Christmas preparations.
4. The incidents of the Revolution plentifully supplied the barber's customers with topics of conversation.
5. The boy rang the janitor's bell.
6. A burst of laughter came from the servants' hall.
7. I noted but two warblers' nests during the season.
8. Vainly the fowler's eye
 Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong.—BRYANT.
9. He felt that his little daughter's love was worth a thousand times more than he had gained by the Golden Touch.—HAWTHORNE

EXERCISE 54

Write in parallel columns the possessive singular, and the possessive plural forms of the following words:—

sister	woman	boy	girl
mother	wife	soldier	son
bee	bird	friend	teacher
poet	child	man	judge

CHAPTER XXIV

POSSESSIVE CASE OF COMPOUNDS

Tell how the possessive case is formed in the following compound words and phrases:—

1. The lieutenant-governor's revery had now come to an end.
2. Bright and Dun's window is filled with flowers.
3. They are reading Green's and Macaulay's histories.

(4) Compound nouns, words in apposition,¹ and phrases regarded as compound, add the possessive sign to the last word only; as, my brother-in-law's house; for thy servant David's sake; somebody else's hat.

(5) Two or more connected nouns implying joint possession add the possessive sign to the last noun only; as, William and Mary's reign; Mason and Dixon's line.

(6) Each of two or more connected nouns implying separate possession must take the possessive sign; as, Webster's and Worcester's dictionaries; Longfellow's and Lowell's poems.

EXERCISE 55

Explain the possessives in the following examples:—

1. In my Father's house are many mansions.
2. Hope vanished from Fitz-James's eye.—SCOTT.
3. Enough, enough; sit down and share
A soldier's couch, a soldier's fare.—SCOTT.
4. A man's first care should be to avoid the reproaches of his own heart.—ADDISON.

5. This happened after General Washington's departure from Cambridge.

6. Many a young man ransacked the garret, and brought forth his great-grandfather's sword, corroded with rust and stained with the blood of King Philip's War.—HAWTHORNE.

7. The rest of the house was in the French taste of Charles the Second's time.—IRVING.

8. The grocers', butchers', and fruiterers' shops were thronged with customers.—IRVING.

9. Hither they came, from the cornfields, from the clearing in the forest, from the blacksmith's forge, from the carpenter's workshop, and from the shoemaker's seat.—HAWTHORNE.

10. Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's,
Thy God's, and truth's.—SHAKESPEARE.

11. What good woman does not laugh at her husband's or father's jokes and stories time after time?—THACKERAY.

12. These are Clan-Alpine's warriors true.—SCOTT.

13. I dined with a party of gentlemen at my friend Mr. James Russell Lowell's.—HOLMES.

14. If to do were as easy as to know what were well to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages princes' palaces.—SHAKESPEARE.

15. The groves were God's first temples.—BRYANT.

EXERCISE 56

(1.) Write five sentences, each containing connected nouns denoting joint possession.

(2.) Write five sentences, each containing connected nouns denoting separate possession.

CHAPTER XXV

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE POSSESSIVE INFLECTION

Possession is sometimes indicated by the objective case with the preposition of; as, The voice of the speaker, for the speaker's voice.

This form is generally used in speaking of things without life; as, The lid of the box; the bank of the river.

This form is preferred also in speaking of persons, when the possessive form would be ambiguous or awkward; as, The wife of one of my brothers.

When a thing is personified,¹ the possessive sign is generally used, particularly by the poets; as, —

Go forth, under the open sky, and list
To Nature's teachings. — BRYANT.

Certain words and phrases denoting a period of time take the possessive case also; as, A day's journey; a week's vacation; six months' interest.

Of is sometimes used before the possessive form of a noun or pronoun, making a sort of double possessive; as, A cousin of Richard's; a friend of mine.

EXERCISE 57

Explain fully the case of each noun in the following sentences, and point out the examples in which possession is indicated by the objective case with the preposition of:—

¹ When an inanimate thing has ascribed to it the attributes of a person, it is said to be personified.

1. I flew to the pleasant fields traversed so oft

In life's morning march, when my bosom was young.

—CAMPBELL.

2. He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount a fear.—EMERSON

3. The trade of America had increased far beyond the speculations of the most sanguine imaginations. —BURKE.

4. The poetry of earth is never dead.—KEATS.

5. Either measure would have cost no more than a day's debate.—BURKE.

6. They came without a moment's delay.

7. She has had two years' experience.

8. He likes neither winter's snow nor summer's heat.

9. The city was taken after a ten years' siege.

10. The chieftain's pride was humbled.

EXERCISE 58

Select from your Reader—

(1) Five sentences in which possession is indicated by the objective case with the preposition of.

(2) Five other sentences in which possession is indicated by the use of the possessive sign.

CHAPTER XXVI

HOW TO PARSE NOUNS

To parse a word is to describe it by stating (1) the part of speech it is; (2) its inflection, if it has any; and (3) its syntax, or grammatical relation to other words in the sentence.

To parse a noun, state —

- | | |
|--|-----------------|
| (1) Its class. | (3) Its gender. |
| (2) Its number. | (4) Its case. |
| (5) Its syntax or construction — use in the sentence | |

EXAMPLE. — His eyes sparkled with joy when he heard Jason's reply.

1. Eyes is a noun, common, plural number, neuter gender, and nominative case — subject of the verb sparkled.¹
2. Joy is a noun, abstract, singular number, neuter gender, and objective case — object of the preposition with.
3. Jason's is a noun, proper, singular number, masculine gender, and possessive case — depending upon the noun reply.
4. Reply is a noun, common, singular number, neuter gender, and objective case — object of the verb heard.

EXERCISE 59

Parse the nouns in the following sentences: —

1. The lights of the church shone through the door.
2. Nell and her grandfather rose from the ground, and took the track through the wood. — DICKENS.
3. The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep. — GRAY.
4. I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers. — SHELLEY.
5. Strong reasons make strong actions. — SPENCER.
6. I stood in Venice, on the Bridge of Sighs. — BYRON.

¹ When the pupil is familiar with the different cases, a briefer method of parsing may be followed; thus, Eyes is a noun, common, plural, neuter, nominative, subject of the verb sparkled.

7. I now bade a reluctant farewell to the old hall.—IRVING.
8. A great deal of talent is lost in the world for the want of a little courage.—SYDNEY SMITH.
9. The eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill.—BYRON.
10. Is Saul also among the prophets? —BIBLE.
11. The doe lifted her head a little with a quick motion, and turned her ear to the south.—C. D. WARNER.
12. They had now reached the road which turns off to Sleepy Hollow; but Gunpowder, who seemed possessed with a demon, instead of keeping up it, made an opposite turn, and plunged headlong down hill to the left.—IRVING.
13. 'Tis the middle of night by the castle clock,
And the owls have awakened the crowing cock.
—COLERIDGE.
14. A soft answer turneth away wrath.—BIBLE.
15. Some have even learned to do without happiness, and instead thereof have found blessedness.—CARLYLE.
16. The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea.—GRAY.
17. Reading maketh a full man, conversation a ready man, and writing an exact man.—BACON.
18. Charity beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.—BIBLE.

CHAPTER XXVII

REVIEW OF NOUNS

EXERCISE 60

What is a noun? Mention the two leading classes of nouns and tell the difference between these classes. What is a collective noun? What is an abstract noun? State three ways in which abstract nouns are formed, and illustrate by examples.

What is meant by inflection? To what do the inflections of nouns relate?

How do most nouns form the plural? Mention other ways in which nouns form their plurals, and illustrate by example.

Give the plural of watch, piano, potato, donkey, lily, loaf, roof, tooth, ox, sheep.

Distinguish between the meaning of brothers and brethren; fishes and fish; indexes and indices; pennies and pence.

State three ways in which compound nouns form the plural, and illustrate by examples.

Give the plural of larva, alumnus, axis, beau, bandit, seraph. Why do these nouns not form their plurals in the usual way?

What is gender? How many genders are there, and what does each denote? Mention three ways in which the gender of a noun is distinguished.

Give the feminine nouns corresponding to the nouns hart, monk, nephew, host, master, governor, executor, hero, manservant.

Tell the gender of each of the following nouns, if it has any; woman, heiress, landlord, doe, waitress, czar, administrator, guest, friend, witness, cousin, sun, wind, table, house.

How many cases have nouns? What determines the case of a noun? Which case has a special form? How is the possessive case of nouns formed? How is the possessive formed in compound words and phrases? How may possession be indicated without the possessive form? When is this way preferable?

CHAPTER XXVIII

CLASSES OF PRONOUNS

I. PERSONAL PRONOUNS

Point out the pronouns in the following sentences, and tell which denote the person speaking, which the person spoken to, and which the person or thing spoken of:—

1. I am monarch of all I survey.
2. You will be surprised when you read the report.
3. He requested that we should be present.
4. Buy the truth, and sell it not.

A pronoun that shows by its form whether it denotes the person speaking, the person spoken to, or the person or thing spoken of, is a personal pronoun.

A pronoun that denotes the person speaking is in the first person; as, I, we.

A pronoun that denotes a person spoken to is in the second person; as, thou, ye, you.

A pronoun that denotes a person or a thing spoken of is in the third person; as, he, she, it, they.

Person is that distinction of pronouns which denotes the speaker, the person spoken to, or the person or thing spoken of.

Nouns have no forms to distinguish person ; but a noun is sometimes said to be of the first person when it is in apposition¹ with a pronoun of the first person, and of the second person when it is in apposition with a pronoun of the second person, or when it is used in address ; as, —

'Tis I, Hamlet the Dane. (First person.)

Thou, Lord, seest me. (Second person.)

O death, where is thy sting? (Second person.)

DECLENSION OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS

FIRST PERSON

	SINGULAR		PLURAL
Nom.	I	Nom.	we
Poss.	my, mine	Poss.	our, ours
Obj.	me	Obj.	us

The plural form we (our, ours, us) is sometimes used vaguely for people in general ; as, —

The world is too much with us ; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers.

— WORDSWORTH.

The form we is frequently used by editors and authors, when referring to themselves ; as, —

We have remarked elsewhere on this portrait.

We is also used by kings and some other rulers in issuing proclamations and giving orders ; as, —

You have good leave to leave us : when we need

Your use and counsel, we shall send for you.

— SHAKESPEARE, Henry IV.

SECOND PERSON

	SINGULAR		PLURAL
Nom.	thou	Nom.	ye, you
Poss.	thy, thine	Poss.	your, yours
Obj.	thee	Obj.	you

Thou, the second person singular, is no longer in common use. It is now chiefly used in prayer and in poetry; as, —

Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me.

I see in thy gentle eyes a tear;

They turn to me in sorrowful thought;

Thou thinkest of friends, the good and dear,

Who were for a time, and now are not. — BRYANT.

The pronoun you is used, in ordinary speech, in the place of thou, whether one or more than one person is addressed. It is plural in form, and takes a plural verb; as, —

You are merry, my lord. — SHAKESPEARE.

You are not wood, you are not stones, but men. — SHAKESPEARE.

THIRD PERSON

	SINGULAR			PLURAL
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc., Fem., or Neut.
Nom.	he	she	it	they
Poss.	his	her, hers	its	their, theirs
Obj.	him	her	it	them

The pronoun of the masculine gender is generally used to refer to a noun which may denote a person of either sex; as, —

Each pupil must provide his own material.

The pronoun of the masculine gender is also used in referring to animals or things that are supposed to possess masculine qualities, and the pronoun of the feminine gender is used in referring to animals or things to which feminine qualities are attributed; as, —

The eagle soars above his nest.

Earth, with her thousand voices, praises God. — COLERIDGE.

The pronoun of the neuter gender is often used to refer to animals or to young children, in cases where the sex is not considered; as, —

The deer raised its head.

The infant knew its name.

The pronoun it is also used as the grammatical subject of a verb which is followed by the real or logical subject; as, —

It is useless to deny the fact.

It is used as an impersonal subject when the meaning intended is expressed or implied by the verb itself; as, —

It rains.

It snows.

It is sometimes used as an impersonal or indefinite object; as, —

Come and trip it as you go.

They lord it over us.

The possessive forms my, thy, her, our, your, and their are used before the nouns they modify, and the forms mine, thine, hers, ours, yours, and theirs are used after the noun; as, —

My sister, but sister mine.

This is my book.

The book is mine.

The possessive forms of the pronoun are often called possessive adjectives.

Mine and thine were formerly used before their nouns, provided the nouns began with a vowel sound; as,—

Bow down thine ear. I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills.

This usage may still be observed in our English Bible and in poetry.

EXERCISE 61

In the following sentences, explain the special uses of the italicized pronouns:—

1. Every member is expected to do his part.
2. The child closed its eyes.
3. The camel kneels to receive its burden.
4. How glorious, through his depths of light,
 Rolls the majestic sun!
5. The deer left her delicate footprint in the soft mould.
6. The bear broke away from his keeper.
7. The sea is mighty, but a mightier sways
 His restless billows.
8. The merry lark, he soars on high,
 No worldly thought o'ertakes him;
 He sings aloud to the clear blue sky,
 And the daylight that awakes him.
 As sweet a lay, as loud, as gay,
 The nightingale is trilling;
 With feeling bliss, no less than his,
 Her little heart is thrilling. — HARTLEY COLERIDGE.
9. It is one thing to be well informed, it is another to be wise
10. Thy mistress leads thee a dog's life of it.

11. It is said that he will speak.
12. They had to foot it to the station.
13. Agree with thine adversary quickly.
14. And now there came both mist and snow,
And it grew wondrous cold. — COLERIDGE

CHAPTER XXIX

COMPOUND PERSONAL PRONOUNS

Tell how the italicized pronouns in the following sentences are formed, and how each is used:—

1. The boy hurt himself.
2. We often deceive ourselves.
3. I myself heard the remark.

The pronouns my, our, thy, your, him, her, it, and them are used with self or selves to form compound personal pronouns; thus, —

COMPOUND PERSONAL PRONOUNS

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
First Person.	myself	ourselves
Second Person.	{ thyself yourself	yourselves
Third Person.	{ himself herself itself	themselves

The compound personal pronouns are used for emphasis in the nominative and the objective, either in apposition with a noun or pronoun or alone; as, —

I myself longed to go.

Then rest thee here till dawn of day ;

Myself will guide thee on thy way. — SCOTT.

Here we met the poet himself.

The compound personal pronouns are also used in the objective case as reflexives, that is, as objects denoting the same person or thing as the subject of the verb ; as, —

He hid himself from his friends.

I let myself down with a rope.

Formerly the simple personal pronoun was used reflexively ; as, —

Now I lay me down to sleep.

This usage is now rare, except as an indirect object ; as, —

I have bought me a new hat.

EXERCISE 62

Tell which pronouns in the following sentences are used emphatically and which reflexively : —

1. A house divided against itself cannot stand.
2. He himself was not the author of the article.
3. We found ourselves in an absolutely French region.
4. He bowed to the audience and then seated himself.
5. The book itself could hardly be called a novel.
6. They interested themselves in the sports of the children.
7. I myself longed to cut free from prescribed bondage.
8. Thus influenced, I conquered myself in a single evening, and lost my shyness forever.
9. These remarks helped me to justify to myself that early choice.

CHAPTER XXX

CLASSES OF PRONOUNS—Continued

II. ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS

Which of the italicized words below are used as adjectives? Which are used as pronouns?

1. Many tickets were sold.
2. Many were unable to secure seats.
3. Look at this clock.
4. This is sold.

Certain words can be used to limit nouns or to stand for nouns. When such words limit nouns, they are adjectives; when they stand for nouns they are adjective pronouns. Sometimes there is a difference of form; as, no (adj.), none (pro.); other (adj.), others (pro.).

Adjective pronouns are sometimes divided into the following classes:—

(1) Demonstrative pronouns, those pointing out the things to which they relate; as, this (plural these), that (plural those).

(2) Distributive pronouns, those relating to persons or things considered separately; as, each, either, neither.

(3) Reciprocal pronouns, those expressing a mutual or reciprocal relation; as, each other, one another.

They feared each other (that is, each feared the other).

They assisted one another (that is, each one of them assisted another).

(4) Indefinite pronouns, those not specifying any particular individual or thing; as, all, another, any, both, few, many, none, one, other, several, some.

Some adjective pronouns are inflected for number and case. Thus, this and that have the plural forms these and those; one and other have plural and possessive forms; and either and another have a form for the possessive singular.

EXERCISE 63

Tell whether the italicized words in the following sentences are adjectives or pronouns, giving reasons in each case:—

1. Many, alas! had fallen in battle.—HAWTHORNE.
2. There is a calm for those who weep.—J. MONTGOMERY.
3. All are architects of fate,
Working in these walls of time;
Some with massive deeds and great,
Some with ornaments of rhyme.—LONGFELLOW.
4. Any life that is worth living must be a struggle.
—DEAN STANLEY.
5. The man deserving the name is one whose thoughts and exertions are for others rather than for himself.—SIR WALTER SCOTT.
6. All men think all men mortal but themselves.—YOUNG.
7. Men at some time are masters of their fate.—SHAKESPEARE.
8. This was the noblest Roman of them all.—SHAKESPEARE.
9. My worthy friend Sir Roger is one of those who is not only at peace with himself, but beloved and esteemed by all about him.
—ADDISON.
10. It is one thing to be well informed; it is another to be wise.—ROBERTSON.

11. We too seldom think how much we owe to those formidable savages. — JOHN FISKE.

12. Few shall part where many meet. — CAMPBELL.

13. To know
That which before us lies in daily life
 Is the prime wisdom. — MILTON.

EXERCISE 64

Construct sentences containing the following words used (1) as adjectives; (2) as pronouns:—

both	each	few	several	these neither	none	many	that	other

CHAPTER XXXI

III. RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Tell how many assertions are made in each of the following sentences, read the principal statement, and state the office of the italicized part:—

1. We found a guide, who answered our questions.
2. The wind, which rose suddenly, had now ceased.
3. They that seek wisdom will be wise.

Which words in the dependent clauses above refer to preceding nouns, and how are the dependent clauses joined to the independent clauses?

A pronoun that refers or relates to a noun or another pronoun, and joins to it a dependent clause, is a relative pronoun.

The noun or pronoun to which a relative pronoun refers or relates is called its antecedent, because the antecedent usually precedes the pronoun; as,—

What is that sound which now bursts on his ear?

He who would be great in the eyes of others must first learn to be nothing in his own.

The simple relative pronouns are who, which, that, and what.

EXERCISE 85

Point out the relative pronouns in the following sentences, name their antecedents, and tell what the pronouns connect:—

1. This was a signal to the patriots, who instantly despatched swift messengers to rouse the country.
2. We made preparations for our journey, which lay through mountainous regions.
3. They were accompanied by some Indians, who were skilful divers.
4. They saw nothing more valuable than a curious sea-shrub, which was growing beneath the water.
5. He that filches from me my good name
 Robs me of that which not enriches him,
 And makes me poor indeed.—SHAKESPEARE.
6. In the centre of the wood stood an enormous tulip tree, which towered like a giant above all the other trees of the neighborhood.
7. The general, who was on horseback, ordered the troops to halt.
8. They have taken forts that military men said could not be taken.

9. They that have done this deed are honorable.

The flame that lit the battle's wreck
Shone round him o'er the dead.

11. Is it the wind that moaneth bleak?

12. It is indeed impossible to kill a weed, which the soil has a natural disposition to produce.

CHAPTER XXXII

USE OF RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Who is usually applied to persons; as,—

Hail to the chief who in triumph advances.—SCOTT.

Old Kasper took it from the boy,

Who stood expectant by.—SOUTHEY.

Can this be she,

The lady, who knelt at the old oak tree?—COLERIDGE.

Sometimes, particularly in the description of individual traits or acts, who refers to animals; as,—

Twice have the crow-blackbirds attempted a settlement in my pines, and twice have the robins, who claim a right of preëmption, so successfully played the part of border-ruffians as to drive them away.—LOWELL.

In the next cage [we see] a hyena from Africa, who has doubtless howled around the pyramids.—HAWTHORNE.

I knew a tame deer in a settlement in the edge of the forest, who had the misfortune to break her leg.—C. D. WARNER.

He was only answered by the cawing of a flock of idle crows, . . . who, secure in their elevation, seemed to look down and scoff at the poor man's perplexities.—IRVING.

Which is applied to the lower animals and to things without life ; as, —

His good steed, which had borne him through many a hard fight, had fallen under him. — PRESCOIT.

Nature has indeed given us a soil which yields bounteously to the hands of industry. — WEBSTER.

Which was formerly used in speaking of persons ; as, —

Our Father which art in heaven.

Which sometimes has a phrase or a clause for its antecedent ; as, —

In the midst of these my musings she desired me to reach her a little salt upon the point of my knife, which I did in such a trepidation and hurry of obedience that I let it drop by the way.

— ADDISON.

It is probable that when this great work was begun, which must have been many hundred years ago, there was religion among this people. — ADDISON.

As he approached the village, he met a number of people, but none whom he knew, which somewhat surprised him, for he had thought himself acquainted with every one in the country round.

— IRVING.

When he was angered, which was often enough, he gave his commands and breathed threats of punishment like any king.

— R. L. STEVENSON.

In each of the foregoing examples, which refers not to a single word, but to the idea expressed by the preceding clause.

That is applied to persons, to animals, and to things; as,—

Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just. —SHAKESPEARE.

Even the very dog that lay stretched at his feet . . . would look fondly up in his master's face. —IRVING.

A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. —BIBLE.

That is generally preferred to who or which —

(1) In introducing a relative clause that limits or restricts the meaning of the antecedent ;¹ as, —

They that touch pitch will be defiled.

(2) After a joint reference to persons and things, as, —

Where are the boy and dog that we met?

When the relative that is used as the object of a preposition, the preposition follows the pronoun; as, —

Here is the hat that you looked at.

What refers to things. It is generally used without an antecedent expressed, and is equivalent to that which; as, —

She remembers what (that which) she reads.

As is sometimes used as a relative pronoun. It is then usually preceded by such; as, —

Let such as (those who) hear take heed.

¹ Some recent authorities teach that only that should be used when the relative clause is limiting or defining; as, the man that runs fastest wins the race; but who or which when it is descriptive or coördinating: as, this man, who ran fastest, won the race; but, though present usage is perhaps tending in the direction of such a distinction, it neither has been nor is a rule of English speech, nor is it likely to become one. —THE CENTURY DICTIONARY.

But is sometimes a relative pronoun. It has a negative force; as, —

There is no fireside, howsoe'er defuded,

But has (that has not) one vacant chair. — LONGFELLOW.

DECLENSION OF RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Who is declined, in both singular and plural, with the nominative who, the possessive whose, and the objective whom; as, —

Blessed is he who has found his work.

There is a reaper whose name is Death.

He whom I loved is dead.

The other relative pronouns are not declined, but whose is often used as if it were the possessive form of which (that is, as equivalent to of which); as, —

Bordered with trees whose gay leaves fly. — BRYANT.

The simple relative pronouns have the following forms:—

SINGULAR AND PLURAL

Nom.	who	which	that	what
Poss.	whose	(whose)	—	—
Obj.	whom	which	that	what

COMPOUND RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Pronouns formed by adding ever, so, or soever to who, which, and what are called compound relative pronouns; as, whoever, whoso, whosoever; whichever, whichsoever; whatsoever, whatsoever.

These compounds are generally used without antecedents expressed. Thus, —

Whoever looks may find the spot.

Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein.

Whosoever will save his life, shall lose it.

Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.

Since they do not refer to definite persons or things, they are sometimes called indefinite relative pronouns.

Whoever and whosoever are declined as follows:—

SINGULAR AND PLURAL

Nom.	whoever	whosoever
Poss.	whosever	whossoever
Obj.	whomever	whomsoever

The person, number, and gender of a relative pronoun are determined by its antecedent, thus:—

He prayeth best, who loveth best

All things, both great and small. — COLERIDGE.

In this example, who refers to he, hence it is third person, singular number, and masculine gender.

The case of a relative pronoun depends upon its use in its own clause. Thus, in the sentence, "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," that is the subject of the verb wears, hence it is in the nominative case. In the sentence, "The evil that men do lives after them," that is the object of the verb do, and is, therefore, in the objective case.

EXERCISE 66

Point out the relative pronouns in the following sentences, name their antecedents, tell what the pronouns connect, and give the person, number, gender, and case of each:—

1. He that lacks time to mourn lacks time to mend.
2. Where lies the land to which the ship would go?
3. My ramble soon led me to the church, which stood a little distance from the village.—IRVING.
4. What a man has learnt is of importance, but what he is, what he can do, what he will become, are more significant things.
—HELPS.
5. He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty.—BIBLE.
6. A land that will not yield satisfactorily without irrigation, and whose best paying produce requires intelligent as well as careful husbandry, will never be an idle land.—WARNER.
7. All precious things, discovered late,
To those that seek them issue forth.—TENNYSON.
8. They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three.—LOWELL.
9. Here, then, I parted, sorrowfully, from the companion with whom I set out on my journey.—HOLMES.
10. He who has sought renown about the world, and has reaped a full harvest of worldly favor, will find, after all, that there is no love, no admiration, no applause, so sweet to the soul as that which springs up in his native place.—IRVING.
11. We have no bird whose song will match the nightingale's in compass, none whose note is so rich as that of the European blackbird: but for mere rapture I have never heard the bobolink's rival.—LOWELL.

12. Whoever examines the maps of London which were published toward the close of the reign of Charles the Second will see that only the nucleus of the present capital then existed.

—MACAULAY.

13. Whatever befell them, it was not dishonor, and whatever failed them, they were not found wanting to themselves.

—R. L. STEVENSON.

14. Whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

15. The books which help you most are those which make you think most.—PARKER.

16. They never fail who die in a great cause.—BYRON.

17. The Upper Lake discharges itself into the Lower by a brook which winds through a mile and a half of swamp and woods.—WARNER.

18. I tell you that which you yourselves do know.

—SHAKESPEARE.

19. How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings!—BIBLE.

20. Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood

In brighter light, and softer air, a beauteous sisterhood?

21. The charities that soothe and heal and bless,
Lie scattered at the feet of men like flowers.

22. There breathes not clansman of thy line
But would have given his life for mine.—SCOTT.

OMISSION OF THE RELATIVE PRONOUN

The relative pronoun is often omitted when, if expressed, it would be in the objective case; as,—

Observe the language well in all [that] you write.

In poetry, the relative pronoun is sometimes omitted, even when it would be the subject; as, —

'Tis distance [that] lends enchantment to the view. — CAMPBELL.

The antecedent of a relative pronoun is sometimes omitted, being implied in the pronoun; as, —

[He] Who breaks, pays.

EXERCISE 67

Tell where relative pronouns are omitted in the following sentences, and name the case of each omitted word: —

1. I am not altogether unqualified for the business I have undertaken. — ADDISON.

2. All the faces he drew were very remarkable for their smiles.
— ADDISON.

3. The house we lived in is sold.

4. Few and short were the prayers we said. — WOLFE.

5. The stranger at my fireside cannot see
The forms I see, nor hear the sounds I hear. — LONGFELLOW.

6. 'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore. — CAMPBELL.

7. I am monarch of all I survey. — COWPER.

8. Nearly all of his poems were intended to further a cause he held dear, or to teach a lesson he thought needful.

9. All I hear
Is the north wind drear.

CHAPTER XXXIII

RELATIVE CLAUSES

EXPLANATORY AND RESTRICTIVE

Tell which clauses, in the following sentences, introduce additional ideas about the antecedents, and which limit or restrict their meaning:—

1. The physician, who was in the next room, entered.
2. I thrice presented him a kingly crown,
Which he did thrice refuse.
3. I know the man that must hear me.
4. They that have done this deed are honorable.

A clause that introduces an additional idea about the antecedent is explanatory; as,—

They had one son, who had grown up to be the staff and pride of their age.

The cargo, which was valuable, was lost.

A clause that limits or restricts the meaning of the antecedent is restrictive; as,—

The bird that soars on highest wing
Builds on the ground her lowly nest.

That is generally preferred to who or which in introducing a restrictive clause.¹

A relative clause not restrictive is separated from the remainder of the sentence by the comma.

EXERCISE 68

Point out the relative pronouns in the following sentences, and tell in each case whether they introduce explanatory or restrictive clauses:—

1. He that is not with me is against me.
2. The Carrier, who had turned his face from the door, signed to him to go if he would. — DICKENS.
3. Carefully then were covered the embers that glowed on the hearthstone. — LONGFELLOW.
4. Not far from the gateway they came to a bridge, which seemed to be built of iron. — HAWTHORNE.
5. The first spring wild-flowers, whose shy faces among the dry leaves and rocks are so welcome, yield no honey. — JOHN BURROUGHS.
6. The tongue is like a race-horse, which runs the faster the less weight it carries. — ADDISON.
7. We were the first that ever burst
 Into that silent sea. — COLERIDGE.
8. Bordered with trees whose gay leaves fly
 On every breath that sweeps the sky
 The fresh dark acres furrowed lie,
 And ask the sower's hand. — BRYANT.
9. The mind that lies fallow but a single day sprouts up in follies that are only to be killed by a constant and assiduous culture. — ADDISON.
10. A tree, which grew out from the hillside, was the living centre-beam of the roof. — STEVENSON.
11. And everybody praised the Duke,
 Who this great fight did win. — SOUTHEY.

12. Brazil, which is nearly as large as the whole of Europe, is covered with a vegetation of incredible profusion. Indeed, so rank and luxuriant is the growth, that Nature seems to riot in the very wantonness of power. A great part of this immense country is filled with dense and tangled forests, whose noble trees, blossoming in unrivalled beauty, and exquisite with a thousand hues, throw out their produce in endless prodigality. On their summit are perched birds of gorgeous plumage, which nestle in their dark and lofty recesses. Below, their bases and trunks are crowded with brushwood, creeping plants, innumerable parasites, all swarming with life. There, too, are myriads of insects of every variety; reptiles of strange and singular form, serpents and lizards, spotted with deadly beauty: all of which find means of existence in this vast workshop and repository of Nature. And that nothing may be wanting to this land of marvels, the forests are skirted by enormous meadows, which, reeking with heat and moisture, supply nourishment to countless herds of wild cattle, that browse and fatten on their herbage; while the adjoining plains, rich in another form of life, are the chosen abode of the subtlest and most ferocious animals, which prey on each other, but which it almost seems no human power can hope to extirpate. — BUCKLE

EXERCISE 69

Select from your Reader or Ill. by six relative clauses that are explanatory, and six others that are restrictive.

CHAPTER XXXIV

IV. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS

How are the italicized words used in the following sentences?

1. Who comes here ?
2. Which reached home first ?
3. What is the news ?

A pronoun used in asking a question is an interrogative pronoun. An interrogative pronoun may be used in a direct or an indirect question ; thus, —

What did you see ? (Direct question.)

I asked what you saw. (Indirect question.)

The interrogative pronouns are who, which, and what.

Who refers to persons. It is declined like the relative who.

Which refers to persons or to things. It implies selection ; as, —

Which of the brothers sings ?

Which of the chairs do you prefer ?

What refers to things ; as, —

What was in the box ?

Whether was formerly in common use as an interrogative pronoun ; as, —

Whether is greater, the gift or the altar ?

Which and what are sometimes used as interrogative adjectives ; as, —

Which way shall I fly ?

Where are they now ? What lands and skies

Paint pictures in their friendly eyes ?

What hope deludes, what promise cheers,

What pleasant voices fill their ears ? — LONGFELLOW.

As an interrogative adjective, what, like which, is used of persons as well as of things; as, —

What man would say such a thing? Which boy replied?

EXERCISE 70

Point out the pronouns in the following sentences, tell the kind of each pronoun, and name its case: —

1. Who can understand his errors?
2. Which of you, by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature?
3. Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, What makest thou?
4. Who planted this old apple tree?
5. What is civilization? What does it consist in?
6. Whom shall I send?
7. Ah! what is that sound which now bursts on his ear? — DIMOND.
8. Who, among the whole chattering crowd, can tell me of the forms and the precipices of the chain of tall white mountains that girded the horizon at noon yesterday? Who saw the narrow sunbeam that came out of the south, and smote upon their summits until they melted and mouldered away in a dust of blue rain? Who saw the dance of the dead clouds when the sunlight left them last night, and the west wind blew them before it like withered leaves? — RUSKIN.

EXERCISE 71

Tell whether the italicized words in the following sentences are interrogative or relative pronouns, giving a reason in each instance: —

1. What is the Constitution? It is the bond which binds together millions of brothers. — DANIEL WEBSTER.

2. The divine faculty is to see what everybody can look at. — —LOWELL.

3. Now tell us all about the war,
And what they fought each other for. — SOUTHEY.

4. The lovely lady Christabel,
Whom her father loves so well,
What makes her in the wood so late,
A furlong from the castle gate? — COLERIDGE.

5. It was with great difficulty that the self-important man in the cocked hat restored order; and having assumed a tenfold austerity of brow, demanded again of the unknown culprit, what he came there for, and whom he was seeking. — IRVING.

6. Do you ask what the birds say?

7. Things are not what they seem.

8. Who is the great man? He who is the strongest in the exercise of patience; he who patiently endures injury.

CHAPTER XXXV

HOW TO PARSE PRONOUNS

To parse a pronoun, state —

- (1) Its class.
- (2) Its antecedent (if it is a relative pronoun).
- (3) Its person (if it is a personal or a relative pronoun).
- (4) Its number.
- (5) Its gender (if it is a personal pronoun of the third person singular).
- (6) Its case.
- (7) Its syntax or construction — use in the sentence.

EXAMPLE I. And then I think of one who in her youthful beauty died.

1. I is a personal pronoun, first person, singular number, and nominative case—subject of the verb think.¹

2. One is an adjective pronoun, third person, singular number, and objective case—object of the preposition of.

3. Who is a relative pronoun, third person, singular number, agreeing with its antecedent one, and nominative case—subject of the verb died.

4. Her is a personal pronoun, third person, singular number, feminine gender, and possessive case—depending upon the noun beauty.

EXAMPLE II. No one heard what he said.

What is a relative pronoun, used without an antecedent expressed, of the third person, singular number, and objective case—object of the verb said.

EXERCISE 72

Parse the pronouns in the following sentences:—

1. The moon did not rise till after ten, so I had two hours of intense darkness during which I used my ears instead of my eyes.

—M. THOMPSON.

2. And what is so rare as a day in June?—LOWELL.

3. Hang around your walls pictures which shall tell stories of mercy, hope, courage, faith, and charity.—D. G. MITCHELL.

4. A few hoped, and many feared, that some scheme of monarchy would be established.—JOHN FISKE.

¹ Or follow a briefer form, similar to the one suggested on p. 54.

5. With merry songs we mock the wind
That in the pine top grieves,
And slumber long and sweetly
On beds of oaken leaves. — BRYANT.
6. I witnessed a striking incident in bird life which was very suggestive. — M. THOMPSON.
7. Hast thou a charm to stay the morning star? — COLERIDGE.
8. He laid him down and closed his eyes. — SOUTHEY.
9. Triumphant arch, that fill'st the sky
When storms prepare to part,
I ask not proud Philosophy
To teach me what thou art. — CAMPBELL.
10. He that only rules by terror
Doeth grievous wrong. — TENNYSON.
11. We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done. — LONGFELLOW.
12. I fear thee, ancient mariner!
I fear thy skinny hand!
And thou art long, and lank, and brown,
As is the ribbed sea-sand. — COLERIDGE.
13. Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. — SHAKESPEARE.
14. He who plants an oak looks forward to future ages, and plants for posterity. — IRVING.
15. Which of us shall be the soonest folded to that dim Unknown?
Which shall leave the other walking in this flinty path alone? — BRYANT.

CHAPTER XXXVI

REVIEW OF PRONOUNS

EXERCISE 73

What is a pronoun? How does a pronoun differ from a noun?

Mention the different classes of pronouns and give examples of each class.

What is a personal pronoun? How many case forms has the pronoun of the first person? How is each used?

Give the second person singular, and tell how it is used. Give two uses of the pronoun you.

Which person has a distinction of gender? State special uses of the pronouns of the masculine, feminine, and neuter genders. How are the possessive forms of personal pronouns used?

Mention the compound personal pronouns, and tell how they are formed.

Give an example of their use as reflexives; for emphasis.

How does an adjective pronoun differ from an adjective?

Define a relative pronoun. State the distinctions in the use of who, which, and what. Give a sentence in which as is used as a relative pronoun; in which but is so used.

What is an interrogative pronoun? What words are used as interrogative pronouns?

CHAPTER XXXVII

CLASSES OF ADJECTIVES

Point out the adjectives in the following sentences, and tell what each expresses:—

1. I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers.
2. The sun is warm, the sky is clear.
3. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.
4. Three years she grew in sun and shower.

(1) An adjective that expresses quality or kind is a descriptive adjective; as, a happy boy; a narrow path; a wooden bench.

The following terms are sometimes applied to certain descriptive adjectives.—

(a) Proper Adjectives, those formed from proper names; as, American forests; the English language. Proper adjectives begin with capital letters.

(b) Participial Adjectives, which are participles¹ used simply as adjectives; as, burning words, a charming view, withered leaves.

(2) An adjective that points out something or denotes number or quantity is a limiting adjective; as, this week; two hours; much trouble.

A limiting adjective may be used—

(a) Simply to point out; as, this, that, the, an, yon, yonder. Such adjectives are sometimes called demonstrative adjectives.

(b) To express a definite number; as, one, two, fourteen, fifty.

(c) To express an indefinite number or quantity; as, any, little, much, many, some.

(d) To show the order of things in a series; as, first, second, third.

Limiting adjectives expressing number are called numeral adjectives. Numerals are classified as—

(a) Cardinals, those denoting how many; as, one, two, three.

(b) Ordinals, those denoting the order of things in a series; as, third, fourth, fifth.

An adjective formed from two simple words is called a compound adjective; as, native-born citizen, rock-bound coast, low-vaulted roof, twenty-third psalm.

EXERCISE 74

Point out the adjectives in the following sentences, state the office of each, and tell what kind of adjective it is:—

1. Thirty-two statues of various sizes were found in this field.
2. Its chief attractions were a never-failing breeze at night, good water, and a large garden in the centre of a cleared space.
3. Hark! 'tis the twanging horn o'er yonder bridge.—COWPER.
4. We met several men riding at a rapid pace.

5. Across its antique portico

Tall poplar-trees their shadows throw.—LONGFELLOW.

6. This long march through the primeval forest and over rugged and trackless mountains was one of the most remarkable exploits of the war.

7. O blessings on his kindly voice and on his silver hair !
 8. Suddenly there was a gentle little tap on the inside of the lid.
 9. The thirteen colonies were now free and independent states.
 10. A certain man fell among thieves.
 11. Small service is true service while it lasts. — WORDSWORTH.
 12. All the air a solemn stillness holds. — GRAY.
 13. The good old year is with the past. — BRYANT.
 14. With a slow and noiseless footstep
 Comes that messenger divine. — LONGFELLOW.
 15. With fingers weary and worn,
 With eyelids heavy and red,
 A woman sat, in unwomanly rags,
 Plying her needle and thread. — HOOD.
 16. All the little boys and girls,
 With rosy cheeks and flaxen curls,
 And sparkling eyes and teeth like pearls,
 Tripping and skipping, ran merrily after
 The wonderful music with shouting and laughter.
 — BROWNING.

EXERCISE 75

Write sentences containing the following words used as adjectives : —

strong	any	many	brittle	prompt
fair	all	curved	every	distant
both	dutiful	little	modern	neither
some	few	much	each	another clear	brief	certain	other	several

CHAPTER XXXVIII

ARTICLES

The limiting adjectives the and an or a (the shortened form of an) are sometimes called articles.

The is the weakened form of that. It is called the definite article.

The is used to point out some particular thing or things or a class of things;¹ as, —

And the Piper advanced and the children followed. — BROWNING.

The stars are out by twos and threes. — WORDSWORTH.

An or a is the weakened form of the numeral adjective one. It is called the indefinite article.

An or a is used to point out any one thing of a class; as, —

A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one. — DR. JOHNSON.

While the indefinite article is generally used before a singular noun, it is also used before a plural noun with few, great, many, or good many; as, —

A few days, a great many books, a good many people.

The indefinite article should not be used before a word denoting a whole class. Thus, not "What kind of a bird was it?" "I do not like that sort of a thing"; but "What kind of bird was it?" "I do not like that sort of thing."

¹ In such phrases as "the more the merrier," the is not an article, but an adverb. See page 220.

EXERCISE 76

In the following sentences find the articles that point out (1) some particular thing or things; (2) a class of things; (3) any one thing of a class:—

1. Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the wicked.
2. A wise man will make haste to forgive.
3. The shamrock is the national emblem of Ireland.
4. A fair little girl sat under a tree.
5. The salmon is both a marine and a fresh-water fish.
6. He returned with the title of Admiral.
7. The maples redden in the sun;
 In autumn gold the beeches stand.
8. Consider the lilies how they grow.

AN OR A

An is used before a word beginning with a vowel sound; ¹ as, an apple; an initial; an hour.

A is used before a word beginning with a consonant sound; as, a boat; a day; many a one (one begins with the consonant sound of w); a unit (unit begins with the consonant sound of y).

EXERCISE 77

Read the following sentences, supplying the proper form of the indefinite article. Give in each case a reason for your choice:—

1. Be — hero in the strife.
2. He is — humorist.

¹ An was formerly used before all words beginning with h, and is still used by many writers before h in unaccented syllables; as, an hotel; an historian.

3. For Brutus is — honorable man.
4. He that hath — trade hath — estate, and he that hath — calling hath — office of profit and honor.
5. Such — one is seldom found.
6. I learned that he was — universal favorite in the village.
7. That book is — authority on this subject.
8. — hundred dogs bayed deep and strong,
Clattered — hundred steeds along,
'Their peal the merry horns rung out,
— hundred voices joined the shout.
9. The shades of night were falling fast,
As through — Alpine village passed
— youth, who bore, 'mid snow and ice,
— banner with the strange device,
Excelsior !
10. Truth is the highest thing — man may keep.

REPETITION OR OMISSION OF THE ARTICLE

When two or more adjectives modify the same noun, the article is used before the first only; but when they modify different nouns, expressed or understood, the article is used before each; as, —

A red and white rose (one rose).

A red and a white rose (two roses).

Sometimes, however, when the adjectives modify the same noun, the article is repeated for emphasis; as "An amusing and an instructive book."

The article is sometimes used before each adjective with a noun in the singular, and before the first adjective only with a noun in the plural; as, "Omit the second and the third stanza," or "Omit the second and third stanzas."

When two or more connected nouns refer to the same person or thing, the article is used before the first only; but when they refer to different persons or things that are to be especially distinguished, the article is used before each; as, —

He was an eminent orator and statesman.

Its effect approaches to that produced by the pencil or the chisel. — MACAULAY.

In expressing a comparison, if two nouns refer to the same person or thing, the article is used before the first noun only; but if they refer to different persons or things, the article must be used with each noun; as, —

1. He would make a better statesman than orator (= He would make a better statesman than [he would make an] orator).
2. He would make a better statesman than an orator (= He would make a better statesman than an orator [would make]).

EXERCISE 78

Give reasons for the repetition or the omission of the article in each of the following sentences: —

1. He purchased from the Indians a large and fertile tract of land.
2. Wanted, a stenographer and typewriter.
3. Wanted, a stenographer and a typewriter.
4. To the wise and good, old age presents a scene of tranquil enjoyment.

5. On the rich and the eloquent, on nobles and priests, they looked down with contempt.

6. Here was a type of the beginning and the end of human pomp and power.

7. He had, indeed, a quick observation and a retentive memory.

8. What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him !

9. He detected, with unfailing skill, the good or the vile wherever it existed.

10. However strange, however grotesque, may be the appearance which Dante undertakes to describe, he never shrinks from describing it. He gives us the shape, the color, the sound, the smell, the taste.

11. The third and fourth chapters are brief and dry.

12. Have you read the seventh and the eighth chapter ?

13. He is a better speaker than writer.

14. He was a ready orator, an elegant poet, a skilful gardener, an excellent cook, and a most contemptible sovereign.

15. They elected a secretary and a treasurer.

16. He had naturally a generous and feeling heart.

17. Down in a green and shady bed a modest violet grew.

18. What is the difference between a vowel and a consonant ?

CHAPTER XXXIX

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

Tell how many forms the adjective long has in the following sentences, and what each form expresses :—

1. This work requires a long pencil.

2. Your pencil is longer than mine.

3. Here is the longest pencil in the box.

Some adjectives change their form to express different degrees of quality. This change of form is called comparison.

The form of an adjective that simply expresses the quality is the positive degree; as, long, short

The form of an adjective that expresses a higher or a lower degree of the quality is the comparative degree; as, longer, shorter.

The form of an adjective that expresses the highest or the lowest degree of the quality is the superlative degree; as, longest, shortest.

Most adjectives of one syllable add er to the simple form of the adjective, to form the comparative, and est, to form the superlative. If the adjective ends in e, one e is omitted; as, —

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
long	longer	longest
pure	purer	purest

In adding these suffixes the usual rules for spelling must be observed. Thus:—

(1) If the adjective ends in e, omit the e before adding er or est; as, wise, wiser, wisest.

(2) If the adjective ends in y, preceded by a consonant, change the y into i; as, happy, happier, happiest.

(3) If the adjective ends in a single consonant, preceded by a single vowel, double the final consonant; as, thin, thinner, thinnest.

Most adjectives of more than one syllable prefix more or less to the simple form of the adjective, to form the comparative, and most or least, to form the superlative; as, —

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
careful	more careful	most careful
fortunate	less fortunate	least fortunate

A few adjectives of two syllables, ending in sounds that unite easily with the sound of er or est, may be compared by adding er or est; as, noble, happy, narrow, tender, pleasant. The form of comparison that is most pleasing to the ear should be used.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON

Some adjectives are compared irregularly, as follows:—

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
bad, evil, ill	worse	worst
far	farther, further	farthest, furthest
fore	former	foremost, first good, well	better	best
hind	hinder	hindmost, hindermost
[in] ¹	inner	inmost, innermost late	latter, later	last, latest
little	less, lesser	least many, much	more	most near	nearer	nearest, next
nigh	nigher	nighest, next
old	elder, older	eldest, oldest
[out]	outer, utter	outmost, outermost utmost, uttermost
[up]	upper	upmost, uppermost

¹ The words in the brackets are adverbs. No corresponding adjectives exist in the positive form.

MEANINGS OF DOUBLE FORMS

Farther and further are often used indiscriminately, though further is generally preferred in the sense of additional; as, —

No further reasons were given.

Latter and last are used in speaking of order in a series; later and latest refer to time; as, —

The last volume is just published.

Have you heard the latest news?

Lesser is opposed to greater; as, —

God made two great lights; the greater light to rule by day, and the lesser light to rule by night.

Elder is opposed to younger; older, to new; as, —

His elder son was in the field.

Our house is older than yours.

Outer is opposed to inner; utter means complete, total.

The outer wall has fallen.

The attempt to sail the boat was an utter failure.

Adjectives expressing meanings that do not admit of different degrees cannot, if taken in their strict sense, be compared; as, one, this, that, equal, square, vertical, perfect, universal.

INFLECTION FOR NUMBER

The two adjectives this and that are inflected for number; thus, —

SINGULAR	PLURAL
this	these that	those

EXERCISE 79

(1) Write the comparison of beautiful, clear, deep, eloquent, famous, heavy, ill, many, little, well.

(2) State the distinction in meaning between (a) latter and later; (b) elder and older.

(3) Give ten adjectives that cannot be compared.

EXERCISE 80

Point out each adjective in the following sentences, name its degree, and tell what it modifies:

1. Choose the timbers with greatest care. — LONGFELLOW.
2. Of all the old festivals, however, that of Christmas awakens the strongest and most heartfelt associations. — IRVING.
3. He who ascends to mountain tops shall find
The loftiest peaks most wrapt in clouds and snow. — BYRON.
4. The edges and corners of the box were carved with most wonderful skill. — HAWTHORNE.
5. She is more precious than rubies. — BIBLE.
6. We started immediately after an early luncheon, followed an excellent road all the way, and were back in time for dinner at half-past six.
7. The day was cloudy, and the sea very rough.

8. Alas ! when evil men are strong,
No life is good, no pleasure long. — WORDSWORTH.

9. He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty. — BIBLE.

10. The noblest mind the best contentment has. — SPENSER.

11. This was t' noblest Roman of them all. — SHAKESPEARE.

12. The greatest man is he who chooses the right with invincible resolution ; who resists the sorest temptations from within and from without ; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully ; who is calmest and most fearless under menaces and frowns ; whose reliance on truth, on virtue, on God, is most unflinching. — CHANNING.

CHAPTER XL

HOW TO PARSE ADJECTIVES

To parse an adjective, tell —

- (1) Its class.
- (2) Its degree of comparison (if the adjective can be compared).
- (3) Its syntax or construction — use in the sentence.

EXAMPLE. — The north wind is cold.

1. The is a limiting adjective, modifying the expression north wind.
2. North is a descriptive adjective, modifying the noun wind.
3. Cold is a descriptive adjective of the positive degree. It completes the meaning of the verb is, and modifies the noun wind, limited by the and north.

EXERCISE 81

Parse the adjectives in the following sentences:—

1. It is the most beautiful shrub that ever sprang out of the earth.

2. Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

3. Such pleasures nerve the arm for strife,
 Bring joyous thoughts and golden dreams.

4. This door led into a passage out of which opened four sleeping-rooms.

5. Wide is the gate and broad is the way.

6. In the middle of the eighteenth century there were four New England colonies.—FISKE.

7. Birds of the polar areas of snow and ice are white, those of the tropics are vari-colored and brilliant-hued.—M. THOMPSON.

8. Straight and strong and magnificently plumed, the palms rose to an average height of seventy or eighty feet.—A. B. EDWARDS.

9. Spring is the season when the volume of bird-song poured round the world is incomparably stronger, fuller, and sweeter than at any other.—M. THOMPSON.

10. Lo! while we are gazing, in swifter haste
 Stream down the snows till the air is white.—BRYANT.

11. The habit of observation is the habit of clear and decisive gazing. Not by a first casual glance, but by a steady deliberate aim of the eye are the rare and characteristic things discovered.

—JOHN BURROUGHS.

12. A form more fair, a face more sweet,
 Ne'er hath it been my lot to meet.—WHITTIER.

13. A beautiful form is better than a beautiful face; a beautiful behavior is better than a beautiful form: it gives a higher pleasure than statues or pictures; it is the finest of the fine arts.

—EMERSON.

CHAPTER XLI

CHOICE OF ADJECTIVES

The adjectives in the following exercises are often misused. Find out from a dictionary their exact meaning, and be careful to use them in their proper sense.

EXERCISE 82

Copy the following sentences, filling the blanks with appropriate words from this list: —

1. The man was so — that few persons would employ him.
2. Hans Andersen wrote "The — Duckling."
3. It is hard living with an — person.

CHAPTER XLII

REVIEW OF ADJECTIVES

EXERCISE 84

Find the adjectives in the following selection, and state the office of each:—

How beautiful is night !
 A dewy freshness fills the silent air ;
 No mist obscures, nor cloud nor speck nor stain
 Breaks the serene of heaven :
 In full-orbed glory yonder moon divine
 Rolls through the dark blue depths ;
 Beneath her steady ray
 The desert circle spreads
 Like the round ocean girdled with the sky.
 How beautiful is night !—SOUTHEY.

EXERCISE 85

What is an adjective? Into what two classes may adjectives be divided?

Name three adjectives that are used to point out things; two adjectives that express a definite number; two that express an indefinite number; two that express an indefinite quantity; two that indicate order of things in a series.

State the difference in meaning between the and an or a. Distinguish between the use of an and a, and illustrate by examples.

Name two adjectives that change their form to denote the plural number. Give their plural forms.

What is meant by the comparison of adjectives? What are the three degrees of comparison called? Define each, and give an example.

How is the comparative formed? Give examples. How is the superlative formed? Give examples.

What is meant by irregular comparison? Illustrate.

Mention two adjectives that are compared by means of suffixes; two that are compared by means of adverbs; two that are compared irregularly; and two that are not usually compared.

Give the comparative and superlative forms of few, heavy, amiable, swift, useful, fierce, mighty, witty, gentle, good, bad, late, little, ill, much, many.

CHAPTER XLII*

CLASSES OF VERBS

TRANSITIVE AND INTRANSITIVE VERBS

Point out the verb in each of the following sentences, name its subject,¹ and tell which word is used as the object² of the verb:—

1. Spiders spin webs.
2. Bees make honey.
3. Who taught them ?

Some verbs, like the examples above, require objects to complete their meaning ; other verbs do not require objects.

A verb that requires an object is a transitive verb ; as, —

Birds build nests.

Henry threw the ball.

A verb that does not require an object is an intransitive verb ; as, —

Birds fly.

The sun shines.

In a few instances the same word may be used as a transitive verb in one sentence, and as an intransitive verb in another ; as, —

The wind blows the dust. (Transitive.)

The wind blows. (Intransitive.)

EXERCISE 87

Write sentences containing the following words used (1) as transitive verbs ; (2) as intransitive verbs : —

learn	write	watch	strike	ride
roll	see	read	fly	sing

CHAPTER XLIV

VERBS OF INCOMPLETE PREDICATION

Which verbs in the following sentences form a predicate alone, and which must be followed by another word to complete their meaning? —

1. I slip, I slide, I gloom, I glance,
Among my skimming swallows.
2. The sun is warm, the sky is clear.
3. I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers.

A verb that requires an additional word or words to complete the predicate is a verb of incomplete predication.

When the verb is transitive, the predicate is completed by the object of the action ; as, —

War brings sorrow.

When the verb is intransitive, the predicate is completed by a word or words describing the subject, and the completing adjunct is called a complement ; as, —

The sky is blue.

The boy was an orphan.

Most intransitive verbs have a complete meaning in themselves ; as, —

The rain falls.

The wind blows.

A few intransitive verbs (as be, become, appear, look, seem, and the like) must be followed by a noun or an adjective to complete their meaning ; as, —

He is a statesman.

The child seems cold.

Such verbs of incomplete predication are sometimes called copulative, since they connect or couple the subject with a word describing the subject ; as, —

Washington was a patriot.

She looks happy.

EXERCISE 88

Tell whether the verbs in the following sentences are transitive or intransitive, name the object of each transitive verb, and tell what completes the meaning of each incomplete intransitive verb : —

1. He crept softly to the window.
2. The way was long, the wind was cold. — SCOTT.
3. I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old, familiar carols play. — LONGFELLOW.
4. A thing of beauty is a joy forever. — KEATS.
5. The daffodil is our doorside queen. — BRYANT.
6. The next day Congress took the formal vote upon the resolution.
7. Behold the fowls of the air. — BIBLE.

- 8 The fish swam by the castle wall,
 And they seemed joyous, each and all. — BYRON.
9. Open then I flung the shutter, when, with many a flirt and flutter,
In there stepped a stately raven of the saintly days of yore.
— POE.
10. The snow had begun in the gloaming,
 And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
 With a silence deep and white. — LOWELL.

EXERCISE 89

Write (1) five sentences, each containing a verb of incomplete predication completed by a noun; (2) five sentences, each containing a verb of incomplete predication completed by an adjective.

CHAPTER XLV

ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

Tell in how many ways each thought is expressed in the following sentences:—

1. The governor signed the bill.
2. The bill was signed by the governor.
3. A hound chased the deer.
4. The deer was chased by a hound.

A transitive verb may represent its subject as acting or as being acted upon.

A transitive verb that represents its subject as acting is in the active voice; as, Columbus discovered America.

A transitive verb that represents its subject as being acted upon is in the passive voice; as, America was discovered by Columbus.

The object of the verb in the active form becomes the subject of the verb in the passive form. The active voice makes the agent prominent, while the passive voice makes the receiver of the action prominent.

Some verbs usually intransitive become transitive by means of a preposition, and take the passive voice; as, —

He laughed at them.

They were laughed at.

EXERCISE 90

Point out the transitive verbs in the following sentences, and tell the voice of each, giving in each case a reason for your statement: —

1. The frightened animal sought the open country.
2. Our guide had never visited the cave.
3. The building was destroyed by fire, but some of the furniture was saved.
4. The guest was admitted into the parlor.
5. On Christmas eve the bells were rung. — SCOTT.
6. The petition was signed by a number of prominent citizens.
7. He holds him with his glittering eye. — COLERIDGE.
8. Many interesting discoveries were made among these broken cliffs. — HAWTHORNE.

CHAPTER XLVI

MODE

Find in the following sentences a verb that asserts some thing as a fact, one that asserts something as merely thought of or conceived, and one that expresses a command : —

1. He speaks distinctly.
2. If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat.
3. Speak the truth.

The manner of asserting is called the mode of the verb.

A verb that asserts a thing as a fact or asks a direct question is in the indicative mode ; as, —

The river is deep.

Is the river deep?

A verb that asserts something, not as a fact, but as a mere thought or conception, is in the subjunctive mode ; as, —

If he were ill, he would inform us.

Take heed, lest thou fall.

A verb in the subjunctive mode is generally, but not always, used in a subjoined or subordinate clause, introduced by if, though, lest, unless, except, or some similar word. These words, however, are not always followed by the subjunctive. When the verb in a subordinate clause implies doubt, it is in the subjunctive mode, but when it expresses probability or certainty, it is in the indicative mode ; as, —

If the law be unjust [doubt is implied about the unjustness of the law], it should be repealed. (Subjunctive mode.)

If the law is unjust [the unjustness of the law is assumed as a fact], let it be repealed. (Indicative mode.)

Sometimes the introductory conjunction is omitted. The verb is then placed before the subject; as, —

Were it possible [if it were possible], I would assist you.

SUBJUNCTIVE FORMS

The subjunctive mode cannot always be distinguished from the indicative mode by the form of the verb. The difference in form between the indicative and the subjunctive is shown most clearly in the case of the verb be. Thus, the form be is used instead of am, art, is, and are in the subjunctive present; and were and were are used instead of was and wast in the subjunctive past; as, —

If I am, if she is, if he was. (Indicative forms.)

If I be, if she be, if he were. (Subjunctive forms.)

In other verbs, the subjunctive forms differ from those of the indicative only in the second and third persons singular of the present tense, which omit the endings est and s of the indicative; as, —

Thou findest, he finds. (Indicative forms.)

If thou find, if he find. (Subjunctive forms.)

As the second person singular is now seldom used, the only marked difference of inflection is in the third person.

USES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE MODE

The most common uses of the subjunctive mode are —

(1) To express a condition as doubtful or contrary to fact ;
as, —

If thou be a king [doubt], where is thy crown?

If he were here [as he is not], he could explain the matter.

(2) To express a concession ; as, —

Though justice be thy plea, consider this.

(3) To express purpose ; as, —

Judge not, that ye be not judged.

Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

(4) To express a wish ; as, —

God be with you !

O that the day were done !

The subjunctive mode, as a distinct form, is going out of use. The only subjunctive form left which is still common both in writing and in conversation is were, in such expressions as "If I were you." The place of the subjunctive is generally supplied in modern English either by the indicative mode or by phrases made up of the auxiliaries may, might, could, would, or should, with an infinitive.

A verb that expresses a command or an entreaty is in the imperative mode ; as, —

Close the gate.

Forgive us our debts.

EXERCISE 91

Tell the mode of each italicized verb in the following sentences, giving reasons for your statements:—

1. Consider the lilies of the field.
2. I stand upon my native hills again.
3. Though this be madness, yet there is method in it.
4. Turn away thine eyes, lest they behold vanity.
5. Though he slay me, yet will I trust him.
6. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow.
7. If I were hungry, I would not tell thee.
8. Though thou detain me, I will not eat of the bread.
9. Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty.
10. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done.
11. If it bear the test, it will be accepted.
12. If it bears the test, it will not be used.
13. See that thou tell no man.
14. Some heavenly power guide us hence.
15. Judge not, that ye be not judged.
16. Beware, lest thou be led into temptation.
17. Last night the moon had a golden ring,
 And to-night no moon we see. — LONGFELLOW.
18. If fortune serve me, I'll requite this kindness. — SHAKESPEARE.

EXERCISE 92

State the use of each verb in the subjunctive mode in the preceding exercise.

EXERCISE 93

Write (1) three sentences, each containing a verb in the indicative mode; (2) three sentences, each containing a verb in the subjunctive mode; (3) three sentences, each containing a verb in the imperative mode.

CHAPTER XLVII

THE INFINITIVE

Certain forms of the verb do not assert action of a subject, but name action or being, like nouns; thus, —

1. To err is human.
2. They hope to succeed.

The verb form that names action or being, like a noun, without asserting it of a subject, is an infinitive.

According to their form, infinitives are of two kinds: —

I. THE ROOT INFINITIVE

One is the simple form or root of the verb, alone or preceded by to; as, —

SIMPLE FORM

*(Alone)*He can go.

SIMPLE FORM

*(With to)*He expects to go.

This is called the root infinitive, or simply the infinitive.

The root infinitive is usually preceded by to,¹ which is called the sign of the infinitive.

¹ To was originally a preposition, used with the infinitive only in certain relations. It is now a mere prefix, or sign of the infinitive, in most of its uses. As the form with to is the only one of the infinitive forms that is distinctive, it is commonly called the infinitive. The other forms are, however, equally true infinitives in origin and in use.

But the simple form of the infinitive without to is used after the verbs can, may, must, shall, and will, and usually after certain other verbs, such as bid, dare, do, let, make, need, hear, and see; as, —

1. You may ride.
2. Must you walk?
3. I will pay the debt.
4. Let him speak.
5. You need not come.

Like a noun, the infinitive is used as subject or object; and, like a verb, it may take an object, if derived from a transitive verb, and may have adverbial modifiers; as, —

1. To retreat is impossible. (Subject.)
2. I expect to go. (Object.)
3. Cease to do evil. (With object.)
4. Strive to speak distinctly. (With adverbial modifier.)

II. THE INFINITIVE IN -ing

The other infinitive is the simple form of the verb with the ending -ing; as, —

Learn the luxury of doing good.

This is the infinitive in -ing. It is also called the participial infinitive or gerund.

The infinitive in -ing has the use of a noun with some of the constructions of the verb. It may be used as subject or object; it may take an object; and it may have adverbial modifiers; as, —

1. Doing nothing is tiresome. (Subject with object.)
2. He enjoys travelling slowly. (Object with adverbial modifier.)

The infinitive in -ing may also take a possessive modifier :
as, —

This prevented his finding the path.

Other uses of the infinitive are given on pages 209–211.

EXERCISE 94

Classify the infinitives in the following sentences, giving reasons for your statements : —

1. I like to look on a scene like this.
2. Let music swell the breeze.
3. The rain had ceased to patter, and now began to fall with a steady determination.
4. There was no difficulty in finding the river.
5. But where to find that happiest spot below,
Who can direct, when all pretend to know? — GOLDSMITH.
6. A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one. — DR. JOHNSON.
7. He hears the parson pray and preach. — LONGFELLOW.
8. As he approached the stream, his heart began to thump.
— IRVING.
9. But it must be understood that we did not go to see the Pyramids. We went only to look at them. — AMELIA B. EDWARDS.
10. There are two opposite ways by which some men make a figure in the world ; one by talking faster than they think, and the other by holding their tongues and not thinking at all. — IRVING.

EXERCISE 95

Write sentences containing (1) root infinitives ; (2) infinitives in -ing formed from the following verbs : — find	break	choose	lose	sell build	hear	spend	meet	have

CHAPTER XLVIII

THE PARTICIPLE

Tell of what verbs the italicized words are forms, and which parts of speech they most resemble:—

1. Out came the children running.
2. We beheld a horseman approaching leisurely.
3. The company, seated round the fire, welcomed the stranger.
4. We sailed by an island covered with large trees.

The verb form that is used as an adjective is called a participle. The participle does not assert, but assumes or implies action or being. It takes modifiers like a verb, but qualifies a noun or pronoun, like an adjective. The participle of a transitive verb takes an object.

A participle that denotes unfinished action is a present or imperfect participle; as, hearing, writing.

A participle that denotes finished action is a past or perfect participle; as, heard, written.

EXERCISE 96

Select the participles in the following sentences, state the kind, and tell what each modifies:—

1. I heard my own mountain goats bleating aloft. — CAMPBELL.
2. Toiling, — rejoicing, — sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes. — LONGFELLOW.
3. The passengers, warned by the helmsman, retreated into the cabin. — LOSSING.
4. While I lay musing on my pillow, I heard the sound of little feet pattering outside of the door. — IRVING.

5. Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the withered leaves lie dead. — BRYANT.

6. Looking out of the window, I saw a crow perched upon the edge of the nest. — BURROUGHS.

7. Yonder sat a tailor cross-legged, making a waistcoat ; near him, stretched on his face at full length, sprawled a basket-maker with his half-woven basket and bundles of rushes beside him ; and here, close against the main entrance, lay a blind man and his dog ; the master asleep, the dog keeping watch. — AMELIA B. EDWARDS.

8. Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again. — BRYANT.

EXERCISE 97

(1) Write six sentences containing present participles.

(2) Write six sentences containing perfect participles.

VERB FORMS IN -ing

The verb form ending in -ing has four uses :—

(1) As a present participle, which, as has been shown, is an adjective in use with some of the constructions of the verb ; thus, —

He hears his daughter's voice,
Singing in the village choir.

(2) As an infinitive, which is a noun in use with some of the constructions of the verb ; thus, —

They spent the evening in singing carols.
She is fond of reading aloud.
We did not think of his coming so soon.

(3) As a noun. When the verb form in -ing has the ordinary inflections and constructions of the noun without any verb constructions, it is merely an abstract noun.¹ The verbal abstract noun may take an article before it, and it may be joined to a following noun by a preposition, just as an ordinary noun may be, but it cannot take an object as an infinitive can; thus, —

The time of the singing of birds has come.

We came to an opening in the wood.

Blessings brighten as they take their flight.

(4) As an adjective. The participial adjective² expresses not action, but quality; thus, —

A singing bird on every bough.

She has a most charming manner.

EXERCISE 98

Distinguish between the different verb forms in -ing in the following sentences, and tell how each is used:—

1. The darting swallows soar and sing.
2. After standing a long time at the end of the wharf, gazing seaward, the strangers began to stray into the town.
3. Coming back we met two or three more regiments.
4. I had now given up all expectation of finding the road.
5. One could wander for miles through this forest without meeting a person, or hearing a sound, other than the occasional chatter of a squirrel, the song of a bird, or the sighing of the wind through the branches overhead.
6. Hark! from the murmuring clods I hear
Glad voices of the coming year. — BRYANT.

7. There's a merry brown thrush sitting up in a tree.

— LUCY LARCOM.

8. But sorrow returned with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.

— CAMPBELL.

EXERCISE 90

Write sentences containing a verb form in -ing used (1) as a present participle; (2) as an infinitive; (3) as a noun; (4) as an adjective.

CHAPTER XLIX

TENSE

Tell what time each verb expresses in the following sentences, and mention the different forms of the verb:—

1. I see the light.
2. I saw the light.
3. I shall see the light.

The form of the verb that expresses the time of the action is called tense.

Since there are three divisions of time—present, past, and future, there are three leading tenses—present, past, and future.

A verb that denotes present time is in the present tense; as, I hear.

A verb that denotes past time is in the past tense; as, I heard.

A verb that denotes future time is in the future tense; as, I shall hear.

Besides these three leading tenses, there are three perfect tenses, which denote action as finished or completed.

A verb that denotes an action as completed at the present time is in the present perfect tense; as, —

I have heard the speaker.

He has finished the work.

A verb that denotes an action as having been completed before some past time is in the past perfect or pluperfect tense; as, —

He had heard the report.

A verb that denotes an action which is to be completed before some future time is in the future perfect tense; as, —

I shall have heard the lecture.

He will have heard the lecture.

FORMATION OF TENSES

Tell which tenses are indicated by the form of the verb itself, and which are made by the aid of other verbs:—

TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE MODE

PRESENT. I write

PRESENT PERFECT. I have written

PAST. I wrote

PAST PERFECT. I had written

FUTURE. I shall write

FUTURE PERFECT. I shall have written

Only two tenses, the present and the past, are indicated by the form of the verb itself. The other tenses are expressed by the aid of other verbs, called auxiliary verbs.

The future tense is made up of the verb shall or will and the infinitive, without to, of the verb expressing the action.

Shall is used in the first person, and will in the second and third persons, to announce future action. (See Chapter LIII.)

The present perfect tense is made up of the present of the auxiliary verb have and the perfect participle of the principal verb.

The past perfect tense is made up of the past of the auxiliary verb have and the perfect participle of the principal verb.

The future perfect tense is made up of the auxiliary shall or will and the perfect infinitive of the verb expressing the action.

EXERCISE 100

Point out the verbs in the following sentences, and name the tense of each:—

1. We started late in the afternoon of the first day.
2. There is a land of pure delight.
3. I had now come in sight of the house.
4. A ship-of-war arrived unexpectedly in the bay.
5. The walls of this most curious and interesting fortress have probably lost much of their original height.
6. Over the sea our galleys went.
7. The moon had risen, but the breeze had dropped.
8. A cuckoo's nest is a very simple affair, but it will bear close study.—M. THOMPSON.
9. Short space he stood,—then waved his hand:
 Down sunk the disappearing band.—SCOTT.
10. It is a strange thing how little, in general, people know about the sky.—RUSKIN.

11. Other soldiers heard the noise, and ran hastily from the barracks to assist their comrades.—HAWTHORNE.

12. My heart leaps up when I behold
 A rainbow in the sky;
 So was it when my life began,
 So is it now I am a man.—WORDSWORTH.

EXERCISE 101

Write six tense forms for each of the following verbs, to be used with the subject I:—

find	break	come	drive	forget
give	know	see	draw	sell

PERSON AND NUMBER

Tell how many forms of the verb hear are used with the different subjects in the following, and give the endings of the special forms:—

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
First Person.	I hear	We hear
Second Person.	Thou hearest	You hear
Third Person.	He hears	They hear

The different forms that a verb takes to correspond to the person and the number of its subject are called person and number forms.

The second person singular has the ending est or st in both the present and the past tenses of the indicative mode; as, —

Present. Thou plantest; thou seest.

Past. Thou plantedst; thou sawst.

The third person singular has, in the present indicative, the ending s or es and the old forms eth or th; as, —

She sleeps or she sleepeth.

He does or he doth or he doeth.

The forms with thou and the forms in th or eth are now seldom used, except in prayer and in poetry.

With the exception of the verb be, the first person singular and the plural forms for all the persons have no endings to mark person or number.

The verb be has different forms for the singular and the plural in the present and past tenses of the indicative mode; as, —

SINGULAR

PLURAL

I am

We, you, or they are

I was

We, you, or they were

EXERCISE 102

Write the forms of the following verbs required for the subjects I, thou, he, and we, in the indicative present: — draw hear move speak

sing

see stand

choose lift come find forget know take stand

FORMS OF VERBS

Tell how the past tenses of the following verbs are formed:—

PRESENT	PAST	PERF. PART.	PRESENT	PAST	PERF. PART.
plant	planted	planted	fall	fell	fallen
look	looked	looked	throw	threw	thrown live	lived	lived	give	gave	given

A verb that forms its past tense by adding ed or d to the present is a regular verb; as, walk, walked; move, moved.

A verb that does not form its past tense by adding ed or d to the present is an irregular verb; as, drive, drove; give, gave.

Some verbs have both regular and irregular forms; as, build, builded or built; kneel, kneeled or knelt.

Verbs that have more than one form for the past tense or perfect participle are said to be redundant.

The present tense, the past tense, and the perfect participle are called the principal parts of a verb, since all the other parts can be found when these three parts are known.

A verb that lacks any of the principal parts is called defective; as,—

CHAPTER LII

AUXILIARY VERBS

Compare the italicized verbs in the following sentences, and tell which express their own proper meanings and which help other verbs to express their meanings :—

1. Trees have roots.
2. The leaves have fallen.
3. It was an ancient mariner.
4. How cheerfully the week was spent !

Verbs that are used to help or complete the conjugation of other verbs, are said to be used as auxiliaries, and are then called auxiliary verbs ; as, —

The rain had ceased.

EXERCISE 109

Point out the verbs in the following sentences, and show which are used as auxiliary verbs : —

1. The days are cold, the nights are long.
2. The sower's task is done.
3. Some of the men had no muskets, and almost all were without bayonets.
4. The boats had difficulty in landing.
5. I have had playmates : I have had companions.
6. By fairy hands their knell is rung.
7. There was a sound of revelry by night.
8. The cabin was surrounded by a dense forest.
9. They know not what they do.
10. He did receive the message.
11. His face did shine as the sun.
12. I shall not look upon his like again.
13. If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?
14. He will not do the work.
15. Who trusts the strength will with the burden grow.
16. The mountain and the squirrel
 Had a quarrel.

The verbs have, do, shall, will, and be are used as auxiliary verbs with the participles or infinitives of other verbs to form tense and voice. They have the following forms : —

¹ In ordinary speech, the pronoun you has taken the place of the singular form thou; but you is plural, and takes a plural verb.

Have as an Auxiliary Verb

The verb have is used as auxiliary with the perfect participle of a verb, to form the perfect tenses, each part of have forming the corresponding perfect ; as, —

Present Perfect.	I have seen
Past Perfect.	I had seen
Future Perfect.	I shall have seen
Perfect Infinitives.	(To) have seen ; having seen
Perfect Participle.	Having seen

Have as an Independent Verb

When have expresses possession it is an independent verb ; as, —

Birds of the air have nests.

EXERCISE 104

Tell whether the verb have in the following sentences is an independent verb or an auxiliary verb, giving a reason in each case : —

1. If you have tears, prepare to shed them now. — SHAKESPEARE.
2. "Have then thy wish !" He whistled shrill,
And he was answered from the hill. — SCOTT.
3. Yes : he had lived to shame me from my sneer. — TAYLOR.
4. The sun had scarcely risen when the messenger arrived.
5. Greatly begin ! though you have time
But for a line, be that sublime. — LOWELL.
6. The things which I have seen, I now can see no more.
7. The fondness for rural life among the higher classes of the English, has had a great and salutary effect upon the national character.

— IRVING.

Shall and will are used with the infinitive of a verb, to form the future tense. Shall is an auxiliary of the future in the first person, and will in the second and third persons; as, —

I shall pass the house this afternoon.

You will be too late.

He will bring the papers.

To make a promise or to express the determination of the speaker, will is used in the first person and shall in the second and third persons; as, —

I will do the errand.

I will have my bond.

You shall not escape.

He shall receive the reward.

Shall is used in asking questions in the first person ; as, —

Shall I ring the bell? (The action is dependent on the will of the person addressed.)

Either shall or will is used, according to the answer expected, in asking questions in the second and third persons ; as, —

Shall you sign the paper? (I shall sign the paper.)

Will you give me the address? (I will give you the address.)

Should and would, in corresponding cases, are used in the same manner as shall and will ; thus, —

I shall return the book, or I should return the book.

You will find the tree, or you would find the tree.

EXERCISE 105

Explain each use of shall and of will in the following sentences : —

1. To-day the vessel shall be launched. — LONGFELLOW.
2. Take care of your spirit and conduct, and your reputation will take care of itself. — HAMILTON.
3. You will compel me then to read the will. — SHAKESPEARE.
4. Shall I descend? And will you give me leave? — SHAKESPEARE.
5. Hear me, for I will speak. — SHAKESPEARE.
6. Will you be patient? Will you stay awhile? — SHAKESPEARE.
7. If we fail, it can be no worse for us. But we shall not fail. The cause will raise up armies ; the cause will create navies. — WEBSTER.
8. All that breathe will share thy destiny. — BRYANT.
9. Choose ye this day whom ye will serve.

EXERCISE 106

(1) Copy the following sentences, filling the blanks with a form of shall or will. (2) State a reason for the use of each word inserted:—

1. We — go if it does not rain.
2. — you have hot or cold tea?
3. The work — probably be finished to-night.
4. Whither thou goest, I — go; and where thou lodgest, I — lodge.
5. I — lift up mine eyes unto the hills.
6. — I find you at home?
7. He said he — not accept the explanation.
8. I — be pleased to hear from you.

Be as an Auxiliary Verb

The different forms of the verb be are used as auxiliary —

(1) With the perfect participle of a transitive verb to make the passive voice ; as, —

I am seen	I have been seen
I was seen	I had been seen
I shall be seen	I shall have been seen

(2) With the present participle of a verb, to make the progressive form. The progressive form represents an action as continuing or progressing ; as, —

I am reading	I have been reading
I was reading	I had been reading
I shall be reading	I shall have been reading

Be* as an Independent Verb

When not thus used with the participle of another verb, be is an independent verb. It may then —

- (1) Express existence ; as, God is.

(2) Be used as a copula, connecting its subject to a word or words describing the subject ; as, Life is real.

EXERCISE 107

Explain the use of the verb be in each of the following examples :—

1. Life is real! Life is earnest!—LONGFELLOW.
2. I have been a stranger in a strange land.
3. The harp, his sole remaining joy,
 Was carried by an orphan boy.—SCOTT.
4. Yarmouth was a walled town, and a good part of the ancient enclosure has been preserved.
5. If money had been needed before, it was still more needed now.
6. This was accomplished in less than an hour's time.
7. Trade with the colonies was forbidden.
8. Old Kaspar's work was done,
 And he before his cottage door
 Was sitting in the sun.—SOUTHEY.
9. While we were talking, a third messenger arrived.
10. Somewhere the birds are singing evermore.
11. O sweet and strange it seems to me, that ere this day is done,
 The voice, that now is speaking, may be beyond the sun.
12. The city was destroyed by an earthquake.

13. The great iron gateway that opened into the courtyard was locked.—IRVING.

14. Whatever is, is right.—POPE.

15. The old stage-coach is at the door.

16. I stood on the bridge at midnight,
As the clocks were striking the hour.

EXERCISE 108

Copy from the sentences in this lesson (1) all verbs that have the passive form; (2) all verbs that have the progressive form; and explain the formation and the use of each.

EXERCISE 109

(1) Write five sentences, each containing the verb be used as an independent verb.

(2) Write five sentences, each containing a verb in the passive voice.

(3) Write five sentences, each containing a verb in the progressive form.

V.—THE VERB Do

Do as an Auxiliary Verb

The present and past tenses of the verb do are used as auxiliaries with the infinitive without to—

(1) In emphatic assertions; as,—

I do wish you would listen. I did listen.

(2) In interrogative sentences; as,—

Do you hear the bell? Did you see the sail?

(3) In negative sentences; as,—

I do not hear the bell. I did not see a sail.

Do as an Independent Verb

When do is used with the meaning to perform, it is an independent verb; as, Do your duty. He did the work quickly.

EXERCISE 110

Tell whether the verb do is used as an independent or as an auxiliary verb in the following examples, and explain the use of the auxiliaries:—

1. The evil that men do lives after them. — SHAKESPEARE.
2. You all did mark how he did shake. — SHAKESPEARE.
3. She gave me of the tree, and I did eat.
4. You all do know this mantle. — SHAKESPEARE.
5. I do not like your faults.
6. Accuse not nature; she hath done her part:
Do thou but thine. — MILTON.
7. Do not dissipate your energies on trifles. — HAMILTON.
8. Most of the facts of nature, especially in the life of birds and animals, are well screened. We do not see the play, because we do not look intently enough. — JOHN BURROUGHS.
9. Did ye not hear it? — BYRON.
10. A merry heart doeth good like a medicine.

CHAPTER LVAUXILIARIES OF MODE

The auxiliaries can, may, must, could, might, should, and would followed by the infinitive without to, are used to express power, permission, possibility, necessity, and the like. They are called auxiliaries of mode.

The most common uses of these auxiliaries are the following :—

I. Can (past, Could)

Can denotes power or ability ; as, —

She can walk.

They can sing.

Could is used sometimes as the simple past of can, and sometimes in a conditional sense ; as, —

He could [was able to] speak in four languages.

If he could [were able to] sail the boat, he would buy it.

Were he here, he could explain the matter.

II. May (past, Might)

May and might are used —

(1) To express permission ; as, —

You may [are permitted to] enter the room.

He said I might [was permitted to] enter the room.

(2) To express possibility ; as, —

It may [possibly] be so.

He might go if he were invited.

(3) To express purpose ; as, —

Open the gates that they may enter.

He opened the gate that they might enter.

(4) To express a wish ; as, —

May you be happy.

O that they might come to life !

III. Must

Must has no change of form. It expresses necessity ;
as, —

He must have rest.

IV. Should (past tense of shall)

Should is used —

(1) To express duty or obligation ; as, —

Children should obey their parents.

(2) To take the place of shall in indirect speech after a verb in the past tense ; as, —

He said he should go. (He said, " I shall go. ")

(3) To express a conditional assertion (one depending on a condition) and also to express a condition ; as, —

I should attempt the task if I were you.

If I should begin the work, I could not finish it.

Should is past in form, but it does not convey past meaning. It sometimes denotes present time, and sometimes has a future meaning ; as, —

We should prefer duty to pleasure.

If it should rain, the meeting will be postponed.

V. Would (past tense of will)

Would is used —

(1) To express determination ; as, —

She would not sign the paper.

(2) To denote frequent or customary action ; as, —

He would carry a fowling-piece on his shoulder for hours together.

(3) To take the place of will in indirect speech after a verb in the past tense ; as, —

He said that he would come. (He said, "I will come.")

(4) To express a conditional assertion ; as, —

She would buy the book if she could afford it.

Would has sometimes a past meaning, and sometimes a present or future meaning ; as, —

He would not speak when he had the opportunity.

He would not speak if he had the opportunity.

VI. Ought

Ought, the old past tense of the verb owe, expresses duty or obligation. It is similar in use to the foregoing auxiliaries, but differs from them in being followed by the infinitive with to. It is used with the present infinitive to indicate present time, and with the perfect infinitive to indicate past time ; as, —

He ought to go.

He ought to have gone.

In phrases made up of these auxiliaries with an infinitive, the so-called auxiliaries are the real verbs, and the following infinitives are the objects of these verbs ; as, —

You may (verb) go (infinitive).

The verbs in such phrases are in the indicative or the subjunctive mode, according to the manner of the assertion. When they assert something as a fact, they are in the indicative mode; when they assert something as a mere thought or conception, they are in the subjunctive mode; thus, —

INDICATIVE USES

1. I can see a light.
2. They could not find the path.
3. You may read the letter.
4. He said that we might go.
5. You should take regular exercise.
6. He would permit no one to enter the house.

SUBJUNCTIVE USES

1. If I could assist you, I would remain at home.
2. May your friends never fail you !
3. He came that we might have life.
4. I should go if I were you.
5. If he should speak here, he could not be heard.
6. He would not come if he were invited.

But the entire phrase is often treated as a single form. Such phrases taken together are sometimes called potential phrases;¹ and the different forms made by combining the present and perfect infinitives of the verbs expressing the action with the present and past tenses of the auxiliaries are called tenses; thus, —

¹ The phrases made up of the auxiliaries can, may, must, could, might, should, and would with an infinitive, have sometimes been classed together and called the potential mode; but expressions of such opposite meaning as "She may write," "She must write," etc., cannot well be classed as one mode. Furthermore, mode has nothing to do with the meaning of the verb, but relates to the manner of the assertion. The theory of a potential mode has been abandoned by most of the leading grammarians.

He may go. (Present tense.)

He might go. (Past tense.)

He may have gone. (Present perfect tense.)

He might have gone. (Past perfect tense.)

The time indicated, however, by these phrases does not usually correspond to the names of the tense forms.

EXERCISE 111

Tell how the auxiliaries can, may, must, could, might, should, and would are used in the following sentences: —

1. Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime. — LONGFELLOW.
2. For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever. — TENNYSON.
3. He that fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day.
4. It might be well to be cautious in the matter.
5. Wealth may seek us, but wisdom must be sought.
6. It is not what a lawyer tells me I may do, but what humanity, reason, and justice tell me I ought to do. — BURKE.
7. Alas! they had been friends in youth;
But whispering tongues can poison truth.
8. Too late! too late! ye cannot enter now. — TENNYSON.

9. How he could trot ! how he could run ! and then such leaps as he could take — there was not a hedge in the whole country that he could not clear. — IRVING.

10. She must weep or she will die. — TANNYSON.

11. He saw that it would be dark long before he could reach the village. — IRVING.

12. If a storm should come and awake the deep,
What matter ! I shall ride and sleep. — PROCTER.

CHAPTER LVII

DIRECTIONS FOR PARSING VERBS, INFINITIVES, AND PARTICIPLES

I. VERBS

To parse a verb, tell —

1. Its conjugation — regular or irregular, giving its principal parts.
2. Its class — transitive or intransitive.
3. Its voice — active or passive (if transitive).
4. Its mode — indicative, subjunctive, or imperative.
5. Its tense.
6. Its person and number.
7. Its subject.

EXAMPLE 1. — A flat stone marks the spot where the bard is buried.

Marks is a regular verb — mark, marked, marked. It is transitive, active voice, indicative mode, present tense, third person, singular number, agreeing with its subject stone.

Is buried is the passive form of the regular verb bury, — bury, buried, buried. It is transitive, indicative mode, present tense, third person, singular number, agreeing with its subject bard.

EXAMPLE 2. — The dew was falling fast.

Was falling is the progressive form of the irregular verb fall — fall, fell, fallen. It is intransitive, indicative mode, past tense, third person, singular number, agreeing with its subject dew.

EXAMPLE 3. — I may do that I shall be sorry for.

Shall be is the future tense of the verb be. It is irregular, — be, was, been, — intransitive, indicative mode, used with the subject I.

EXAMPLE 4. — Be silent, that you may hear.

Be is an irregular verb — be, was, been — intransitive, imperative mode, present tense, used with the subject you understood.

EXERCISE 116

Parse the verbs in the following sentences : —

1. Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.
2. Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast. — COWPER.
3. The ship is sinking beneath the tide. — SOUTHEY.
4. I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken. — BIBLE.
5. There is a tide in the affairs of men,
 Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune ;
 Omitted, all the voyage of their life
 Is bound in shallows and in miseries. — SHAKESPEARE.
6. The broad sun above laughed a pitiless laugh.
7. The Americans were sheltered by an intervening wood.
8. Some murmur when their sky is clear
 And wholly bright to view,
 If one small speck of dark appear
 In their great heaven of blue. — TRENCH.
9. I dreamed to-night that I did feast with Cæsar.
10. We had had no water since our daylight breakfast ; our lunch on the mountain had been moistened only by the fog.

— C. D. WARNER.

AUXILIARIES OF MODE

In phrases made up of can, may, must, could, might, should, or would, with an infinitive, parse the auxiliary verb and the infinitive separately.

EXAMPLE 1. — How he could run!

Could is a defective verb, transitive, indicative mode, past tense, used with the subject he. Run is the present infinitive of the verb run. It is intransitive, object of the verb could.

Or, simply tell of what two parts (auxiliary and infinitive) the phrase is composed, state the form of each part, and name the subject of the phrase.

EXAMPLE 2. — He should have gone.

Should have gone is a verb phrase made up of the past tense of the verb shall and the perfect infinitive of the intransitive verb go. It is used with the subject he.

EXERCISE 117

Parse the italicized verbs in the following sentences: —

1. Have patience, gentle friends, I must not read it.
2. One may acquire the habit of looking upon the sunny side of things, and he may also acquire the habit of looking upon the gloomy side.
3. Should he go, he could not hear the lecture.
4. We should be as careful of our words as of our actions.
5. He could speak readily in three or four languages.
6. Give me this water that I may not thirst.
7. If you would achieve a high success, you must think for yourself.
8. If I were you, I should attempt the work.
9. The guards told us that we could proceed no farther.

II. INFINITIVES

To parse an infinitive, tell —

1. From what verb it is derived.
2. Its form — present or perfect, active or passive.
3. Its syntax — use in the sentence.

EXAMPLE 1. — The greatest curiosity of the study remains to be mentioned.

To be mentioned is a root infinitive from the transitive verb mention. It is present, passive, and depends upon the verb remains.

EXAMPLE 2. — Form the habit of listening attentively.

Listening is an infinitive in -ing from the verb listen. It is present active, and is used as the object of the preposition of.

EXERCISE 118

Parse the infinitives in the following sentences: —

1. To relieve the wretched was his pride.
2. Remember that when the inheritance devolves upon you, you are not only to enjoy, but to improve.
3. He had the happy knack of starting interesting subjects and saying all sorts of interesting things by the way.
4. Do with all your might whatever you have to do, without thinking of the future.
5. To see is to believe.
6. Seeing is believing.
7. In keeping Thy commandments there is great reward.
8. But talking is not always to converse.

III. PARTICIPLES

To parse a participle, tell —

1. From what verb it is derived.
2. Its form — present or perfect, active or passive.
3. Its syntax — use in the sentence.

EXAMPLE 1. — Looking upward, he saw the moon.

Looking is a present participle, active, from the verb look. It modifies the pronoun he.

EXAMPLE 2. — The ships, anchored in the harbor, were loaded with tea.

Anchored is a perfect participle, passive, from the verb anchor. It modifies the noun ships.

EXERCISE 119

Parse the verbs, the infinitives, and the participles in the following sentences:—

1. I rose softly, opened the door suddenly, and beheld one of the most beautiful little fairy groups that a painter could imagine. — IRVING.

2. Let us enter and pass up the staircase. — HAWTHORNE.

3. In this way they expected to ruin all the merchants, and starve the poor people, by depriving them of employment. — HAWTHORNE.

4. Let me move slowly through the street. — BRYANT.

5. The country was to be defended, and to be saved, before it could be enjoyed. — WEBSTER.

6. We cannot look, however imperfectly, upon a great man without gaining something by him. — CARLYLE.

7. In an attitude imploring,
Hands upon his bosom crossed,
Wondering, worshipping, adoring,
Knelt the Monk in rapture lost. — LONGFELLOW.

8. The rattle of drums, beaten out of all manner of time, was heard above every other sound. — HAWTHORNE.

9. Whatever may be our fate, be assured that this declaration will stand. It may cost treasure, and it may cost blood ; but it will stand, and it will richly compensate for both.

10. You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.

11. For men must work, and women must weep,
Though storms be sudden, and waters deep.

12. The burden laid upon me
Seemed greater than I could bear.

13. Modern majesty consists in work. What a man can do is his greatest ornament, and he always consults his dignity by doing it.
—CARLYLE.

14. The pine, placed nearly always among scenes disordered and desolate, brings into them all possible elements of order and precision. Lowland trees may lean to this side and that, though it is but a meadow breeze that bends them, or a bank of cow-slips from which their trunks lean aslope. But let storm and avalanche do their worst, and let the pine find only a ledge of vertical precipice to cling to, it will nevertheless grow straight.
—RUSKIN.

CHAPTER LVIII

CORRECT USE OF VERBS

I. Lay, Lie

PRESENT	PAST	PRES. PARTICIPLE	PERF. PARTICIPLE
Lay	laid	laying	laid
Lie	lay	lying	lain

Lay is a transitive verb. It means to place or put something in position. Lie is an intransitive verb, meaning to rest.

Re-write the following sentences, using the proper verb or form from each parenthesis. Give a reason for your choice :—

1. I (set, sat) in this seat last night.
2. The hen is (sitting, setting) on twelve eggs.
3. He had (sat, set) under that tree for an hour.
4. The gardener is (sitting, setting) out strawberry plants.

Copy the following sentences, filling the blanks with the proper form of learn or teach:—

1. He — the child to sing.
2. Clara — her lesson quickly.
3. The pupils are — a new song.
4. Where did this boy — to speak French?
5. Who — you to skate?
6. We are — to sketch from nature.
7. Take my yoke upon you, and — of me.
8. There, in his noisy mansion skilled to rule,
 The village master — his little school.
9. The teacher — us a new song.
10. The master — John, and John — his lesson quickly.

CHAPTER LIX

REVIEW OF VERBS

EXERCISE 126

Define a verb. What is a transitive verb? What is an intransitive verb? Mention a word that may be a transitive verb in one sentence, and an intransitive verb in another.

What inflections have verbs? What is meant by voice? How many voices are there? What does each denote? How is the passive voice formed?

What is meant by mode? How many modes are there? Define, and give examples of each.

What is tense? Name the three leading tenses. Which tenses are indicated by inflection, and which by the aid of other verbs?

What person-forms has the verb? What number-forms?

How do the infinitive and the participle differ from the verb? How do they differ from each other? Which part of speech is the infinitive most like? The participle? Mention four different verbal forms ending in -ing, and state the characteristics of each.

What are the principal parts of a verb? What is a regular verb? An irregular verb? Name a verb that has both regular and irregular forms. Name a verb that has the same form for the present tense, the past tense, and the perfect participle.

What is meant by conjugating a verb?

When is a verb said to be used as an auxiliary? Mention three verbs that may be used as either independent or auxiliary verbs, and give examples of each use. What auxiliary is used in forming the passive voice? Which of the auxiliaries are tense auxiliaries? How are they used?

CHAPTER LX

CLASSES OF ADVERBS

I. CLASSIFICATION ACCORDING TO MEANING

Point out the adverbs in the following sentences, and tell what each expresses:—

1. Now came still evening on.
2. Ah! then and there was hurrying to and fro.
3. Days brightly came and calmly went.
4. It is a very difficult task.

(1) Adverbs that show when or how often are adverbs of time; as, now, then, to-day, yesterday, early, presently, soon, always, often, once, twice, daily, again.

(2) Adverbs that show where are adverbs of place; as, here, there, hither, thither, hence, thence, somewhere, yonder, above, below, up, down, away, off, far.

The word there is not always an adverb of place. Sometimes it is used merely to introduce a sentence, in order that the verb may be placed before its subject. When it is used to introduce a sentence in this manner, it is called an expletive; as,—

There [expletive] was a sound of revelry by night.

There [adverb of place] groups of merry children played.

(3) Adverbs that show how are adverbs of manner; as, well, ill, badly, slowly, quickly, clearly, together, so, thus.

(4) Adverbs that show how much are adverbs of degree; as, very, much, little, only, almost, enough, quite, too, so, as.

II. CLASSIFICATION ACCORDING TO USE

Tell how each adverb is used in the following sentences:—

1. The guests withdrew silently.
2. The tree lies where it fell.
3. Where can rest be found?

(1) An adverb that simply modifies another word is a simple adverb; as, He walked rapidly.

(2) An adverb that not only modifies a word, but also connects the clause of which it is a part with the remainder of the sentence, is a conjunctive adverb; as, He came when he was called.

The most common words of this class are when, where, whence, whither, how, and why. These are also called adverbial conjunctions.

(3) An adverb that is used to ask a question is an interrogative adverb; as, Where did he stand?

EXERCISE 128

Find the conjunctive and the interrogative adverbs in the following sentences, and tell how each is used:—

1. Why are we here?
2. Some murmur when their sky is clear.
3. You take my house when you do take the prop
That doth sustain my house; you take my life
When you do take the means whereby I live.

— SHAKESPEARE.

4. When I look upon the tombs of the great, every emotion of envy dies in me.

5. Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood.

In brighter light, and softer airs, a beauteous sisterhood?

—BRYANT.

CHAPTER LXI

COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

Some adverbs, like adjectives, admit of comparison. A few are compared by inflection; as, soon, sooner, soonest. Most adverbs form the comparative and superlative degrees by the use of more and most; as, wisely, more wisely, most wisely.

The following adverbs are compared irregularly:—

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
badly, ill	worse	worst
far	farther, further	farthest, furthest
late	later	latest, last little	less	least
much	more	most
nigh, near	nearer	nearest, next
well	better	best

EXERCISE 129

Write the comparison of the following adverbs:—

last	often	swiftly	next	ill
nigh	more	well	fast	distinctly

CHAPTER LXII

HOW TO PARSE ADVERBS

To parse an adverb, tell —

1. The kind of adverb.
2. Its degree, if comparative or superlative.
3. Its construction — what it modifies.

EXAMPLE 1. — He then touched briefly upon the prominent events of the Revolution.

Then is an adverb of time, modifying the verb touched.

Briefly is an adverb of manner, modifying the verb touched.

EXAMPLE 2. — I remember, I remember

The house where I was born.

Where is a conjunctive adverb, showing place. It modifies the verb was born, and connects the clause "where I was born" with the word house.

EXAMPLE 3. — When did he go?

When is an interrogative adverb of time, modifying the verb did go.

EXERCISE 130

Parse the adverbs and the adjectives in the following sentences: —

1. He lives long that lives well.
2. Still waters run deep.
3. Welcome her, all things youthful and sweet!

4. Then they praised him soft and low.
5. He drank of the water so cool and clear. — SOUTHEY.
6. How fast the flitting figures come ! — BRYANT.
7. Down swept the chill wind from the mountain peak,
8. The door in the mountain-side shut fast.
9. A wondrous portal opened wide. — BROWNING.
10. The tumult grew louder.
11. Louder still the minstrels blew.
12. Colder and louder blew the wind,
 A gale from the Northeast. — LONGFELLOW.
13. There in the twilight cold and gray,
 Lifeless, but beautiful, he lay. — LONGFELLOW.
14. And there lay the steed with his nostril all wide,
 But through it there rolled not the breath of his pride.
15. There is nothing like a primeval wood for color on a sunny day. — C. D. WARNER.
16. Why stand ye here all the day idle? — BIBLE.
17. Oh ! what a tangled web we weave,
 When first we practice to deceive. — SCOTT.
18. O Solitude ! where are the charms
 That sages have seen in thy face? — COWPER.
19. O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? — KNOX.
20. The rain is falling where they lie. — BRYANT.

CHAPTER LXIII

ADVERBS DISTINGUISHED FROM ADJECTIVES

Tell whether the italicized words in the following sentences are adjectives or adverbs, giving a reason in each case:—

1. She looks cold.
2. She looked coldly on the project.
3. The apple feels hard.
4. He works hard.

Be careful to discriminate between an adjective used to complete the predicate and an adverb used to modify the verb. An adjective is used when the quality or condition of the subject is given, and an adverb, when the manner of the action is described; as,—

The child seems happy (adjective).

He lived happily (adverb).

Do not use an adjective where an adverb is required; as,—

I am very tired (not real tired).

He is somewhat better (not some better).

She answered promptly (not prompt).

In poetry an adjective is sometimes used for an adverb; as,—

Silent rows the gondolier.

Some adverbs are identical in form with adjectives; as, much, little, far, ill, hard, loud, soft, fast.

EXERCISE 131

Copy the following sentences, inserting the proper word from each parenthesis. Give in each case a reason for your choice :—

1. She looked (beautiful, beautifully).
2. How (charming, charmingly) she sang.
3. The sentinel stood (firm, firmly) at his post.
4. Set the tree (firm, firmly).
5. The judge looked (sharp, sharply) at the prisoner.
6. We climbed the hill (easy, easily).
7. This is an (uncommon, uncommonly) large tree.
8. The patient is (some, somewhat) better.
9. It was a (remarkable, remarkably) clear night.
10. He was an (unusual, unusually) interesting speaker.
11. I am (real, very) sorry that you cannot join our party.
12. This milk tastes (sour, sourly).
13. The boy reads (clear, clearly) and (distinct, distinctly).
14. He is (some, somewhat) hoarse.
15. The bell sounded (clear, clearly).
16. The notes of the grackle sound (harsh, harshly).
17. How (quiet, quietly) the snow falls !
18. The speaker did not quote that passage (accurate, accurately).

EXERCISE 132REVIEW OF ADVERBS

What is an adverb? How are adverbs classified with respect to meaning? Give an example of each class. How are they classified with respect to use? State the two offices of a conjunctive adverb. Give an example of an interrogative adverb. Mention five adverbs that admit of comparison, and give the comparison of each. In what way are adjectives and adverbs alike? How do they differ?

CHAPTER LXIV

CLASSES OF PHRASES

I. CLASSIFICATION ACCORDING TO FORM

Read the phrases¹ in the following examples, and tell by what each phrase is introduced:—

1. The tree on the corner is an elm.

3. They saw a small vessel approaching the shore.
4. At last, turning briskly away, she came toward the table.
5. We are anxious to learn the result.
6. He was unable to convince this man of his error.
7. Not one of these men offered to lend his assistance.
8. Down plunged the diver, and soon rose dripping from the water, holding the sea-shrub in his hand.
9. To love one's country has ever been esteemed honorable.
10. And out again I curve and flow
 To join the brimming river.

EXERCISE 134

Write sentences containing (1) a prepositional phrase used like an adjective; (2) a prepositional phrase used like an adverb; (3) a participial phrase used like an adjective;

- (4) an infinitive phrase used as the subject of a verb;
- (5) an infinitive phrase used as the object of a verb.

II. CLASSIFICATION ACCORDING TO USE

State the office of each phrase in the following examples:—

- 1. The decision of the judge was just.
- 2. The house stands on a high hill.
- 3. To defer action will be unwise.
- 4. He refused to open the gate.

(1) A phrase that performs the office of an adjective is an adjective phrase; as,—

- 1. The doors of the church were open.
- 2. He beheld a stranger standing near him.
- 3. Listen to the song of the bird.

(2) A phrase that performs the office of an adverb is an adverbial phrase; as,—

- 1. They landed on an island.
- 2. He came to inspect the work.
- 3. The house stood on this corner.

(2) A phrase that performs the office of a noun is a noun phrase; as,—

- 1. To please all is impossible.
- 2. We hope to hear the speaker.

EXERCISE 135

Find the adjective, the adverbial, and the noun phrases in the following examples, and tell how each is used: —

1. In happy homes he saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright.
2. Religion dwells not in the tongue, but in the heart.
3. Hark ! I hear the bugles of the enemy.
4. A lamp was burning in the little chapel.
5. Rise with the lark.
6. It was one by the village clock.
7. The newly elected member went in state to the City Cross, accompanied by a band of music.
8. The doors of the prison closed upon him.
9. Around the walls stood several oak bookcases.
10. The edges and corners of the box were carved with most wonderful skill.
11. You must change your style of living.
12. Point thy tongue on the anvil of truth.
13. It stands on a mound which elevates it above the other parts of the castle, and a great flight of steps leads to the interior.
14. The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
15. Cease to do evil ; learn to do well.
16. Here delicate snow-stars, out of the cloud,
Come floating downward in airy play.

EXERCISE 136

Write (1) five sentences, each containing an adjective phrase; (2) five sentences, each containing an adverbial phrase; (3) two sentences, each containing a noun phrase.

CHAPTER LXV

PREPOSITIONS

Tell what the following prepositions connect, and what relations they express:—

1. He stood on the bridge.
2. 'Twas the night before Christmas.
3. The tree was struck by lightning.
4. He died for his country.
5. The eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill.

Prepositions express such a variety of relations that they cannot be easily classified according to meaning. The most common relations expressed by prepositions are —

(1) Place or direction; as, At home; towards the bridge; below the falls.

(2) Time; as, After breakfast; till noon; since morning.

(3) Agency, instrumentality, or means; as, Killed by frost; cut with a hatchet; lost through carelessness.

(4) Cause or purpose; as, Thankful for good health; he votes from principle.

(5) Possession; as, The voice of the speaker; the beauty of the rose; the blade of the knife.

(6) Definition; as, The virtue of temperance; the city of Rome.

(7) Object; as, The fear of death; the hope of reward.

Many other relations are implied, such as reference, expressed by about; association, by with; separation, by from; opposition, by against; substitution, by for; etc.

The words most commonly used as prepositions are the following :—

about	athwart	from	to above	before	in	toward across	behind	into	towards after	below	of	under against	beneath	off	underneath
along	beside	on	until amid	besides	over	unto amidst	between	round	up
among	beyond	since	upon
amongst	by	through	with around	down	throughout	within at	for	till	without

Concerning, during, notwithstanding, regarding, respecting touching, and a few similar words of participial form are usually classed as prepositions.

Certain phrases are used with the force of single prepositions. They are called compound prepositions; as, according to, in place of, in regard to, instead of, out of, on account of.

ORDER OF PARSING PREPOSITIONS

To parse a preposition,—

- (1) Name the part of speech.
- (2) Tell with what word it connects its object.
- (3) State the relation shown.¹

EXAMPLE. — He goes on Sunday to the church.

—LONGFELLOW.

¹ With young pupils, the third step may be omitted.

1. On is a preposition, connecting the noun Sunday with the verb goes, and showing the relation of time.
2. To is a preposition, connecting the noun church with the verb goes, and showing the relation of place.

EXERCISE 137

Parse the prepositions in the following sentences, and tell the use of each prepositional phrase:—

1. At midnight, however, I was aroused by the tramp of horses' hoofs in the yard.
2. Great turtles came up out of the water, and crawled along on a sandy place.—M. THOMPSON.
3. The scheme failed for want of support.
4. The love that leads the willing spheres
 Along the unending track of years
 And watches o'er the sparrow's nest,
 Shall brood above thy winter rest. — BRYANT.
5. With my cross-bow
 I shot the Albatross. — COLERIDGE.
6. The little bird sits at his door in the sun. — LOWELL.
7. On the cross-beam under the Old South bell
 The nest of a pigeon is builded well.
 In summer and winter that bird is there,
 Out and in with the morning air;
 I love to see him track the street,
 With his wary eye and active feet;
 And I often watch him as he springs,
 Circling the steeple with easy wings,
 Till across the dial his shade has passed,
 And the belfry edge is gained at last. — N. P. WILLIS.

CHAPTER LXVI

CLASSES OF CONJUNCTIONS

I. COÖRDINATING CONJUNCTIONS

Find in the following examples conjunctions that connect words, phrases, or clauses of like kind, or having the same relation to the rest of the sentence:—

1. Art is long, and time is fleeting.
2. Games and carols closed the day.
3. The house was silent and deserted.
4. You see where Warren fell, and where other patriots fell with him.

Words, phrases, and clauses of like kind, or standing in the same relation to the rest of the sentence, are said to have the same construction or to be of equal rank. Conjunctions that connect words, phrases, or clauses of equal rank, are coördinating conjunctions. They may connect—

(1) Two independent clauses; as, Be diligent, and you will succeed.

(2) Two words in the same construction; as, The minstrel was infirm and old.

(3) Two phrases in the same construction; as, They are alike in voice and in manner.

(4) Two dependent clauses in the same construction; as, No one could tell whence they came or whither they went

Coördinating conjunctions are divided into the following classes:—

(1) Copulative, those that join similar parts; as, and, also, besides, likewise, moreover.

(2) Adversative, those that join parts opposed in meaning; as, but, yet, however, still, nevertheless, notwithstanding.

(3) Alternative, those that imply a choice between two; as, either—or, neither—nor, whether—or.

(4) Causal, those that express cause or consequence; as, for, therefore, hence, consequently.

Conjunctions used in pairs are called correlatives; as, both—and, either—or, neither—nor, not—but, not only—but.

EXERCISE 138

Point out the coordinating conjunctions in the following examples, and tell what they join:—

1. The shower was now over, and a rainbow above the eastern wood promised a fair evening.

2. Either he is talking, or he is pursuing.

3. Through days of sorrow and of mirth.

4. Be just, and fear not.

5. He calls on the people not only to defend, but to study and understand their rights and privileges.

6. This lesson is plain, and easily applied.

7. Their route now lay over rough ground, and their progress was slow.

8. He was interrupted by the flash and report of a rifle.

9. We know what we are, but know not what we may be.

10. The time we live ought not to be computed by the number of years, but by the use that has been made of them.

11. Virtuous and wise he was, yet not severe.
12. I know not whether to go or to remain.
13. He does not deserve to succeed ; for he will not put forth effort.
14. Give me neither poverty nor riches.
15. He was small of stature, and slight in frame.
16. Read not to contradict, nor to believe, but to weigh and consider.

II. SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS

Name the dependent clause in each of the following sentences, state its use, and tell how it is joined to the principal clause :--

1. I would grant your request if I could.
2. He came, because he was needed.
3. Be silent, that you may hear.

Conjunctions that connect a dependent or subordinate clause to a principal clause are subordinating conjunctions. They denote—

- (1) Time ; as, after, before, ere, since, till, when, while, as.
- (2) Place ; as, where, whence.
- (3) Manner and comparison ; as, than, as.
- (4) Cause or reason ; as, because, since, as, that, whereas.
- (5) End or purpose ; as, that, lest.
- (6) Condition ; as, if, unless, except.
- (7) Concession ; as, though, although.

Certain phrases performing the office of conjunctions may be called compound conjunctions ; as, but also, as well as, as if, as though.

EXERCISE 139

Find the subordinating conjunctions in the following sentences, and tell what each denotes:—

1. I have not seen him since he was a child.
2. He labored earnestly that abuses might be reformed.
3. Love not sleep lest thou come to poverty.
4. Live well that you may die well
5. His stories are good to hear at night, because we can dream about them asleep; and good in the morning, too, because then we can dream about them awake.
6. Now had the season returned when the nights grow colder and longer.
7. A clownish air is but a small defect; yet it is enough to make a man disagreeable.
8. Since we must fight it through, why not put ourselves in a state to enjoy all the benefit of victory, if we gain the victory.
9. A great black cloud had been gathering in the sky for some time past, although it had not overspread the sun.
10. Speak clearly, if you would be understood.

CHAPTER LXVII

HOW TO PARSE CONJUNCTIONS

To parse a conjunction, tell—

1. Its class—coördinating or subordinating.
2. Its use—state what it connects.

EXAMPLE 1.—Hear me for my cause, and be silent, that you may hear.

1. And is a coördinating conjunction, connecting the two independent members, "Hear me for my cause," and "be silent, that you may hear."

2. That is a subordinating conjunction, connecting the subordinate clause, "you may hear," to the principal clause, "be silent."

EXAMPLE 2. — Is the night chilly and dark?

1. And is a coördinating conjunction, connecting the two adjectives chilly and dark.

EXERCISE 140

Parse the conjunctions in the following sentences:—

1. My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears:
My limbs are bowed, though not with toil,
But rusted with a vile repose,
For they have been a dungeon's spoil,
And mine has been the fate of those
To whom the goodly earth and air
Are banned, and barred, — forbidden fare. — BYRON.
2. Here rests his head upon the lap of earth,
A youth to fortune and to fame unknown. — GRAY.
3. They deserved respect; for they were good men as well as brave. — HAWTHORNE.
4. On either side the river lie
Long fields of barley and of rye. — TENNYSON.
5. Neither a borrower nor a lender be. — SHAKESPEARE.

6. As Cæsar loved me, I wept for him; as he was fortunate, I rejoice at it; as he was valiant, I honor him: but, as he was ambitious, I slew him.—SHAKESPEARE.

7. The test of a people is not in its occupations, but in its heroes.—T. W. HIGGINSON.

8. Then they praised him, soft and low,
 Called him worthy to be loved,
 Truest friend and noblest foe,
 Yet she neither spoke nor moved.—TENNYSON.

9. One whole month elapsed before I knew the fate of the cargo.

10. The works of Milton cannot be comprehended or enjoyed, unless the mind of the reader coöperate with that of the writer. He does not paint a finished picture, or play for a mere passive listener. He sketches, and leaves others to fill up the outline. He strikes the key-note, and expects his hearer to make out the melody.—MACAULAY.

EXERCISE 141

REVIEW OF CONJUNCTIONS

Name the two leading classes of conjunctions. What is a coördinating conjunction? What is meant by words, phrases, or clauses of equal rank? Illustrate. Tell how coördinating conjunctions are classified, and give examples of each class.

What is a subordinating conjunction? Mention some of the different relations denoted by subordinating conjunctions, and give illustrations.

What are correlative conjunctions? Give examples.

Mention phrases that are used as conjunctions.

CHAPTER LXVIII

INTERJECTIONS

Since interjections are not grammatically related to the other words in a sentence, the parsing of an interjection consists in simply naming the part of speech.

EXERCISE 142

Name the interjections in the following sentences, and tell what feeling each expresses:—

1. Ah ! what would the world be to us
If the children were no more? — LONGFELLOW.
2. Hark ! let me listen for the swell of the surf.
3. Ah ! what a weary race my feet have run. — WARTON.
4. Oh ! wherefore come ye forth, in triumph from the north?
— MACAULAY.
5. Alas ! I have nor hope nor health. — SHELLEY.
6. And, lo ! from far, as on they pressed, there came a glittering band. — HEMANS.
7. Hark ! hark ! the lark at heaven's gate sings.
8. Ha ! laugh'st thou, Lochiel, my vision to scorn?
9. For, lo ! the blazing, rocking roof
Down, down in thunder falls ! — HORACE SMITH.
10. Heigh ho ! daisies and buttercups,
Fair yellow daffodils, stately and tall.
11. O joy ! that in our embers
Is something that doth live. — WORDSWORTH.

PART THIRD

SYNTAX

Syntax treats of the grammatical relations of words in sentences. The relation that any part of speech bears to other parts of speech in the same sentence is called its syntax or construction.

CHAPTER LXIX

CONSTRUCTION OF NOUNS

I. NOMINATIVE CASE

Subject Nominative

(1) The subject of a verb is in the nominative case; as,—
Man is mortal. I sprang to the stirrup.

EXERCISE 143

Find the subject nominatives in the following examples, and tell of what verb each is a subject:—

1. The fleet consisted of nine vessels.
2. Up flew the windows all.
3. Facts always yield the place of honor in conversation, to thoughts about facts.
4. Not a ripple stirred on the glassy surface of the lake.

5. Somewhat back from the village street
Stands the old-fashioned country-seat.
Across its antique portico
Tall poplar-trees their shadows throw ;
And from its station in the hall
An ancient timepiece says to all, — “ Forever — never !
Never — forever ! ” — LONGFELLOW.

Predicate Nominative

(2) A noun or pronoun used to complete the predicate after certain intransitive verbs, such as be, become, appear, look, and seem, and after the passive forms of a few transitive verbs like make, call, choose, and elect is in the nominative case; as, —

Webster was a statesman. He was elected senator.

The noun that completes the predicate in this manner refers to the same person or thing as the subject of the verb, and is in the same case as the word explained. It is called a predicate noun or a predicate nominative.¹

Infinitives and participles of verbs of the class just named take the same case after them as before them, when both nouns or pronouns denote the same person or thing; as, —

It was thought to be he. We asked him to be our leader.
He, being a foreigner, was ineligible to office.

¹ The noun or adjective that completes the predicate in this manner is sometimes called an attribute complement.

EXERCISE 144

Parse the nouns in the following examples, and tell to what each predicate nominative refers:—

1. Every man's task is his life-preserver.
2. I am monarch of all I survey.
3. Our fortress is the good greenwood,
 Our tent the cypress-tree.
4. Toil is the condition of our being.
5. The colonists were now no longer freemen; they were entirely dependent on the King's pleasure.
6. He was one of the ablest seamen of his time, and was a favorite with his sailors.
7. Every day is a little life; and our whole life is but a day repeated.
8. Each tree is an individual and has a personal character.

Apposition

A noun or pronoun added to another noun or pronoun to explain its meaning is called an appositive, or is said to be in apposition with the word explained.

(3) An appositive is in the same case as the word explained; as,— Motley, the historian, was an American. (Nominative case.)

We met your brother, the general. (Objective case.)

Have you seen Gibson, the artist's,¹ drawings? (Possessive case.)

EXERCISE 145

Find the appositives in the following examples, state the case of each, and tell why it is in that case:—

1. Spenser, the poet, lived in the time of Queen Elizabeth.
2. The tiger, an animal equal to the lion in size, is a native of Asia.
3. He went to his old resort, the village inn.
4. These gay idlers, the butterflies,
 Broke, to-day, from their winter shroud.
5. Samuel Adams, the distinguished patriot, died in 1803.
6. An ancient clock, that important article of cottage furniture, ticked on the opposite side of the room.
7. The harp, his sole remaining joy,
 Was carried by an orphan boy.
8. My friend, Sir Roger, being a good churchman, has beautified the inside of his church with several texts of his own choosing.

Nominative Absolute

(4) A noun or pronoun used absolutely with a participle, its case not depending upon any other word, is in the nominative case absolute; as,—

The fog being very dense, we could not safely proceed.
The mountains rose, peak [being] above peak.

EXERCISE 146

Name the nouns and the pronouns that are in the nominative absolute, and tell with what participle, expressed or understood, each is used:—

1. The storm having ceased, the ships sailed.
2. Paul preached and taught with all confidence, no man forbidding him.
3. His calling laid aside, he lived at ease.
4. The supper being over, the strangers requested to be shown to their place of repose.
5. But the lark is so brimful of gladness and love
The green fields below him, the blue sky above.

— COLERIDGE.

Nominative of Address

(5) A noun used to name a person or thing addressed is in the nominative case of address; as, —

Watchman, tell us of the night.

O grave, where is thy victory?

EXERCISE 147

Parse in full the nouns that are in the nominative of address: —

1. O Father! I hear the sound of guns.
2. The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings. — SHAKESPEARE.
3. Veterans! you are the remnant of many a well-fought field. — WEBSTER.
4. Oh Life! I breathe thee in the breeze. — BRYANT.
5. Good friends, sweet friends, let me not stir you up to such a sudden flood of mutiny. — SHAKESPEARE.

EXERCISE 148

Write sentences illustrating five different constructions of a noun in the nominative case

II. POSSESSIVE CASE

Possessive Modifier

A noun or pronoun used as a possessive modifier is in the possessive case; as, —

A friend should bear his friend's infirmities.

The noun denoting the thing possessed is sometimes omitted; as, —

Our first visit in Rome was to St. Peter's.

When two nouns in the possessive case are in apposition, only the noun immediately preceding the modified term, expressed or understood, takes the possessive sign; as, —

For thy servant David's sake.

For the queen's sake, his sister. — BYRON.

EXERCISE 149

Parse the nouns in the following examples: —

1. The village was two days' journey from the sea.
2. Buckingham Palace fronts on St. James's Park.
3. Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's, thy God's, and truth's. — SHAKESPEARE.
4. At a little distance from Sir Roger's house, among the ruins of an old abbey, there is a long walk of aged elms, which are shot up so very high, that, when one passes under them, the rooks and crows that rest upon the tops of them seem to be cawing in another region. — ADDISON.
5. There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose. — GOLDSMITH.

6. We have no bird whose song will match the nightingale's in compass, none whose note is so rich as that of the European blackbird ; but for mere rapture I have never heard the bobolink's rival.—LOWELL.

III. OBJECTIVE CASE

Direct Object

(1) A noun or pronoun used as the direct object¹ of a transitive verb (or of its participles or infinitives) is in the objective case; as, —

Choose the timbers with greatest care.
The pillars supporting the roof are strong.
I come to bury Cæsar, not to praise him.

EXERCISE 150

Find in the following examples the nouns and the pronouns that are used as direct objects, and tell of what each is the object: —

1. One of the favorite themes of boasting with the Squire, is the noble trees on his estate, which, in truth, has some of the finest that I have seen in England. There is something august and solemn in the great avenues of stately oaks that gather their branches together high in air, and seem to reduce the pedestrians beneath them to mere pygmies. "An avenue of oaks or elms," the Squire observes, "is the true colonnade that should lead to a gentleman's house. As to stone and marble, any one can rear them at once — they are the work of the day ; but commend me to the colonnades that have grown old and great with the family, and tell by their grandeur how long the family has endured." . . .

It is with great difficulty that the Squire can ever be brought to have any tree cut down on his estate. To some he looks with reverence, as having been planted by his ancestors ; to others with a kind of paternal affection, as having been planted by himself ; and he feels a degree of awe in bringing down, with a few strokes of the axe, what it has cost centuries to build up. — IRVING, Bracebridge Hall.

Object of Preposition

(2) A noun or pronoun used as the object¹ of a preposition is ~~in~~ the objective case ; as, —

We spoke not a word of sorrow.

Come with me.

EXERCISE 151

Select the objects of the prepositions in the following selection, and tell to what words they are joined by the prepositions : —

Shut in from all the world without,
 We sat the clean-winged hearth about,
 Content to let the north-wind roar
 In baffled rage at pane and door,
 While the red logs before us beat
 The frost-line back with tropic heat ;
 And ever, when a louder blast
 Shook beam and rafter as it passed,
 The merrier up its roaring draught
 The great throat of the chimney laughed,
 The house-dog on his paws outspread
 Laid to the fire his drowsy head,
 The cat's dark silhouette on the wall
 A couchant tiger's seemed to fall ;

And, for the winter fireside meet,
Between the andirons' straddling feet,
The mug of cider simmered low,
The apples sputtered in a row,
And, close at hand, the basket stood
With nuts from brown October's wood.

— WHITTIER, Snow-Bound.

Indirect Object

(3) A noun or pronoun used as an indirect object to show to whom or for whom or what something is done is in the objective (or dative) case; as, —

He gave the man [indirect object] a coat [direct object] (= He gave a coat to the man).

She bought the bird [indirect object] a cage [direct object] (= She bought a cage for the bird).

Usually the indirect object alone is used when the noun stands next the verb, the preposition when the noun is separated from the verb.

EXERCISE 152

Tell which verbs in the following sentences take two objects, and name the direct and the indirect object in each case: —

1. Give every man thy ear, but few thy voice.
2. Then give him, for a soldier meet,
 A soldier's cloak for winding-sheet.
3. The sand ridge ran for a long way back into the swamp, and thus gave me a safe and easy road to the heart of a typical jungle.

4. I thrice presented him a kingly crown.
5. He giveth His beloved sleep.
6. Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul.
7. I made me great works; I builded me homes; I planted me vineyards.
8. Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears.

Objective Predicate

(4) A noun used as an objective predicate is in the objective case; as, —

They made him secretary.

An objective predicate, as in the example above, completes the meaning of a transitive verb, and describes its object. When the verbs make, appoint, elect, call, choose, and others of similar meaning, take a complement which describes the direct object of the verb, they are said to be factitive, and the complement is often called the factitive object. When verbs of this class are used in the passive voice, they are followed by the predicate nominative. (See page 184); as, —

He will be made secretary.

Select the objective predicates in the following examples, tell what verb each completes, and what it describes: —

1. They made me queen of the May.
2. Few men make themselves masters of things they write or speak.
3. One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

4. And Simon he surnamed Peter.
5. Time makes the worst enemies friends.
6. And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night.

Adverbial Objective

(5) A noun used adverbially to modify a verb, an adjective, or an adverb, by denoting time, distance, weight, value, etc., is an adverbial object, and is said to be in the objective case, adverbially; as, —

He held the office three years.

The walk is three feet wide.

Do not remain a moment longer.

EXERCISE 154

Find the adverbial objects, and tell what each modifies:—

1. An hour they sat in counsel.—BROWNING.
2. My little ones kissed me a thousand times o'er.—CAMPBELL.
3. I therefore walked back by the horseway, which was five miles round.—GOLDSMITH.
4. So all night long the storm roared on.—WHITTIER.
5. And a good south wind sprung up behind;
 The Albatross did follow,
 And every day, for food or play,
 Came to the mariner's hollo!—COLERIDGE.

Cognate Objective

Some verbs are followed by a noun which repeats the meaning of the verb. This is called a cognate object; as, —

I dreamed a dream.

I ran a race.

(6) A noun used as a cognate object is in the objective case.

EXERCISE 155

Name the cognate objectives in the following examples, and tell how each is used:—

1. I have fought a good fight.
2. Behold, I dream a dream of good.
3. He sleeps the sleep of the just.
4. Let me die the death of the righteous.
5. Well hast thou fought the better fight.

EXERCISE 156

REVIEW OF CONSTRUCTION OF NOUNS

Write sentences illustrating six different constructions of a noun in the objective case.

State the construction of each italicized word in the following selection:—

For my part, I was always a bungler at all kinds of sport that required either patience or adroitness, and had not angled above half an hour, before I had completely "satisfied the sentiment," and convinced myself of the truth of Izaak Walton's opinion, that angling is something like poetry—a man must be born to it. I hooked myself instead of the fish; tangled my line in every tree; lost my bait; broke my rod; until I gave up the attempt in despair, and passed the day under the trees, reading old Izaak; satisfied that it was his fascinating vein of honest simplicity and rural feeling that had bewitched me, and not the passion for angling.

My companions, however, were more persevering in their delusion. I have them at this moment before my eyes, stealing along the border of the brook, where it lay open to the day or was merely fringed by shrubs and bushes. I see the bittern rising with hollow scream, as they break in upon his rarely-invaded haunt; the king-fisher watching them suspiciously from his dry tree that overhangs the deep black mill-pond, in the gorge of the hills; the tortoise letting himself slip sideways from off the stone or log on which he is sunning himself; and the panic-struck frog plumping in headlong as they approach, and spreading an alarm throughout the watery world around. — IRVING, The Sketch-Book.

CHAPTER LXX

CONSTRUCTION OF PRONOUNS

I. AGREEMENT WITH ANTECEDENT

A pronoun must agree with its antecedent in person, number, and gender.

Antecedents modified by each, every, and no are singular; as, —

Every tree is known by its fruit.

When reference is made to an antecedent that may denote a person of either sex, the pronoun of the masculine gender is generally used; as, —

Each contributed what he could.

When the antecedent is a collective noun, it is neuter, and singular if reference is made to the collection as a whole, but plural if reference is made to the individuals in the collection separately; as, —

The army proceeded on its march.

The army left their camp utensils behind them.

EXERCISE 158

Copy the following sentences, filling the blanks with suitable pronouns. Give in each case a reason for your choice: —

1. The committee decided the matter without leaving — seats.
2. All passengers must show — tickets.
3. Every passenger must show — ticket.
4. Somebody left — umbrella.
5. Men at some time are masters of — fate.
6. Neither would admit that — was in the wrong.
7. Each soldier carried — own gun.
8. Happy, thrice happy, every one
 Who sees — labor well begun.
9. One who would succeed must learn to think for —.
10. The committee has offered to refund the amount, which — received from the company.
11. Every man must bear — own burden.
12. The soldiers paused on — march.

EXERCISE 159

State the person, number, and gender of each italicized pronoun in the following examples, giving reasons for your statements: —

1. The house stood among flourishing apple-trees, three or four of which are yet standing.
2. Every opinion reacts on him who utters it.
3. He who thinks much of himself will be in danger of being forgotten by the rest of the world.
4. He was surrounded by a shouting multitude, most of whom had been born in the country which he had helped to found.
5. So the Deacon inquired of the village folk
Where he could find the strongest oak,
That couldn't be split nor bent nor broke. — O. W. HOLMES.
6. Few, few were they whose swords of old
Won the fair land in which we dwell. — BRYANT.
7. That is a good book which is opened with expectation, and closed with profit.
8. Thou art Freedom's now, and Fame's,
One of the few, the immortal names,
That were not born to die. — HALLECK.

II. CASE RELATIONS OF THE PRONOUN

The case relations of the pronoun are nearly the same as those of the noun.

EXERCISE 160

State the case of each italicized pronoun in the following examples, and tell why it is in that case:—

I. Subject Nominative

1. Who, of all that address the public ear, whether in church, or court-house, or hall of state, has such an attentive audience as the town-crier?

2. Few believed the report.
3. They that have done this deed are honorable.
4. What caused the trouble?

II. Predicate Nominative

5. It is I; be not afraid.
6. All mine are thine, and thine are mine.
7. Who do men say that I am?

III. Apposition

8. We all do fade as a leaf.
9. They love each other.
10. The singer, she whom you most wished to hear, is ill.
11. I myself was surprised at the result.

IV. Nominative Absolute

12. He being absent, no one would discuss the question.
13. Thou looking on, I shall not fail.

V. Nominative of Address

14. Thou, who wouldst see the lovely and the wild
Mingled in harmony on Nature's face,
Ascend our rocky mountains.
15. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.

VI. Possessive Modifier

16. And they whose meadows it murmurs through,
Have named the stream from its own fair hue.
17. Two robin redbreasts built their nest
Within a hollow tree.

VII. Direct Object

18. No one heard him.
19. Seeing me, the bird flew.
20. We expect to meet them.

VIII. Object of Preposition

21. What to me is fame?
22. I that speak unto thee am he.
23. Stay, lady, stay with us.
24. Whom did you speak to?

IX. Indirect Object

25. Give us this day our daily bread.
26. Pay me that thou owest.
27. Methinks I hear a step.¹

III. NOMINATIVE AND OBJECTIVE FORMS

EXERCISE 161

Copy the following sentences, inserting the proper form of pronoun in each blank. Give in each case a reason for your choice:—

I, Me

1. She and — found the nest.
2. He or — will deliver your message.
3. *Between you and —, it was an unwise step.
4. The books were sent to him and —.

¹ Methinks is an impersonal verb, made up of the pronoun me and the verb think (from an old verb meaning to seem or appear). The pronoun me, when combined in this manner with the verb think or seem, is an indirect object. The sentence above is equivalent to "It seems to me that I hear a step."

5. It was — that opened the door.
6. Who is there? —.
7. Is it — that you mean?
8. Robert is smaller than —.
9. He is as strong as —.
10. No one wishes you success more earnestly than —.

We, Us

11. They were as unfortunate as —.
12. It could not have been — that you heard.
13. Let — change our plans.
14. They have greater responsibilities than —.

Thou, Thee

15. — art the man.
16. Gray-headed shepherd, — hast spoken well.
17. My country, 'tis of —,
 Sweet land of liberty,
 Of — I sing.

He, Him

18. Is — coming?
19. If I were —, I should not go.
20. I that speak to thee am —.
21. You know as well as — that this work should be done.
22. Will you go with — and me?

She, Her

23. — and I will assist you.
24. Did you say it was —?
25. We asked — to accompany us.
26. The flowers were given to — and me.
27. Was it — that you wished to see?

They, Them

28. Could it have been — that called?
29. Let — do the work in their own way.
30. No two are better fitted for the task than —.
31. Arrange the matter between you and —.

Who, Whom

32. — did you meet?
33. — rang the bell?
34. — do you wish to see?
35. — is it that you wish to see?
36. — do you think will be chosen?
37. Do you know — I am?
38. I am he — you seek.
39. I do not know — will go.
40. I cannot tell — to send.
41. It was the secretary — wrote the letter.
42. It was the President — they asked to speak.

CHAPTER LXXI

CONSTRUCTION OF ADJECTIVES

I. USES OF THE ADJECTIVE

Which adjectives in the following sentences modify nouns directly, and which modify a noun or a pronoun through the verb?—

1. A soft answer turneth away wrath.
2. Ring out, wild bells.
3. The sky is clear.
4. He painted the house white.
5. Her beauty made me glad.

I. An adjective that modifies a noun or a pronoun directly is used attributively; as, —

Drowsy tinklings lull the distant fold.

II. An adjective loosely attached to its noun is used appositively; as, —

No misfortune, public or private, could oppress him.

III. An adjective that completes the predicate, and shows what is asserted of the subject of the verb, or describes the object of the verb, is called a predicate adjective, or is said to be used predicatively; as, —

Snow is white.

They set the prisoner free.

In poetry an adjective is sometimes used for an adverb; as, —

Silent rows the gondolier.

EXERCISE 162

Tell how each adjective is used in the following sentences:—

1. The lamps shone o'er fair women and brave men.
2. Is it where the feathery palm-trees rise,
And the date grows ripe under sunny skies?
Or 'midst the green islands of glittering seas,
Where fragrant forests perfume the breeze?
3. The fields were green, and the sky was blue.—SOUTHEY.
4. The sea is mighty, but a mightier sways
His restless billows.—BRYANT.
5. He wrapped her warm in his seaman's coat.

6. My keepers grew compassionate.
7. Besides, our losses have made us thrifty.
8. A single sentinel was pacing to and fro beneath the arched gateway which leads to the interior, and his measured footsteps were the only sound that broke the breathless silence of the night.
9. His faithful dog shall bear him company.

EXERCISE 163

(1) Write four sentences containing adjectives used attributively.

(2) Write three sentences containing adjectives used predicatively, with intransitive verbs.

(3) Write three sentences containing adjectives used predicatively, with transitive verbs.

II. AGREEMENT WITH NOUN

Adjectives denoting one, modify nouns in the singular; those denoting more than one, modify nouns in the plural.

EXERCISE 164

Justify the use of the italicized forms in the following examples:—

1. That kind of exercise does no good.
2. This sort of trees is excellent for shade.
3. These trees are too near together.
4. This style of chairs is not pleasing.
5. These chairs are not comfortable.
6. That sort of people will always make trouble.
7. Have you examined those books?
8. Books of that class are very helpful.

III. COMPARATIVE AND SUPERLATIVE FORMS

The comparative degree is used in comparing two things or classes of things ; as, —

James is taller than William.

Silver is harder than gold.

The superlative degree is used in comparing one thing with all others of the same kind ; as, —

James is the tallest boy in his class.

When the comparative degree is used, the latter term of comparison should exclude the former ; as, —

Africa is hotter than any other continent.

When the superlative is used, the latter term should include the former ; as, —

Africa is the hottest of the continents.

EXERCISE 165

Re-write the following sentences, inserting the preferred form : —

1. He is the (wiser, wisest) of the two.
2. This design is the (better, best) of the three.
3. The crocodile is larger than (any, any other) reptile.
4. The crocodile is the largest of (all, all other) reptiles.
5. The white oak has a wider spread than (any, any other) American tree.
6. The pine contains a greater quantity of turpentine than (any, any other) family of resinous trees.
7. Of all the poets called Lake Poets, Wordsworth was the (greater, greatest).

CHAPTER LXXII

CONSTRUCTION OF VERBS

I. AGREEMENT WITH SUBJECT

What determines the person and number forms of the italicized verbs in the following sentences? —

1. The stream flows swiftly.
2. Thou art the man.
3. The new members were present.

When the form of the subject determines the form of the verb, a verb is said to agree with its subject. Hence the statement —

A verb must agree with its subject in person and number; as, —

I am .	Thou art .	He is .	We are .
---------------	-------------------	----------------	-----------------

Some subjects plural in form are singular in meaning and take verbs in the singular; as, —

The news is delayed.

"Twice-Told Tales" was written by Hawthorne.

A collective noun requires a verb in the singular when it denotes the collection as a whole, and a verb in the plural when it denotes the individuals in the collection separately; as, —

The congregation was dismissed.

The whole congregation were in tears.

Two or more subjects in the singular connected by and require a verb in the plural; as, —

Time and tide wait for no man.

If the subjects refer to the same person or thing or express one idea, the verb must be singular; as, —

The soldier and statesman has passed away.

The horse and carriage is at the door.

Two years seems like a long time.

When the subjects are preceded by each, every, or no, they refer to things considered separately, and require a verb in the singular; as, —

Each day and each hour brings its duties.

Two or more subjects in the singular connected by or, either . . . or, or neither . . . nor, require a verb in the singular; as, —

He or she was in the wrong.

Neither he nor she is present.

When a verb has two or more subjects of different persons connected by or or nor, it is generally made to agree in person and number with the subject nearest to it; as, —

Either he or I have made a mistake.

You or he is right.

Or, better, the construction of the sentence may be changed. Thus —

Either he has made a mistake or I have.

You are right or he is.

EXERCISE 166

State the person and the number of each italicized verb in the following sentence, and tell why these forms are used:—

1. The difficulties were all over now, and everything was settled.
2. A little fire is quickly trodden out.
3. Delicacy and brilliancy characterize nearly all the California flowers.
4. The derivation of these words is uncertain.
5. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good.
6. Neither the secretary nor the treasurer was present.
7. The army is needed for the defence of the country.
8. How does such a loose pile of sticks maintain its place during a heavy wind?
 9. A hundred eager fancies and busy hopes keep him awake.
 10. The council were divided in their opinions.
 11. Slow and sure comes up the golden year.
 12. Either ability or inclination was wanting.
 13. Let us hold fast the great truth that the people are responsible.
 14. A word or an epithet paints a whole scene.
 15. The saint, the father, and the husband prays. — BURNS.
 16. Seasons return, but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of even or morn. — MILTON.

EXERCISE 167

(1) Write three sentences in each of which the verb has two or more singular subjects connected by and.

(2) Write three sentences in each of which the verb has two or more singular subjects connected by or or nor.

(3) Write two sentences in each of which the subject is a collective noun denoting the collection as a whole.

(4) Write two sentences in each of which the subject is a collective noun denoting the individuals in the collection separately.

II. SEQUENCE OF TENSES

The tense forms of verbs in subordinate clauses must correspond to the tense forms used in the principal clauses; as, —

I hope you can come.

I hoped you could come.

He does this that you may see.

He did this that you might see.

He says that the work shall be done.

He said that the work should be done.

Verbs like hope, expect, intend, referring to future acts, are followed by the present infinitive; as, —

I intended to visit the museum.

We expected to remain longer.

I had intended to visit the museum.

We had expected to remain longer.

EXERCISE 188

Justify the use of the italicized tense forms in the following examples: —

1. She walks that she may retain her health.
2. He will tell you that he will do his best.
3. He said that he would give an early reply.
4. We have done no more than it was our duty to do.
5. They expected to see us.

6. She seemed to feel the motion of the vessel.
7. He appeared to have seen better days.
8. I am glad to have met you.
9. I hoped to meet you.
10. He meant to finish the sketch.

CHAPTER LXXIII

CONSTRUCTION OF INFINITIVES

The chief constructions of the infinitives, including those already given, are the following :—

I. The root infinitive without to is used—

(1) After the verbs can, may, must, shall, will, and usually after certain other verbs, such as bid, dare, do, let, make, need, hear, and see ; as, —

You may enter.

It does move.

I shall go.

I let them pass.

They dare not stir.

I heard him speak.

(2) After had better, had rather, and similar phrases ; as, —

You had better wait.

I had rather go than stay.

(3) Elliptically or absolutely in questions and exclamations ;
as, —

What ! flee ? Why flee ?

I vote for this measure !

II. The root infinitive with to is used —

(1) As the subject of a verb ; thus, —

To return was impossible.

- (2) As a predicate nominative; thus, —

To hesitate is to fail.

- (3) As the object of a transitive verb; thus, —

We intend to go.

- (4) As the object of a preposition; thus, —

She was about to speak.

- (5) With a noun or pronoun as the object of a verb; thus, —

He ordered the troops to advance.

I asked him to sing.

In this construction, the noun or pronoun used with the infinitive as the object of the verb is in the objective case and is said to be the subject of the infinitive. A few simple verbs, such as, let, hear, make, and see, take in this construction the infinitive without to; as, Let me go; I saw him fall.

- (6) As an adjective modifier; thus, —

There is a time to weep.

- (7) As an adverbial modifier, expressing purpose, consequence, and the like; thus, —

He came to assist his comrades.

This served to deaden the sound.

She is eager to go.

He is old enough to know better.

- (8) Elliptically or absolutely; thus, —

He was petrified, so to speak.

To tell the truth, I do not believe it.

III. The infinitive in -ing is used, like a noun —

- (1) As the subject of a verb; thus, —

Doing right is the duty of all.

- (2) As a predicate nominative; thus, —

Seeing is believing.

- (3) As the object of a transitive verb; thus, —

They preferred walking.

- (4) As the object of a preposition; 'thus, —

Form the habit of reading good books.

Like the noun, the infinitive in -ing may be modified by a noun or a pronoun in the possessive case; as, —

Much depends on Robert's receiving the message.

His coming was not unexpected.

EXERCISE 169

Point out the infinitives in the following sentences, and state the construction of each: —

1. For him, to hear is to obey.
2. A sower went forth to sow.
3. He taught her to see new beauties in nature. — IRVING.
4. I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts.
5. The sun is just about to set. — TENNYSON.
6. And many a holy text around she strews
 That teach the rustic moralist to die. — GRAY.
7. She heard the birds sing, she Saw the sun shine. — LONGFELLOW.
8. After tarrying a few days in the bay, our voyagers weighed anchor, to explore a mighty river which emptied into the bay.
9. And fools who came to scoff remained to pray.
10. I did send to you for gold to pay my legions. — SHAKESPEARE.
11. Hast thou a charm to stay the morning star? — COLERIDGE.

12. Upon the landlord's leaving the room, I could not avoid expressing my concern for the stranger. — GOLDSMITH.

13. To live in hearts we leave behind
 Is not to die. — CAMPBELL.

EXERCISE 170

(1) Write sentences illustrating two different uses of the root infinitive without to.

(2) Write four sentences containing infinitives used like nouns.

(3) Write two sentences containing infinitives used like adjectives.

(4) Write three sentences containing infinitives used like adverbs.

CHAPTER LXXIV

CONSTRUCTION OF PARTICIPLES

Participles modify nouns or pronouns. They may be used —

I. Attributively ; as, —

The rising sun hides the stars.

II. Appositively, usually equivalent to an implied clause ; as, —

Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again.

III. Predicatively ; as, —

Here it runs sparkling. (Modifying the subject.)

He kept us waiting. (Modifying the object.)

IV. Absolutely ; as, —

The service having closed, we left the church.

EXERCISE 171

Parse the participles and the infinitives:—

1. As we stood waiting on the platform, a telegraphic message was handed in silence to my companion. — HOLMES.

2. An uprooted tree came drifting along the current, and became entangled among the rocks.

3. "Ah!" cried he, drawing back in surprise.

4. The turban folded about his head

Was daintily wrought of the palm-leaf braid.

5. At each corner of the building is an octagon tower, surmounted by a gilt ball and weathercock. — IRVING.

6. All the stories of ghosts and goblins that he had heard in the afternoon, now came crowding upon his recollection.

7. I saw you sitting in the house, and I no longer there.

8. The snow fell hissing in the brine,

And the billows frothed like yeast. — LONGFELLOW.

9. Upon his advancing toward me with a whisper, I expected to hear some secret piece of news. — ADDISON.

10. A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver. — BIBLE.

11. His father, being at the warehouse, did not yet know of the accident. — GEORGE ELIOT.

12. The wind having failed at sunset, the crew set to work.

13. Here is a good place to test the qualities of a book as an outdoor companion.

14. The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do, well. — LONGFELLOW.

15. To reverse the rod, to spell the charm backward, to break the ties which bound a stupefied people to the seat of enchantment, was the noble aim of Milton. — MACAULAY.

CHAPTER LXXV

CONSTRUCTION OF ADVERBS

I. POSITION OF ADVERBS

An adverb should be so placed that there can be no doubt as to its relation to the rest of the sentence; as, —

We were greatly surprised at the result.

I saw only two trees in the yard.

An adverb should not be placed between to, the sign of an infinitive, and the infinitive itself, unless this arrangement would add to the clearness or the effectiveness of the sentence.

EXERCISE 172

Read the following sentences, inserting the words from the parentheses. Be careful to place each word so that it will express the meaning intended: —

1. The two houses were alike (nearly).
2. I will mention some of the best (only).
3. He promised to return (faithfully).
4. Tell him to leave the room (instantly).
5. There were two or three persons present (only).
6. I desired to go (really).
7. They remained three days (only).
8. We are directed to begin the work (immediately).
9. We came to look at the building (merely).

II. DOUBLE NEGATIVES

Two negatives should not be used in the same sentence, unless we wish to make an affirmation; as, —

He can not do anything, or He can do nothing (not He can not do nothing).

Sometimes two negatives are used to make an affirmative; as,—

He is not unfitted for the position.

EXERCISE 173

Point out the negatives in the following examples, and tell which sentences are affirmative and which negative:—

1. I can do nothing for you.
2. He will never consent to the sale of the house.
3. I have received no information on the subject.
4. Neither he nor any one else can do that.
5. He is not unhappy.
6. She will not admit that she was wrong.
7. Neither you nor anybody else can change the facts.
8. I am not unmindful of my privileges.

CHAPTER LXXVI

CONSTRUCTION OF PREPOSITIONS

I. PREPOSITIONS DISCRIMINATED

Certain prepositions have distinctive uses. Thus—

At is used before the name of a city or a town when the place is regarded merely as a point of locality; in, when reference is made to presence within its limits. In is used before the names of countries.

At means in or near a place; to implies motion.

Beside denotes by the side of; besides, in addition to.

Between is ordinarily used in speaking of two things or classes of things; among in speaking of more than two.

By refers to the agent; with, to the instrument or means.

In denotes presence inside of; into, entrance from the outside to the inside.

EXERCISE 174

Copy the following sentences, filling the blanks with prepositions that will express the relation intended:—

11. Suppose they will not agree — the proposal.
12. He had difficulty — making up his mind.
13. She has no taste — music.
14. This plan is similar — yours.

CHAPTER LXXVII

CONSTRUCTION OF CONJUNCTIONS

CORRELATIVES

When conjunctions are used in pairs, the two words must correspond, and they must be placed in corresponding positions in the sentence.

Some of the most common correlatives are both followed by and; either, or; neither, nor; though, yet; whether, or; as, as (to express equality); so, as (to deny equality).

EXERCISE 176

Point out the correlatives in the following examples, and show that they join corresponding parts of the sentence:—

1. He studied art both in France and in Italy.
2. Though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor.
3. Neither despise the poor, nor envy the rich.
4. His raiment was as white as snow.
5. This print is not so clear as that.
6. I do not know whether to go or to remain.
7. Neither a borrower nor a lender be.
8. He is either careless or indifferent.

CHAPTER LXXVIII

VARIED USES OF WORDS

EXERCISE 177

Give a reason for the classification of each italicized word in the following examples:—

All

1. All men are mortal. (Adjective.)
2. All joined in the song. (Pronoun.)
3. My all is lost. (Noun.)
4. I am all alone. (Adverb.)

As

1. He wrote as (Adverb of Degree) well as (Conjunctive Adverb) he could.
2. As he was ambitious, I slew him. (Conjunction.)
3. They chose him as a leader. (Conjunction introducing an appositive word.)
4. We are such stuff as dreams are made of. (Relative Pronoun.)

Before

1. She had not entered this hall before. (Adverb.)
2. He stood before me. (Preposition.)
3. Look before you leap. (Conjunction.)

But

1. Fools admire, but men of sense approve. (Conjunction.)
2. Nought is heard but [except] the lashing waves. (Preposition.)

3. Man wants but [only] little here below. (Adverb.)
4. There is no fireside, howsoe'er defended,

SELECTIONS FOR PARSING

EXERCISE 178

Parse the italicized words in the following exercises, giving a full explanation of the different constructions:—

Whoever has made a voyage up the Hudson, must remember the Kaatskill Mountains. They are a dismembered branch of the great Appalachian family, and are seen away to the west of the river, swelling up to a noble height, and lording it over the surrounding country. Every change of season, every change of weather, indeed, every hour of the day, produces some change in the magical hues and shapes of these mountains, and they are regarded by all the good wines, far and near, as perfect barometers. When the weather is fair and settled, they are clothed in blue and purple, and print their bold outlines on the clear evening sky; but sometimes, when the rest of the landscape is cloudless, they will gather a hood of gray vapors about their summits, which in the last rays of the setting sun, will glow and light up like a crown of glory.

—WASHINGTON IRVING.

EXERCISE 179

All the inhabitants of the little village are busy. One is clearing a spot on the verge of the forest for his homestead; another is hewing the trunk of a fallen pine-tree, in order to build himself a dwelling; a third is hoeing in his field of Indian corn. Here comes a huntsman out of the woods, dragging a bear which he has shot, and shouting to the neighbors to lend him a hand. There goes a man to the seashore, with a spade and a bucket, to dig a mess of clams, which were a principal article of food with the first settlers. Scattered here and there are two or three dusky figures, clad in mantles of fur, with ornaments of bone hanging from their ears, and the feathers of wild birds in their coal-black hair. They have belts of shell-work slung across their shoulders, and are armed with bows and arrows and flint-headed spears. These are an Indian sagamore and his attendants, who have come to gaze at the labors of the white men. And now rises a cry that a pack of wolves have seized a young calf in the pasture; and every man snatches up his gun or pike and runs in chase of the marauding beasts. —NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

PART FOURTH

STRUCTURE AND ANALYSIS OF SENTENCES

CHAPTER LXXX

STRUCTURE OF THE SENTENCE

I. ELEMENTS OF A SENTENCE

A sentence is the expression of a complete thought in words.

The elements of a sentence are the words, phrases, or clauses of which it is made up.

According to rank, elements are principal, subordinate, or independent.

The principal elements of a sentence are the simple subject and the simple predicate¹; as, —

The spring comes slowly up this way.

The subordinate elements of a sentence are the modifiers of the principal elements; as, —

The doors of the prison closed upon him.

He that leans on his own strength leans on a broken reed.

¹ See page 4.

When the predicate verb is of incomplete predication, the object or the complement may be called a modifier of the grammatical predicate; as, —

The sexton rang the bell.

My mirror is the mountain spring.

The independent elements of a sentence are the words or phrases not grammatically related to the other words in the sentence; as, —

O father! I hear the sound of guns.

Well, were you successful in your search?

To tell the truth, I was disappointed.

EXERCISE 180

Point out the principal, the subordinate, and the independent elements in the following examples: —

1. Hark, there is a knock at the door.
2. Once more he stepped into the street.
3. Early next morning I went to visit the grounds.
4. The first light dry snow had fallen.
5. Deer-tracks were discovered on the trails leading to the river.
6. Many, alas! had fallen in battle.
7. To speak plainly, the plan can never succeed.
8. At any rate, we can make the attempt.
9. This little brook flowed under a wooden bridge.

II. STRUCTURE OF ELEMENTS

When the subject, the predicate, the object, or the complement consists of two or more connected terms of equal rank, it is said to be compound; as, —

Games and carols closed the busy day.

The rainbow comes and goes.

Learn to labor and to wait.

Her voice was low and sweet.

Modifiers may be simple, compound, or complex.

A modifier consisting of a single word or phrase is simple.

The ship went slowly.

We spoke not a word of sorrow.

A modifier consisting of two or more connected words or phrases is compound; as, —

The ship went slowly and smoothly.

His cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold.

A modifier consisting of a word or phrase with modifiers of its own is complex; as, —

The ship went very slowly.

Here rests his head upon the lap of earth.

A series of adjectives may form a compound or a complex modifier, as, —

1. He was an honest, temperate, forgiving man.

2. Two large elm trees stood near the house.

In the first example the adjectives are coördinate, each modifying the same noun. Adjectives used in this manner may be separated by commas or joined by conjunctions.

In the second example the adjectives form a complex modifier. Two modifies the whole expression large elm trees, large modifies elm trees, and elm modifies trees.

EXERCISE 181

Point out the compound and the complex elements in the following examples, and state their use in the sentence:—

1. And now there came both mist and snow.
2. He was not to be corrupted either by titles or by money.
3. The dove found no rest for the sole of her foot.
4. An alarm bell rang loudly and hurriedly.
5. The star and crescent graced his shield.
6. Heart, lungs, and brain play on through all the thousand nights of sleep.
7. He is our help and our shield.
8. She heard the tramp of horses' hoofs and the rattling of wheels.
9. This ancient city was captured and burned.
10. The children march and sing.

III. CLASSES OF SENTENCES

(1) STRUCTURE OF SENTENCES

According to their structure, sentences are simple, complex, or compound.

A sentence that expresses one thought is a simple sentence; as,—

The march of the human mind is slow.

A sentence consisting of one principal clause and one or more subordinate clauses is a complex sentence; as,—

Some murmur when their sky is clear.

A sentence made up of two or more independent members is a compound sentence; as, —

I listened, but I could not hear.

(2) USE OF SENTENCES

According to their use, sentences are declarative, imperative, interrogative, or exclamatory.

A sentence that states or declares something is a declarative sentence; as, —

The troops marched steadily on.

A sentence that expresses a command or an entreaty is an imperative sentence; as, —

Make a proper use of your time.

A sentence that asks a question is an interrogative sentence; as, —

When will the ship sail?

A sentence that expresses sudden or strong feeling is an exclamatory sentence; as, —

What a beautiful rose this is!

EXERCISE 182

Write (1) a simple declarative sentence; (2) a simple imperative sentence; (3) a simple interrogative sentence; (4) a simple exclamatory sentence; (5) a compound declarative sentence; (6) a complex interrogative sentence.

CHAPTER LXXXI

THE SIMPLE SENTENCE

A simple sentence is a sentence that expresses one thought.

I. THE SUBJECT

The subject of a simple sentence may be —

I. A noun ; as, —

Birds have many enemies.

II. A pronoun ; as, —

We expected a different answer.

III. An infinitive, or an infinitive phrase ; as, —

To delay is dangerous.

To say nothing is often better than to speak.

Saying nothing is often better than speaking.

EXERCISE 183

Write (1) a simple sentence with a noun as subject ; (2) a simple sentence with a pronoun as subject ; (3) a simple sentence with an infinitive phrase as subject.

II. MODIFIERS OF THE SUBJECT

The subject may be modified by —

I. An adjective ; as, —

Still waters run deep.

II. A noun or a pronoun in the possessive case ; as, —

Edward's friends were present.

My opinion is not changed.

III. An appositive word or phrase.

I, Paul, have written it with mine own hand.

Hope, the balm of life, soothes us under every misfortune.

IV. A prepositional phrase, as adjective ; as, —

The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

V. An infinitive ; as, —

His desire to learn is great.

VI. A participle, or a participial phrase ; as, — Having sung, she left the room.

Advancing cautiously, he opened the door.

EXERCISE 184

Write sentences illustrating five different kinds of modifiers of the subject.

III. THE PREDICATE

The predicate of a simple sentence may be

I. A complete verb —

(1) In a simple form ; as, The sun rose.

(2) In a compound form ; as, The sun has risen.

II. An incomplete intransitive verb completed by —

- (1) A noun ; as, He was secretary.
- (2) A pronoun ; as, It was he.
- (3) An adjective ; as, Iron is hard.
- (4) An infinitive, or an infinitive phrase ; as, To see is to believe. To see her is to love her.

III. An incomplete transitive verb with its object —

- (1) A noun ; as, I hear music.
- (2) A pronoun ; as, We saw them.
- (3) An infinitive, or an infinitive phrase ; as, She likes to read. She likes to read stories.
- (4) Or objects — direct and indirect ; as, He gave John a book.
- (5) And objective complement ; as, They made him treasurer. The heat turned the milk sour.

EXERCISE 185

Write sentences illustrating three different forms of predicate.

IV. MODIFIERS OF THE PREDICATE

The predicate verb may be modified by —

I. An adverb ; as, —

The bells ring merrihly.

II. A prepositional phrase, as adverb ; as, —

He went towards the river.

III. An infinitive, or an infinitive phrase ; as, —

They came to see the paintings.

IV. An adverbial objective; as, —

She remained two hours.

V. A nominative absolute phrase; as, —

The war being ended, the soldiers returned.

The phrase, "the war being ended," gives a reason for the return of the soldiers. It is an adverbial phrase, being nearly equivalent in meaning to the adverbial clause, "as the war was ended."

EXERCISE 186

Write sentences illustrating five different kinds of modifiers of the subject.

V. ANALYSIS OF SIMPLE SENTENCES

To analyze a simple sentence —

- (1) Tell the kind of sentence.
- (2) Name the subject and the predicate.
- (3) Tell what the subject consists of.
- (4) Tell what the predicate consists of.

EXAMPLE I. — This old ship had been laden with immense wealth.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a simple declarative sentence.
2. The complete subject is this old ship; the complete predicate, had been laden with immense wealth.
3. The subject consists of the noun ship, with the adjectives this and old, of which old modifies ship, and this modifies old ship.
4. The predicate consists of the verb had been laden, modified by the adverbial phrase with immense wealth.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS. — Simple Declarative Sentence

Complete Subject	This old ship
Simple Subject Modifiers	Noun : ship Adjectives : this, old
Complete Predicate	had been laden with immense wealth
Simple Predicate Modifier	Verb : had been laden Adverbial phrase . with immense wealth

EXAMPLE II. — The prospect of success seemed small.

ORAL ANALYSIS. — 1. This is a simple declarative sentence.

4. The predicate consists of the verb seemed, completed by the adjective small.

Complete Subject	The prospect of success
Simple Subject Modifiers	Noun : prospect Adjective : the Adjective phrase : of success
Complete Predicate	seemed small
Simple Predicate Complement	Verb : seemed (incomplete) Adjective : small

EXAMPLE III. — Having obtained the desired information, he left the room.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a simple declarative sentence.
2. The complete subject is he having obtained the desired information; the complete predicate, left the room.
3. The subject consists of the pronoun he, modified by the participial phrase, having obtained the desired information.
4. The predicate consists of the verb left, completed by the object room, which is modified by the.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Simple Declarative Sentence

Complete Subject	he, having obtained the desired information
Simple Subject	Pronoun : he
Modifier	Adjective phrase : having obtained the desired information
Complete Predicate	left the room
Simple Predicate	Verb : left (incomplete)
Object	Noun with modifier : the room

EXAMPLE IV. — It is useless to deny the fact.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a simple declarative sentence.
2. The grammatical subject is it, which stands for the logical subject, to deny the fact; the predicate, is useless.

3. The logical subject is the infinitive phrase, to deny the fact, placed after the verb.

4. The predicate consists of the verb is, completed by the adjective useless.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Simple Declarative Sentence

Logical Subject	To deny the fact

CHAPTER LXXXII

THE COMPLEX SENTENCE

A complex sentence is a sentence consisting of one principal clause and of one or more subordinate clauses ; as, —

He who would search for pearls must dive below.

The principal clause expresses the leading or principal thought of a sentence, but it does not express the complete thought.

The subordinate clause performs the office of a noun, an adjective, or an adverb, and is usually introduced by a conjunction or by a relative pronoun.

I. NOUN CLAUSES

A clause that performs the office of a noun is a noun clause.

A noun clause may be used —

- (1) As the subject of a verb; as, —

That you have wronged me doth appear in this.

- (2) As a predicate nominative; as, —

The result was that the treaty was signed.

- (3) As the object of a transitive verb; as, —

He knows who wrote the letter.

- (4) As the logical subject, defining a foregoing introductory or grammatical subject; as, —

It was a fortunate thing that we met him.

- (5) As the object of a preposition; as, —

The leader encouraged his men by what he said and by what he did.

Noun clauses are introduced by the conjunctions that and whether, and by the words how, when, who, what, etc.

The conjunction that is often omitted when the noun clause follows the principal verb; as, —

I hope [that] he will succeed.

EXERCISE 181

In the following sentences, point out the noun clauses used as subjects: —

1. What it cost is of slight importance.
2. "Know thyself" is a comprehensive maxim.
3. What was said was misunderstood.
4. When he will arrive is not yet known.
5. That he should succeed is not surprising.
6. Whoever looks may find the spot.
7. That you have wronged me doth appear in this.
8. How he made his escape is a mystery.
9. What is done cannot be undone.
10. Whoever comes will be welcome.
11. What we achieve depends less on the amount of time we possess, than on the use we make of our time.

EXERCISE 182

In the following sentences, find the noun clauses used as predicate nominatives, and tell to what each refers: —

1. Children are what the mothers are.
2. Be what nature intended you for, and you will succeed.
3. The result was that the troops were defeated.
4. Things are not what they seem.
5. Our hope is that the plan will be accepted.
6. The fact is that he is dissatisfied with the work.

7. The great and decisive test of genius is that it calls forth power in the souls of others.

8. His only chance of escape was that he should go overboard in the night.

EXERCISE 193

In the following sentences, point out the noun clauses used as objects, and tell of what they are objects:—

1. No man can lose what he never had.
2. I know not what course others may take.
3. What we do not understand, we do not possess.
4. I learned that he was a universal favorite in the village.
5. He declared that he was the sole survivor.
6. See that you can untie what you tie.
7. We do not know how the matter will be decided.
8. I did not understand what was said.
9. His whole mind was occupied by what he had heard.
10. He could describe with great vividness, brevity, and force, what had happened in the past, what actually existed, or what the future promised.
11. No one knows who sent the message.
12. He declared that he was the sole survivor.
13. What we seek, we shall find.
14. Nobody could expect that we should be satisfied with these arrangements.

EXERCISE 194

In the following sentences, point out the noun clauses used as logical subjects:—

1. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.
2. It has been truly said that he who sets one great truth afloat in the world serves his generation.

III. ADVERBIAL CLAUSES

A clause that performs the office of an adverb is an adverbial clause.

An adverbial clause may denote —

- (1) Time, introduced by after, before, since, till, when, while; as, —

Let us live while we live.

- (2) Place, introduced by where, whence, whither; as, —

I shall remain where I am.

- (3) Manner, introduced by as; as, —

He acts as no wise man would act.

- (4) Degree, introduced by than, as; as, —

My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle [is].

Enough is as good as a feast [is].

- (5) Cause or reason, introduced by because, for, since, as, that; as, —

Freely we serve, because we freely love.

Since you desire it, I will remain.

- (6) Purpose, introduced by that, lest; as, —

Open the door that they may enter.

Take heed lest ye fall.

(7) Result or consequence, introduced by so that, that; as, —

A storm arose, so that we could not leave the harbor.
What has he done, that he should be dismissed?

(8) Condition, introduced by if, unless, except, but; as, —

I will go if you are ready.
The house will be sold unless the money is paid.
Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.
It never rains but it pours.

(9) Concession, introduced by though, although; as, —

Though he works hard, he does not succeed.
Although he spoke, he said nothing.

EXERCISE 196

EXERCISE 202

Point out the adverbial clauses of condition, and tell how they are joined to the principal clauses :—

1. Speak clearly if you speak at all ;
Carve every word before you let it fall.
2. The bill will not become a law, unless the Governor signs it.
3. If he had feared difficulties, he would not have died an acknowledged leader of men.
4. Had you not helped me, I should have failed.
5. If we were base enough to desire it, it is now too late to retire from the contest.
6. If it bear the test, it will be accepted.
7. If I had not been acquainted with the facts, this would have led me into a great error.
8. Had he been absent, the motion would have been carried.
9. This is strange if it be true.
10. If we fail, it can be no worse for us.

EXERCISE 203

Point out the adverbial clauses of concession, and tell what each modifies: —

1. Though it was morning, the sun did not shine.
2. His knowledge, though not always accurate, was of immense extent.
3. The good which men do is not lost, though it is often disregarded.
4. He remained in school, though he was not able to work.
5. Although I had so many interruptions, I completed the work in time.
6. Though the position of affairs has changed, there is still danger to be apprehended.
7. Though he were present, it would make no difference.
8. Though he slay me, yet will I trust him.

IV. ANALYSIS OF COMPLEX SENTENCES

To analyze a complex sentence —

- (1) Tell the kind of sentence.
- (2) Name the subject and the predicate of the sentence.
- (3) Tell what the subject consists of.
- (4) Tell what the predicate consists of.
- (5) Analyze the subordinate clause or clauses.

EXAMPLE I. — That man is formed for social life is acknowledged by all.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a complex declarative sentence.
2. The subject is the noun clause, that man is formed for social life; the predicate, is acknowledged by all.

3. The predicate consists of the verb is acknowledged, modified by the adverbial phrase by all.

4. The subordinate clause is introduced by the conjunction that.

5. The subject of the subordinate clause is the noun man; the predicate, is formed for social life

6. The predicate of the clause consists of the verb is formed, modified by the adverbial phrase for social life.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Complex Declarative Sentence

Complete Subject	That man is formed for social life
Simple Subject	Noun clause : that man is formed for social life
Complete Predicate	is acknowledged by all
Simple Predicate	Verb : is acknowledged
Modifier	Adverbial phrase : by all
Subordinate Clause Introduced by the conjunction that
Subject	Noun : man
Complete Predicate	is formed for social life
Simple Predicate	Verb : is formed
Modifier	Adverbial phrase : for social life

EXAMPLE II. — The fact that he was present is sufficient.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a complex declarative sentence.
2. The subject is the fact that he was present; the predicate, is sufficient.
3. The subject consists of the noun fact, modified by the adjective the, and by the appositive noun clause that he was present.
4. The predicate consists of the verb is, completed by the adjective sufficient.
5. The subordinate clause is introduced by the conjunction that.
6. The subject of the subordinate clause is he; the predicate, was present.
7. The predicate of the clause consists of the verb was, completed by the adjective present.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Complex Declarative Sentence

Complete Subject	The fact that he was present
Simple Subject	Noun : fact
Modifiers	Adjective : the Appositive noun clause : that he was present
Complete Predicate	is sufficient
Simple Predicate	Verb : is (incomplete)
Complement	Adjective : sufficient

*Subordinate Clause*Introduced by the conjunction that

Subject	Pronoun : he
Complete Predicate	was present
Simple Predicate	Verb : was (incomplete)
Complement	Adjective : present

EXAMPLE III. — The people believed in him, because he was honest and true.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Complex Declarative Sentence

Complete Subject	The people
Simple Subject	Noun : people
Modifier	Adjective : the
Complete Predicate	believed in him, because he was honest and true
Simple Predicate	Verb : believed
Modifiers	Adverbial phrase : in him Adverbial clause of reason : because he was honest and true

Subordinate Clause

Connected to the verb believed by the conjunction because

Subject	Pronoun : he
Logical Predicate	was honest and true
Gram. Predicate	Verb : was (incomplete)
Complement	Adjectives connected by and : honest and true

EXERCISE 204

Analyze the sentences in the following exercises : —

1. As we approached the house, we heard the sound of music.
2. Such a fortnight in the woods as I have been lightly sketching, will bring to him who rightly uses it a rich return.
3. If we seek to acquire the style of another, we renounce the individual style which we might have acquired.
4. "Good speed !" cried the watch, as the gate-bolts undrew.
5. So thick were the fluttering snowflakes, that even the trees were hidden by them the greater part of the time.
6. I now found myself among noble avenues of oaks and elms, whose vast size bespoke the growth of centuries.
7. Nothing is so dangerous as pride.
8. We are happy now because God wills it. — LOWELL.
9. A great black cloud had been gathering in the sky for some time past, although it had not yet overspread the sun.
10. Here I sit among my descendants, in my old arm-chair, and immemorial corner, while the firelight throws an appropriate glory round my venerable frame. — HAWTHORNE.

11. He who sets a great example is great.—VICTOR HUGO.

12. I saw from the beach, when the morning was shining,
A bark o'er the waters move gloriously on.—MOORE.

13. The song that moves a Nation's heart
Is in itself a deed.—TENNYSON.

14. As I crossed the bridge over the Avon on my return, I paused to contemplate the distant church in which the poet lies buried.—IRVING.

15. We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

16. We can almost fancy that we are visiting him [Milton] in his small lodging; that we see him sitting at the old organ beneath the faded green hangings; that we can catch the quick twinkle of his eyes, rolling in vain to find the day; that we are reading in the lines of his noble countenance the proud and mournful history of his glory and his affliction.—MACAULAY.

17. When the woodpecker is searching for food, or laying siege to some hidden grub, the sound of his hammer is dead or muffled, and is heard but a few yards. It is only upon dry, seasoned timber, freed of its bark, that he beats his reveille to spring and woos his mate.—JOHN BURROUGHS.

18. We are nearer heaven when we listen to the birds than when we quarrel with our fellow-men.—HENRY VAN DYKE.

19. And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares, that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.—LONGFELLOW.

CHAPTER LXXXIII

THE COMPOUND SENTENCE

A compound sentence is a sentence made up of two or more independent members; as,—

The walls are high, and the shores are steep.

Each member of a compound sentence, by itself, forms a complete sentence, which may be simple or complex; as,—

*The Mayor was dumb and the Council stood
As if they were changed into blocks of wood.*

1. The Mayor was dumb. (Simple sentence.)
2. The Council stood as if they were changed into blocks of wood. (Complex sentence.)

The connective between the members may be omitted; as, "The night is chill, the cloud is gray;" but the relation between the members should be stated in the analysis.

To analyze a compound sentence —

- (1) Tell the kind of sentence.
- (2) Name the different members, and tell how they are connected.
- (3) Analyze in order the different members of the sentence.

EXAMPLE.—The merchants shut up their warehouses, and the laboring men stood idle about the wharves.

ORAL ANALYSIS

1. This is a compound declarative sentence, consisting of two simple members connected by the copulative conjunction and.

2. The subject of the first member is the merchants; the predicate, shut up their warehouses. The subject consists of the noun merchants, modified by the adjective the. The predicate consists of the verb shut, modified by the adverb up, and completed by the object warehouses. The object is modified by the possessive pronoun their.

3. The subject of the second member is the laboring men; the predicate, stood idle about the wharves. The subject consists of the noun men, with the adjectives the and laboring, of which laboring modifies men, and the modifies laboring men. The predicate consists of the verb stood, completed by the adjective idle, and modified by the adverbial phrase about the wharves.

WRITTEN ANALYSIS

Compound Declarative Sentence

Two members connected by the conjunction and

FIRST MEMBER

Complete Subject	The merchants
Simple Subject	Noun : merchants
Modifier	Adjective : the
Complete Predicate	shut up their warehouses
Simple Predicate	Verb : shut (incomplete)
Mod. of Verb	Adverb : up
Object	Noun : warehouses
Mod. of Object	Possessive pronoun : their

SECOND MEMBER

Complete Subject	the laboring men
Simple Subject	Noun : men
Modifiers	Adjectives : the, laboring
Complete Predicate	stood idle about the wharves
Simple Predicate	Verb : stood (incomplete)
Complement	Adjective : idle
Modifier	Adverbial phrase : about the wharves

EXERCISE 205

Analyze the sentences in the following exercises:—

1. Every day is a little life; and our whole life is but a day repeated.
2. The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few.
3. They toil not, neither do they spin.
4. It is one thing to be well informed; it is another to be wise.
5. The ravine was full of sand now, but it had once been full of water.
6. He touched his harp, and nations heard, entranced.
7. The moon is up, and yet it is not night.
8. They had played together in infancy; they had worked together in manhood; they were now tottering about, and gossiping away the evening of life; and in a short time they will probably be buried together in the neighboring churchyard.—IRVING.

9. Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast.—COWPER.

10. Lay down the axe; fling by the spade;
Leave in its track the toiling plough.—BRYANT.

11. But what chiefly characterized the colonists of Merry Mount was their veneration for the Maypole. It has made their true history a poet's tale. Spring decked the hallowed emblem with young blossoms and fresh green bougias; Summer brought roses of the deepest blush, and the perfected foliage of the forest; Autumn enriched it with that red and yellow gorgeousness which converts each wild-wood leaf into a painted flower; and Winter silvered it with sleet, and hung it round with icicles, till it flashed in the cold sunshine, itself a frozen sunbeam.—HAWTHORNE.

CHAPTER LXXXIV

SELECTIONS FOR ANALYSIS

I. THE ARROW AND THE SONG

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For who has sight so keen and strong
That it can follow the flight of song?

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend.

—HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

II. RIP VAN WINKLE

The great error in Rip's composition was an insuperable aversion to all kinds of profitable labor. It could not be from the want of assiduity or perseverance; for he would sit on a wet rock, with a rod as long and heavy as a Tartar's lance, and fish all day without a murmur, even though he should not be encouraged by a single nibble. He would carry a fowling-piece on his shoulder for hours together, trudging through woods and swamps, and up hill and down dale, to shoot a few squirrels or wild pigeons. He would never refuse to assist a neighbor, even in the roughest toil, and was a foremost man at all country frolics for husking Indian corn or building stone fences. The women of the village, too, used to employ him to run their errands, and to do such little odd jobs as their less obliging husbands would not do for them. In a word, Rip was ready to attend to anybody's business but his own; but as to doing family duty, and keeping his farm in order, he found it impossible.

In fact, he declared it was of no use to work on his farm; it was the most pestilent little piece of ground in the whole country; everything about it went wrong, and would go wrong in spite of him. His fences were continually falling to pieces; his cow would either go astray, or get among the cabbages; weeds were sure to grow quicker in his fields than anywhere else; the rain always made a point of setting in just as he had some outdoor work to do; so that though his patrimonial estate had dwindled away under his management, acre by acre, until there was little more left than a mere patch of Indian corn and potatoes, yet it was the worst-conditioned farm in the neighborhood. — WASHINGTON IRVING.

III. THE POET'S SONG

The rain had fallen, the Poet arose,
He passed by the town and out of the street,
A light wind blew from the gates of the sun,
And waves of shadow went over the wheat,
And he sat him down in a lonely place,
And chanted a melody loud and sweet,
That made the wild-swan pause in her cloud,
And the lark drop down at his feet.

The swallow stopt as he hunted the bee,
The snake slipt under a spray,
The wild hawk stood with the down on his beak,
And stared, with his foot on the prey,
And the nightingale thought, "I have sung many songs,
But never a one so gay,
For he sings of what the world will be
When the years have died away."—ALFRED TENNYSON.

IV. LEAVES

The leaves, as we shall see immediately, are the feeders of the plant. Their own orderly habits of succession must not interfere with their main business of finding food. Where the sun and air are, the leaf must go, whether it be out of order or not. So, therefore, in any group, the first consideration with the young leaves is much like that of young bees, how to keep out of each other's way, that every one may at once leave its neighbors as much free-air pasture as possible, and obtain a relative freedom for itself. This would be a quite simple matter, and produce other simply balanced forms, if each branch, with open air all round it, had nothing to think of but reconciliation of interests among its own leaves. But every branch has others to meet or to cross, sharing with them, in various advantage, what shade, or sun, or rain is to be had. Hence every single leaf-cluster presents the general aspect of a little family, entirely at unity among themselves, but obliged to get their living by various shifts, concessions, and infringements of the family rules, in order not to invade the privileges of other people in their neighborhood. — JOHN RUSKIN.

V. THE CONSTITUTION

What is the Constitution? It is the bond which binds together millions of brothers. What is its history? Who made it? monarchs, crowned heads, lords, or emperors? No, it was none of these. The Constitution of the United States, the nearest approach of mortal to perfect political wisdom, was the work of men who purchased liberty with their blood, but who found that, without organization, freedom was not a blessing. They formed it, and the people, in their intelligence, adopted it. And what has been its history? Has it trodden down any man's rights? Has it circumscribed the liberty of the press? Has it stopped the mouth of any man? Has it held us up as objects of disgrace abroad? How much the reverse! It has given us character abroad; and when, with Washington at its head, it went forth to the world, this young country at once became the most interesting and imposing in the circle of civilized nations. How is the Constitution of the United States regarded abroad? Why, as the last hope of liberty among men. Wherever you go, you find the United States held up as an example by the advocates of freedom. The mariner no more looks to his compass, or takes his departure by the sun, than does the lover of liberty abroad shape his course by reference to the Constitution of the United States. — DANIEL WEBSTER.

PART FIFTH

COMPOSITION

CHAPTER LXXXV

WHAT A COMPOSITION IS

Composition is the art of putting things together in such a way as to make one complete whole. Thus:—

At length I spied a little cove on the right shore of the creek, to which, with great pain and difficulty, I guided my raft, and at last got so near, that reaching ground with my oar, I could thrust her directly in. But here I had like to have dipped all my cargo into the sea again; for that shore lying pretty steep—that is to say, sloping,—there was no place to land, but where one end of my float, if it ran on shore, would lie so high, and the other sink lower, as before, that it would endanger my cargo again. All that I could do, was to wait till the tide was at the highest, keeping the raft with my oar like an anchor, to hold the side of it fast to the shore, near a flat piece of ground, which I expected the water would flow over; and so it did. As soon as I found water enough, for my raft drew about a foot of water, I thrust her on upon that flat piece of ground, and there fastened or moored her, by sticking my two broken oars into the ground,—one on one side, near one end, and one on the other side, near the other end; and thus I lay till the water ebbed away, and left my raft and all my cargo safe on shore.

— DANIEL DEFOE, Robinson Crusoe.

Here everything that is said bears upon one main point, — landing the raft. Each word and each sentence helps in the development of this main thought, and the different words and sentences are so arranged that one idea follows another in a natural order from beginning to end. The most important statement is emphasized, by placing it where it will attract the attention, — at the end.

A composition may consist of one sentence or of any number of sentences, it may be oral or written; but, whatever its form or length, —

(1) It should centre upon one main thought; that is, it should have unity.

(2) It should proceed in an orderly manner from point to point and the relation of part to part should be clear. In other words, it should have coherence.

(3) It should give emphasis to the most important ideas.

EXERCISE 206

Give a brief account of an experience of your own, suggested by one of the following topics: —

1. A Ride through a Canal Lock.
2. Fording a River.
3. A Nutting Expedition.
4. Washing Fido.
5. Photographing the Baby.
6. Trimming a Christmas Tree.
7. Breaking a Bronco.
8. A Game of Football.
9. An Early Morning Walk.
10. How we fought a Forest Fire.

CHAPTER LXXXVI

THE PARAGRAPH

I. SINGLE PARAGRAPHS

Read the following selection, and tell what it is about:—

A Saranac boat is one of the finest things that the skill of man has ever produced under the inspiration of the wilderness. It is a frail shell, so light that a guide can carry it on his shoulders with ease, but so dexterously fashioned that it rides the heaviest waves like a duck, and slips through the water as if by magic. You can travel in it along the shallowest rivers and across the broadest lakes, and make forty or fifty miles a day, if you have a good guide.

—HENRY VAN DYKE, Little Rivers.

Notice that all of the sentences in this passage relate to a particular point or topic, and that each sentence helps to develop the main idea.

A series of sentences relating to a particular topic is called a paragraph.

A small blank space is usually left at the beginning of the first line in a written or printed paragraph. When a line is begun in this manner, it is said to be indented.

In the illustrative example above, notice that the first sentence tells what the paragraph is about. The subject of a paragraph is usually stated at or near the beginning of the paragraph, but sometimes it is not given until the end of the paragraph is reached. In some cases, the subject of a paragraph is implied rather than expressed. It may then be inferred from the paragraph as a whole.

The sentence that states the subject of a paragraph is called the topic sentence.

EXERCISE 207

Find the topic sentences in the following paragraphs:—

1. How friendly the pine tree is to man,—so docile and available as timber, and so warm and protective as shelter! Its balsam is salve to his wounds, its fragrance is long life to his nostrils; an abiding, perennial tree, tempering the climate, cool as murmuring waters in summer and like a wrapping of fur in winter.

—JOHN BURROUGHS, Signs and Seasons.

2. One of the finest sights that I have ever seen was an albatross asleep upon the water, during a calm, off Cape Horn, when a heavy sea was running. There being no breeze, the surface of the water was unbroken, but a long, heavy swell was rolling, and we saw the fellow, all white, directly ahead of us, asleep upon the waves, with his head under his wing; now rising on the top of one of the big billows, and then falling slowly until he was lost in the hollow between. He was undisturbed for some time, until the noise of our bows, gradually approaching, roused him, when, lifting his head, he stared upon us for a moment, and then spread his wide wings and took his flight.

—RICHARD HENRY DANA, JR., Two Years before the Mast.

3. Remember, that time is money. He that can earn ten shillings a day by his labor, and goes abroad, or sits idle, one half of that day, though he spends but sixpence during his diversion or idleness, ought not to reckon that the only expense; he has really spent, or rather thrown away, five shillings besides.

—BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, Advice to a Young Tradesman.

4. The shepherds of the Abruzzi are as wild as the scenes they frequent. They are clad in a rude garb of black or brown sheepskin; they have high conical hats, and coarse sandals of cloth bound around their legs with thongs, similar to those worn by the robbers. They carry long staves, on which, as they lean, they form picturesque objects in the lonely landscape, and they are followed by their ever constant companion, the dog. They are a curious, questioning set, glad at any time to relieve the monotony of their solitude by conversation of the passer-by; and the dog will lend an attentive ear, and put on as sagacious and inquisitive a look as his master.

— WASHINGTON IRVING, Tales of a Traveller.

EXERCISE 208

Write short paragraphs, developing the following topics, by adding particulars, explanations, illustrations, or reasons: —

1. Our train was delayed by a washout.
2. The children of our neighborhood had a merry time last night, celebrating Hallowe'en.
3. Few people welcome the arrival of the English sparrow.
4. — is the most interesting book that I have read in a long time.
5. It is unwise to neglect taking daily outdoor exercise.

EXERCISE 209

Write a short paragraph on a topic of local interest, suggested by one of the following: —

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. A Runaway. | 5. Panic in a Schoolroom. |
| 2. A Dynamite Explosion. | 6. The New Pavement. |
| 3. A Birthday Party. | 7. Stereopticon Lecture. |
| 4. A Park Concert. | 8. False Alarm of Fire. |
| 9. Progress on the State Road. | |
| 10. An Attractive Fruit Stand. | |

II. RELATED PARAGRAPHS

Observe in the following selection how the divisions of the subject are indicated by the arrangement of the sentences, and note that each paragraph relates to one distinct part of the subject, and contributes something toward developing the main idea :—

THE BUSY BEE

Let us watch the bees as they pass to and fro from their hive. First of all we see some half-dozen around the door. They are there to warn off intruders. If we approach too near the front of the hive, one of these sentries will dash forward with an angry buzz ; and, if we do not wisely take the hint, the brave little soldier will soon return with help from the guard-room to enforce the command.

But the bees that are passing and repassing the sentries are not all laden alike. Some of them have little yellow or red tufts on their legs, others have none. But all that return are laden. There are three substances required in the hive,—pollen, or bee-bread, the food of the young bees ; wax to make the combs ; and honey for the support of the community. The bees with tufts on their legs have been collecting pollen from flowers. The honey-gatherers and the wax-gatherers carry their stores in their throats.

To understand how the pollen is carried, we should examine a bee's hind leg with a microscope. The upper joint is flattened, and its edges are surrounded with stiff hairs, which form a sort of basket. When the bee enters a flower, it takes a plunge into the pollen. The pollen is brushed down into the little basket, till a good-sized baul is formed. If the bee cannot complete its load in one flower, it will always seek out another of the same kind. It will not mix the pollen of two kinds of flowers.

The honey-gatherers and the wax-gatherers draw in the sweet juices from flowers by their trunks. The trunk serves as a mouth and a pump. The liquid passes through this into the throat, and is thus carried to the hive.

—Adapted from Good Words for the Young.

Notice also how closely the following paragraphs are related :—

What are clouds? Is there nothing you are acquainted with which they resemble? You discover at once a likeness between them and the condensed steam of a locomotive. At every puff of the engine a cloud is projected into the air. Watch the cloud sharply; you notice that it first forms at a little distance from the top of the funnel. Give close attention and you will sometimes see a perfectly clear space between the funnel and the cloud. Through that clear space the thing which makes the cloud must pass. What, then, is this thing which at one moment is transparent and invisible, and at the next moment visible as a dense opaque cloud?

It is the steam or vapor of water from the boiler. Within the boiler this steam is transparent and invisible; but to keep it in this invisible state a heat would be required as great as that within the boiler. When the vapor mingles with the cold air above the hot funnel it ceases to be vapor. Every bit of steam shrinks, when chilled, to a much more minute particle of water. The liquid particles thus produced form a kind of water-dust of exceeding fineness, which floats in the air, and is called a cloud.

—TYNDALL, Forms of Water.

Observe that the first of these paragraphs is in the form of a question, and that the second paragraph is an answer to the question.

EXERCISE 210

Write in your own words the substance of the selection about The Busy Bee, arranging the matter in four paragraphs. Tell—

1. What bees are first seen around a hive.
2. How the bees that are passing the sentries are laden.

3. How a bee collects pollen and carries it to the hive.
4. How the honey-gatherers and the wax-gatherers collect their stores.

EXERCISE 211

NESTING OF A FAMILIAR BIRD

Write an account of some bird that nests in your locality.

1. Tell whether the bird is a permanent or a summer resident, and if the latter, at what time it arrives in the spring.
2. State the date of nesting, and give particulars about the situation and the construction of the nest.
3. State the number of eggs in a set, and tell how many broods are raised in a season.
4. Add any facts that interest you about these birds.

EXERCISE 212

MIGRATION OF BIRDS

Find out what you can about the Migration of Birds, and then —

1. Tell what the migration of a bird is.
2. Name the common migratory birds in your locality, and tell at what times they arrive in spring, and when they depart in autumn.
3. Tell why these birds migrate. State whether they feed upon insects, worms, fruit, seeds, fish, or other food, and show what effect the cold weather has upon their supply of food.
4. Tell how they migrate, — whether they travel in the daytime or at night, alone or in flocks, — and where they go.

CHAPTER LXXXVII

NARRATION

I. ONE MAIN POINT

Narration is the telling of what happens, — the relating in order of the particulars of an event, or the telling of a story. Study the following examples : —

LOST IN THE WOODS

I had now given up all expectation of finding the road, and was steering my way as well as I could northward towards the valley. In my haste I made slow progress. Probably the distance I travelled was short, and the time consumed not long ; but I seemed to be adding mile to mile, and hour to hour. I had time to review the incidents of the Russo-Turkish war, and to forecast the entire Eastern question ; I outlined the characters of all my companions left in camp, and sketched in a sort of comedy the sympathetic and disparaging observations they would make on my adventure ; I repeated something like a thousand times, without contradiction, "What a fool you were to leave the river !" I stopped twenty times, thinking I heard its loud roar, always deceived by the wind in the tree tops ; I began to entertain serious doubts about the compass, — when suddenly I became aware that I was no longer on level ground ; I was descending a slope ; I was actually in a ravine. In a moment more I was in a brook newly formed by the rain. "Thank Heaven !" I cried : "this I shall follow whatever conscience or the compass says." In this region, all streams go, sooner or later, into the valley. This ravine, this stream, no doubt, led to the river. I splashed and tumbled along down it in mud and water. Down hill we went together, the fall showing that I must have wandered to high ground. When I guessed that I must be close to the river, I suddenly stepped into mud up to my ankles. It was the road, — running, of course, the wrong way, but still the blessed road. It was a mere canal of liquid mud ; but man had made it, and it would take me home. I was at least three miles from the point where I supposed I was near at sunset, and I had before me a toilsome walk of six or seven miles, most of the way in a ditch ; but it is truth to say I enjoyed every step of it. I was safe ; I knew where I was ; and I could have walked till morning. The mind had again got the upper hand of the body, and began to plume itself on its superiority : it was even disposed to doubt whether it had been “lost” at all.

— CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER, In the Wilderness.

This passage tells what happened when the supposed narrator was lost in the woods. Notice that all of the particulars given bear upon one main point, — the finding of the road. The writer does not tell everything that took place, but gives a few significant details bearing upon the main point. Note how he adds to the interest of his narrative by telling the story as if he were relating his own experience.

AN ELEPHANT IN BATTLE

A story is told in Lahore, India, of an elephant who was the standard-bearer in an Indian battle, carrying on his broad back the royal ensign which was the rallying-point of the Poonah host. For some time the huge animal bore the standard in the midst of the fray. Suddenly the enemy made a vigorous charge ; and the mahout at the same moment commanding him to halt, the old elephant stood firm, while the opposing force came on. The mahout dropped dead from his back ; the men about were routed, turned, and fled ; and in a short time the elephant was almost surrounded by the enemy. A moment more, and he would have been captured, when a mighty shout rose from the retreating forces. They saw the standard still firm on the elephant's back; and, refusing to believe they were beaten, with a victorious cry they charged with such valor that the enemy were swept down like chaff; and the elephant, who still stood like a rock amid the dead and dying, was once more within its own lines, the true victor. The mahout's last command had been obeyed, and the animal remained like a statue until some one took the dead driver's place.

— CHARLES FREDERICK HOLDER, The Ivory King.

The point of this story is that the elephant by his obedience turned the tide of battle. Note how the different details given help to bring out this point.

Every narrative should have one main point of interest, and each detail introduced into the narrative should help to bring out the main point.

EXERCISE 213

Read the following story of Canute the Great, one of the famous kings of England, and tell what the main point of the story is:—

KING CANUTE AND THE SEA

One day King Canute sat down in a chair upon the beach below high-water mark, and bade the tide stop rising.

"O sea," said he, "I am thy lord; my ships sail over thee whither I will, and this land upon which thou dashest is mine; stay, then, thy waves, and dare not to wet the feet of thy lord and master."

But the tide was coming in, and the waves came farther and farther up the shore till they wet the royal feet and the royal robe. From that day King Canute would not wear his crown.

EXERCISE 214

Tell, in your own words, the story of King Canute and the Sea.

EXERCISE 215

Tell the story of one of the following, being careful to bring out clearly the main point; —

1. King Alfred and the Cakes.
2. Robert Bruce and the Spider.
3. Sir Walter Raleigh and His Cloak.
4. Sir Philip Sidney and the Cup of Water.
5. William Tell and the Apple.
6. Benjamin Franklin and the Kite.

EXERCISE 216

Tell a true story about an animal that you have known.

EXERCISE 217

Write an incident from your own experience, suggested by one of the following topics: —

1. A Day in the Woods.
2. My First Party.
3. The Midnight Visitor.
4. A Ride on a Raft.
5. Sitting for a Photograph.
6. An Afternoon in Bronx Park.
7. How I Learned to Skate.
8. How I Spent Christmas Day.

II. THE BEGINNING

The beginning of a narrative should lead toward the main point of interest, and it should be interesting so that it will attract the attention at once. Study the following examples: —

1. It was a brilliant moonlight night, but extremely cold ; our chaise whirled rapidly over the frozen ground ; the post-boy smacked his whip incessantly, and a part of the time his horses were on a gallop. "He knows where he is going," said my companion, laughing, "and is eager to arrive in time for some of the merriment and good cheer of the servants' hall." — WASHINGTON IRVING, Christmas Eve.

2. Yes, he was the most beautiful Prince that ever was born !

— DINAH MARIA MULOCK, The Little Lame Prince.

3. Have you heard of the wonderful one-hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way
It ran a hundred years to a day,
And then, of a sudden, it—ah, but stay,
I'll tell you what happened without delay,
Scaring the parson into fits,
Frightening people out of their wits,—
Have you ever heard of that, I say?

— OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, The Deacon's Masterpiece.

Many narratives begin by introducing the main characters, and giving such information, about the time, the place, or the attendant circumstances as is needed to make what follows clear to the reader. Notice what is stated or suggested in these opening sentences :—

1. On a bright December morning long ago, two, thinly clad children were kneeling upon the bank of a frozen canal in Holland.

— MARY MAPES DODGE, Hans Brinker.

2. It was seven o'clock of a very warm evening in the Seconee hills when Father Wolf woke up from his day's rest, scratched himself, yawned, and spread out his paws one after the other to get rid of the sleepy feeling in the tips. Mother Wolf lay with her big gray nose dropped across her four tumbling, squealing cubs, and the moon shone into the mouth of the cave where they all lived.

— RUDYARD KIPLING, Mowgli's Brothers.

3. It was broad day when I awoke and found myself tossing at the southwest end of Treasure Island. The sun was up, but was still hid from me behind the great bulk of the Spy-glass, which on this side descended almost to the sea in formidable cliffs.

— ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, Treasure Island, Chapter XXIV.

EXERCISE 218

Study the introductory sentences, paragraphs, or stanzas in the stories named below, or similar ones, and tell what is stated or suggested in each about the characters, the time, the place, or the circumstances of the action:—

1. "Rip Van Winkle" by Irving.
2. "The Golden Touch" by Hawthorne.
3. "Two Years before the Mast" by Dana.
4. "The Wreck of the Hesperus" by Longfellow.
5. "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers in New England" by Mrs. Hemans.

EXERCISE 219

Find in magazines or newspapers five good opening sentences.

EXERCISE 220

Write a brief introduction for an incident that you have witnessed in the street recently.

III. ORDER OF EVENTS

Study the following narrative with reference to (1) the introduction; (2) the order of events; (3) the conclusion.

LORD ULLIN'S DAUGHTER

A chieftain, to the Highlands bound,
Cries, "Boatman, do not tarry!
And I'll give thee a silver pound,
To row us o'er the ferry."

"Now who be ye, would cross Lochgyle,
This dark and stormy water?"
"O, I'm the chief of Ulva's isle,
And this Lord Ullin's daughter.

"And fast before her father's men
Three days we've fled together,
For should he find us in the glen,
My blood would stain the heather.

"His horsemen hard behind us ride;
Should they our steps discover,
Then who will cheer my bonny bride
When they have slain her lover?"

Out spoke the hardy Highland wight,
"I'll go, my chief, — I'm ready: —
It is not for your silver bright;
But for your winsome lady:

"And by my word! the bonny bird
In danger shall not tarry:
So, though the waves are raging white,
I'll row you o'er the ferry."

By this the storm grew loud apace,
The water-wraith was shrieking;
And in the scowl of heaven each face
Grew dark as they were speaking.

But still as wilder blew the wind,
And as the night grew drearer,
Adown the glen rode armed men,
Their trampling sounded nearer.

"O, haste thee, haste!" the lady cries,
"Though tempests round us gather;
I'll meet the raging of the skies,
But not an angry father."

The boat has left a stormy land,
A stormy sea before her, —
When, O, too strong for human hand,
The tempest gathered o'er her.

And still they rowed amidst the roar
Of waters fast prevailing:
Lord Ullin reached that fatal shore,
His wrath was changed to wailing.

For sore dismayed, through storm and shade,
His child he did discover:
One lovely hand she stretched for aid,
And one was round her lover.

"Come back! come back!" he cried in grief,
"Across this stormy water:
And I'll forgive your Highland chief,
My daughter! — O my daughter!"

'Twas vain; — the loud waves lashed the shore,
Return or aid preventing;
The waters wild went o'er his child,
And he was left lamenting. — THOMAS CAMPBELL.

Notice first that the introduction to this poem is in the form of a conversation, which introduces the characters, shows where the action took place and what led to it, and arouses curiosity with reference to the outcome of the action; then observe that the acts or events which together make up the story or plot are told in the order of their occurrence. Note also how one event leads to another, and how the interest increases, step by step, until it reaches its highest point, or climax, in the line, "The waters wild went o'er his child." A single line ends the story, - - "And he was left lamenting."

EXERCISE 221

Write briefly the story or plot of one of the following, giving particular attention to the order of the events:—

1. "Paul Revere's Ride" by Longfellow.
2. "The Bell of Atri" by Longfellow.
3. "An Incident of the French Camp" by Browning.
4. "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" by Browning.
5. "Lochinvar" by Sir Walter Scott.
6. "The Inchcape Rock" by Southey.
7. "The Gray Swan" by Alice Cary.
8. "Casabianca" by Felicia Hemans.

EXERCISE 222

Relate in your own words one of the following, or some other incident from a book that you have read:—

1. Finding the Print of a Man's Foot on the Shore. ("Robinson Crusoe.")
2. Tom Brown's Fishing Adventure. ("School Days at Rugby," Chapter II.)

3. David Copperfield's Trip to Yarmouth. ("David Copperfield," Chapter III.)

4. Bob Cratchit's Christmas Dinner. (Charles Dickens, "A Christmas Carol," Stave Three.)

(Begin at an interesting point, and give only such details as will add interest to the account and lead to the main point.)

EXERCISE 223

Give an account of an incident connected with your own experience.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII

STUDY OF A POEM

THE LANDING OF THE PILGRIM FATHERS IN NEW ENGLAND

I

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed.

II

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On the wild New England shore.

III

Not as the conqueror comes,
They, the true-hearted, came;
Not with the roll of the stirring drums,
And the trumpet that sings of fame.

IV

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear; —
They shook the depths of the desert gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

V

Amidst the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free!

VI

The ocean eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam;
And the rocking pines of the forest roared, —
This was their welcome home!

VII

There were men with hoary hair
Amidst that pilgrim band: —
Why had they come to wither there,
Away from their childhood's land?

VIII

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth;
There was manhood's brow serenely high,
And the fiery heart of youth.

IX

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine!

X

Ay, call it holy ground,

The soil where first they trod:

They have left unstained what there they found,—

Freedom to worship God.—FELICIA HEMANS.

What is this poem about? Read the whole poem carefully.

What does the first line tell? Where did the waves dash high?

What is meant by a stern coast? What is the meaning of rock-bound?

What is the meaning of the third and fourth lines? How would the first two lines in the second stanza be expressed in prose? On what occasion did the waves dash high? What is an exile? What is meant by mooring their bark?

Read the third and fourth stanzas. What do the first six lines of these stanzas tell?

Ans. They tell how the exiles did not come.

How many classes of persons are mentioned whose coming was unlike that of the Pilgrims? How does the conqueror come? How do the flying come? What do the two remaining lines of these stanzas tell?

Read the fifth and sixth stanzas. What does the fifth stanza describe? What does the sixth stanza do? What welcomed them?

Read the seventh and eighth stanzas. What do these stanzas tell?

Ans. They tell who were in the band.

How many classes of persons are mentioned? Name each. What is the meaning of hoary?

Read the first question in the ninth stanza. Supply words making the second question complete. Express the third question fully. What does the last line of this stanza tell? What is meant by their seeking a faith's pure shrine?

Ans. Seeking a place where they could worship in their own way.

What place is called holy ground in the last stanza? Why?

EXERCISE 324

Copy the poem, and commit it to memory.

EXERCISE 325

Find out what you can about The Pilgrim Fathers, and then —

1. Tell in your own words who the Pilgrim Fathers were, and what caused them to leave their native country.
2. Tell where they went first, how long they remained there, and why they decided to come to America.
3. Give an account of their voyage to the New World, tell where they landed, and mention some of the hardships which they had to undergo on their arrival.

CHAPTER LXXXIX

DESCRIPTION

I. SELECTION AND ARRANGEMENT

Description presents in words a picture of something. Notice in the following example how clearly the persons and things described are brought before us :—

It proved to be a gypsy encampment, consisting of three or four little cabins, or tents, made of blankets and sail-cloth, spread over hoops stuck in the ground. It was on one side of a green lane, close under a hawthorn hedge, with a broad beech tree spreading above it. A small rill tinkled along close by through the fresh sward, that looked like a carpet.

A teakettle was hanging by a crooked piece of iron over a fire made from dry sticks and leaves, and two old gypsies, in red cloaks, sat crouched on the grass, gossiping over their evening cup of tea ; for these creatures, though they live in the open air, have their ideas of fireside comforts. There were two or three children sleeping on the straw with which the tents were littered ; a couple of donkeys were grazing in the lane, and a thievish-looking dog was lying before the fire. Some of the younger gypsies were dancing to the music of a fiddle, played by a tall, slender stripling, in an old frock-coat, with a peacock's feather stuck in his hatband.

— WASHINGTON IRVING, Fortune-Telling.

Observe that the author of this passage does not tell everything that he saw in the gypsy encampment, but presents such characteristic features as will bring the scene before the mind of the reader.

Note in particular the use of appropriate descriptive words and phrases, and observe that some of these words convey the idea of color or form ; others suggest sound ; and still others suggest action or motion.

Notice also the order in which the details are given. First, general statements about the tents and their location are made, and then special features of interest are mentioned in a natural order.

EXERCISE 228

Study the following description, noting in particular the selection and order of the details : —

THE OLD ANGLER'S COTTAGE

I found the old angler living in a small cottage containing only one room, but a perfect curiosity in its method and arrangement.

It was on the skirts of the village, on a green bank, a little back from the road, with a small garden in front, stocked with kitchen herbs, and adorned with a few flowers. The whole front of the cottage was overrun with a honeysuckle. On the top was a ship for a weathercock.

The interior was fitted up in a truly nautical style, the old angler's ideas of comfort and convenience having been acquired on the berth-deck of a man-of-war. A hammock was slung from the ceiling, which, in the daytime, was lashed up so as to take but little room. From the centre of the chamber hung a model of a ship of his own workmanship. Two or three chairs, a table, and a large sea-chest, formed the principal movables. The mantle-piece was decorated with sea-shells; over which hung a quadrant flanked by two woodcuts of most bitter-looking naval commanders. His implements for angling were carefully disposed on nails and hooks about the room. On a shelf was arranged his library, containing a work on angling, much worn, a Bible covered with canvas, an odd volume or two of voyages, a nautical almanac, and a book of songs.

—WASHINGTON IRVING.

What is said about the general character of this cottage?

Point out the details that tell something about its location; its surroundings; its exterior.

What does the third paragraph describe? What is meant by a nautical style? Mention briefly the main features of the interior.

EXERCISE 227

Write in your own words a description of The Old Angler's Cottage, following this outline:—

1. Its size and general character.
2. Its location, surroundings, and exterior.
3. Its interior.

EXERCISE 228

Write a description of a room that you have seen. For example:—

- | | |
|-----------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. A Village Store. | 4. A Country Church. |
| 2. Your Schoolroom. | 5. A Family Sitting Room. |
| 3. A Blacksmith Shop. | 6. A Fire Station. |

II. POINT OF VIEW

Study the following description of a sunrise seen from a chamber window, and observe that nothing is brought into the picture that could not be seen from that point of view:—

Every Sabbath morning in the summer time, I thrust back the curtain, to watch the sunrise stealing down a steeple which stands opposite my chamber window. First, the weathercock begins to flash; then, a fainter lustre gives the spire an airy aspect; next, it encroaches on the tower, and causes the index of the dial to glisten like gold as it points to the gilded figure of the hour. Now, the loftiest window gleams, and now the lower. The carved framework of the portal is marked strongly out. At length, the morning glory, in its descent from heaven, comes down the stone steps, one by one; and there stands the steeple, glowing with fresh radiance, while the shades of twilight still hide themselves among the nooks of the adjacent buildings. Methinks, though the same sun brightens it every fair morning, yet the steeple has a peculiar robe of brightness for the Sabbath. — NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE, Sunday at Home.

EXERCISE 229

Write a description of a crowded city street as it would appear (1) to a person from the top of a high building; (2) to a person riding rapidly through the street; (3) to a person walking slowly along the street.

EXERCISE 230

Describe the reading room of a public library as it would appear to a person standing at the main door.

EXERCISE 231

Write a description of your schoolroom as seen from your desk.

III. CHARACTERIZATION

Study the following descriptions carefully, noting (1) the words or phrases that describe or suggest the appearance, manner, or acts of the person described; (2) those which indicate the character:—

1. Kit was a shock-headed, shambling, awkward lad, with an uncommonly wide mouth, very red cheeks, a turned-up nose, and certainly the most comical expression of face I ever saw.

—CHARLES DICKENS, The Old Curiosity Shop.

2. He [the English stage coachman] has commonly a broad, full face, curiously mottled with red, as if the blood had been forced by hard feeding into every vessel of the skin; he is swelled into jolly dimensions by frequent potations of malt liquors, and his bulk is still further increased by a multiplicity of coats, in which he is buried like a cauliflower, the upper one reaching to his heels. He wears a broad-brimmed, low-crowned hat; a huge roll of colored handkerchiefs about his neck, knowingly knotted and tucked in at the bosom; and has in summer time a large bouquet of flowers in his button-hole,—the present, most probably, of some enamoured country lass. His waistcoat is commonly of some bright color, striped, and his small-clothes extend far below the knees, to meet a pair of jockey-boots which reach about halfway up his legs.

. . . He enjoys great consequence and consideration along the road ; has frequent conferences with the village housewives, who look upon him as a man of great trust and dependence ; and he seems to have a good understanding with every bright-eyed country lass. The moment he arrives where the horses are to be changed, he throws down the reins with something of an air, and abandons the cattle to the care of the hostler ; his duty being merely to drive from one stage to another. When off the box, his hands are thrust into the pockets of his great-coat, and he rolls about the inn-yard with an air of the most absolute lordliness.

— WASHINGTON IRVING, The Stage Coach.

3. No scene could have been more peaceful if Mrs. Poyser, who was ironing a few things that still remained from the Monday's wash, had not been making a frequent clinking with her iron, and moving to and fro whenever she wanted it to cool ; carrying the keen glance of her blue-gray eye from the kitchen to the dairy, where Hetty was making up the butter, and from the dairy to the back kitchen, where Nancy was taking the pies out of the oven. Do not suppose, however, that Mrs. Poyser was elderly or shrewish in her appearance ; she was a good-looking woman, not more than eight-and-thirty, of fair complexion and sandy hair, well-shapen, light-footed ; the most conspicuous article in her attire was an ample checkered linen apron, which almost covered her skirt ; and nothing could be plainer and less noticeable than her cap and gown, for there was no weakness of which she was less tolerant than feminine vanity, and the preference of ornament to utility. The family likeness between her and her niece, Dinah Morris, with the contrast between her keenness and Dinah's seraphic gentleness of expression, might have served a painter as an excellent suggestion for a Martha and Mary. Their eyes were just of the same color, but a striking test of the difference in their operation was seen in the demeanor of Trip, the black and tan terrier, whenever that much-suspected dog unwarily exposed himself to the freezing Arctic ray of Mrs. Poyser's glance. Her tongue was not less keen than her eye, and, whenever a damsel came within earshot, seemed to take up an unfinished lecture, as a barrel-organ takes up a tune, precisely at the point where it had left off. — GEORGE ELIOT, Adam Bede.

Observe in the second and third examples that the writers indicate certain traits of character in the persons described by showing how others feel toward them.

EXERCISE 232

Write a description of one of the following, or of some other character from a book that you have read: —

1. Rip Van Winkle (Irving's "The Sketch Book").
2. Scrooge (Dickens's "A Christmas Carol").
3. Dora (Dickens's "David Copperfield").
4. Roderick Dhu (Scott's "The Lady of the Lake").
5. Miles Standish (Longfellow's "The Courtship of Miles Standish").
6. Phoebe Pyncheon (Hawthorne's "The House of Seven Gables").

EXERCISE 233

Observe the most striking characteristics in the appearance or the character of one of the following, and then write a description of the type selected: —

- | | |
|-----------------|---------------------|
| 1. A Newsboy. | 6. A Gardener. |
| 2. A Bootblack. | 7. A Trained Nurse. |
| 3. A Fireman. | 8. A Messenger Boy. |
| 4. A Postman. | 9. A Sailor. |
| 5. A Policeman. | 10. A Soldier. |

CHAPTER XC

STUDY OF A DESCRIPTION

THE SNOW-STORM

(From "Snow-bound")

The sun that brief December day
Rose cheerless over hills of gray,
And, darkly circled, gave at noon
A sadder light than waning moon.
Slow tracing down the thickening sky
Its mute and ominous prophecy,
A portent seeming less than threat,
It sank from sight before it set.
A chill no coat, however stout,
Of homespun stuff could quite shut out,
A hard, dull bitterness of cold,
That checked, mid-vein, the circling race
Of life-blood in the sharpened face,
The coming of the snow-storm told.
The wind blew east; we heard the roar
Of Ocean on his wintry shore,
And felt the strong pulse throbbing there
Beat with low rhythm our inland air.

* * * * *

Unwarmed by any sunset light
The gray day darkened into night,
A night made hoary with the swarm
And whirl-dance of the blinding storm,
As zigzag wavering to and fro
Crossed and recrossed the wingéd snow:

And ere the early bedtime came
The white drift piled the window-frame,
And through the glass the clothes-line posts
Looked in like tall and sheeted ghosts.
So all night long the storm roared on :
The morning broke without a sun ;
In tiny spherule traced with lines
Of Nature's geometric signs,
In starry flake, and pellicle,
All day the hoary meteor fell ;
And, when the second morning shone,
We looked upon a world unknown,
On nothing we could call our own.
Around the glistening wonder bent
The blue walls of the firmament,
No cloud above, no earth below, —
A universe of sky and snow !
The old familiar sights of ours
Took marvellous shapes ; strange domes and towers
Rose up where sty or corn-crib stood,
Or garden wall, or belt of wood ;
A smooth white mound the brush-pile showed,
A fenceless drift what once was road ;
The bridle-post an old man sat
With loose-flung coat and high cocked hat ;
The well-curb had a Chinese roof ;
And even the long sweep, high aloof,
In its slant splendor, seemed to tell
Of Pisa's leaning miracle.¹

— JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

What statement is made in the first two lines? Where was the cheerless sun seen? When? What word describes the appearance of the hills?

To what is the light of the sun compared in the second statement? Why waning moon? What words in the third line describe the appearance of the sun at noon?

What is the third fact stated about the sun? What is meant by the thickening sky? What is the sun called in the seventh line? What is a portent? Tell what signs of the coming snow-storm are mentioned in the first eight lines.

Read the next ten lines. What is the first thing mentioned in these lines that indicated the approaching snow-storm? What shows the degree of the chill? Why would a coat of "homespun stuff" be more likely to shut out the chill than any other coat? What was the effect of the chill upon the face? Why? How did the wind indicate the coming of the storm? What is meant by the throbbing pulse of the ocean?

Read the next ten lines. When did it begin snowing? What is the meaning of hoary? To what does the use of the word swarm direct the attention? The word whirl-dance? What showed the depth of the snow at early bedtime?

Read the next nine lines. How long did the storm continue? Read the part in these lines descriptive of the snowflakes. What is the meaning of pellicle? What does the use of the word shone imply about the state of the weather on the second morning?

Read the remaining lines. What is meant by the glistening wonder? What is the meaning of the line, No cloud above, no earth below? What is said about the old familiar sights? What did the sty or corn-crib resemble? The brush-pile? The road? The bridle-post? The well-curb? The well-sweep?

How does this description accord with your own observations?

EXERCISE 234

Study carefully the foregoing description of a snow-storm, and then tell in your own words —

1. How the sun, the chill, the wind, and the ocean indicated the coming of the snow-storm.
2. At what time it began to snow, and how long the storm continued.
3. What was seen on the second morning.

CHAPTER XCI

EXPOSITION

Exposition explains ideas. Its object is to make the reader or hearer understand something. Observe the following example: —

A bit of a plant stuck into the ground stands a chance of growing; and this bit is a cutting. . . .

If the cutting were planted in a plant rather than in the soil, we should have a graft; and the graft might grow. In this case, the cutting would not make roots, but it would grow fast to the other plant, and the twain would become one. When the cutting is inserted in a plant, it is no longer called a cutting, but a cion; and the plant in which it is inserted is called the stock. The completed thing — cion growing in the stock — is a graft. — L. H. BAILEY, Nature Study Quarterly.

EXERCISE 235

Write definitions, of one sentence each, of the following terms: —

alpenstock

belfry helmet

antonym

chronometer

subway

aluminum dynamo synonym

EXERCISE 236

Consult a dictionary or a work on synonyms, and then state briefly the distinctions in meaning between the following synonyms:—

- | | | | |
|--------------|------------|----------|---------|
| 1. character | reputation | 5. haste | hurry |
| 2. custom | habit | 6. need | want |
| 3. discover | invent | 7. safe | secure |
| 4. emigrant | immigrant | 8. see | observe |

EXERCISE 237

Write these words in a list and opposite each write its antonym:—

- | | | | | | |
|------|---------|-------|--------|-------|-------|
| bad | death | empty | refuse | sweet | truth |
| cold | poverty | laugh | small | wise | wide |

EXERCISE 238

Compare any two of the following, and state clearly some of the most striking points of resemblance and difference in their structure, habits, or uses:—

- | | |
|------------------------|----------------------------|
| Butterflies and Moths. | Crabs and Lobsters. |
| Toads and Frogs. | Alligators and Crocodiles. |
| Snakes and Eels. | Rabbits and Hares. |
| Clams and Oysters. | Goats and Sheep. |

Model. — BUTTERFLIES AND MOTHS

Butterflies and moths when flying look very much alike. Butterflies, however, fly only in the daytime, while most moths fly at night.

Butterflies as well as moths have four wings. When a butterfly is at rest, it holds its wings erect. When a moth is at rest, its wings are folded over the body like a flat roof.

EXERCISE 239

Write about some article that is prepared for market near your home ; as, — coal	tobacco	wheat	granite

cotton	petroleum	butter	maple sugar

State, so far as you know, the different steps taken in the process of cultivation or manufacture, and tell in what form and in what way the article is taken to market.

EXERCISE 240

Explain fully how to do any one of the following: —

1. How to Make a Kite.
2. How to Sweep a Room.
3. How to Harness a Horse.
4. How to Build a Coal Fire.
5. How to Can Peaches.
6. How to Learn to Swim.
7. How to Learn to Skate.
8. How to Play Baseball.

EXERCISE 241

Explain the meaning of one of the following statements: —

1. A rolling stone gathers no moss.
2. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.
3. Strike while the iron is hot.
4. Make hay while the sun shines.
5. A burned child dreads the fire.
6. A stitch in time saves nine.
7. Birds of a feather flock together.
8. All that glitters is not gold.

CHAPTER XCII

LETTER-WRITING

I. THE PARTS OF A LETTER

A letter is made up of five parts. (See Form on next page.)

If a letter fills a page or more, it should begin about an inch and a half from the top of the page. But if it occupies only a few lines, it should begin lower down, so that the margins above and below the letter may be about equal. The first line of the heading should begin a little to the left of the middle of the page.

A margin should be left on the left-hand side of each page. The width of this margin should be about one-quarter of an inch on note-paper, and about half an inch on large letter-paper.

The address is usually placed at the beginning of a business letter and at the close of a familiar letter.

When the address is placed at the close of a letter, the salutation should begin at the marginal line, on the first line below the heading, and the body of the letter should begin at the end of the salutation, on the first line below.

EXERCISE 242

(1) Copy on note-paper the following letter-form. Leave on the left-hand side of the page a margin one-quarter of an inch wide, and arrange the different parts as they are arranged in the model given.

[HEADING.]

Santa Barbara, Cal.,

December 6, 1914

[SALUTATION.]

My dear Brother,—

[BODY OF LETTER.]

[CONCLUSION.]

Your loving sister,

Grace E. Holmes.

[ADDRESS.]

Mr. Frank S. Holmes,

Madison, Wis.

(2) Write a letter-form similar to the one given on page 277, using in it your own name and address, and the name and address of one of your friends. Draw dotted lines to represent the body of the letter.

II. THE HEADING

The heading of a letter shows where the letter was written and when it was written.

If the letter is written from a city, the heading should contain the number of the house, the name of the street, the name of the city, and the name of the state.

NOTE. — Sometimes the number of the post-office box is used instead of the number of the house and the name of the street.

If the letter is written from a small town, the heading should contain not only the name of the town and the name of the state, but the name of the county also.

If the letter is written from a large school, from a hotel, or from any well-known institution, the name of the institution may take the place of the street and number.

The heading should begin about an inch and a half from the top of the page, and a little to the left of the middle. If the heading is short, it may be written on one line. If it occupies two or three lines, the second line should begin a little farther to the right than the first, and the third line should begin a little farther to the right than the second.

Name the different items in each heading. What mark is used to separate these parts? What mark is placed at the close of each heading?

FORMS OF HEADING

Rutland, Vermont, May 8, 1913

2

Lenox, Berkshire Co., Mass.,
March 2, 1912

3

116 Martin St., Milwaukee, Wis.,
February 22, 1915

Denver, Col., Sept. 25, 1917
(P. O. Box 725.)

5

Vassar College,
Poughkeepsie, N. Y.,
December 13, 1914

Separate by commas the different items in the heading, and place a period at the close of the heading.

NOTE.—If any of the words in the heading of a letter are abbreviated, the different items must be separated by commas, just as if the words were written in full. A period must be placed after each abbreviation.

Do not omit the name of the state from the heading of a letter; thus, not Springfield, July 24, 1912.

Do not abbreviate the name of a city; not N. Y. for New York.

Do not abbreviate the distinguishing word in the name of a county; thus, not Scho. Co. for Schoharie Co., Wash. Co. for Washington Co.

Do not write st, d, or th after the number denoting the day of the month, when that number is immediately followed by the number denoting the year; not Jan. 1st, 1915, for Jan. 1, 1915; May 3d, 1909, for May 3, 1909; Dec. 25th, 1916, for Dec. 25, 1916.

EXERCISE 243

Copy the foregoing headings. Be careful to arrange the different parts as they are arranged in the forms given.

EXERCISE 244

Write headings for letters from the items given below. Arrange the items like those in the foregoing forms.

1. Austin, Texas, May 3, 1917.
2. 839 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, November 15, 1909.
3. Cooperstown, Otsego County, New York, August 26, 1912.

4. Yale College, New Haven, Connecticut, February 22, 1918.

5. Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 17, 1909. P.O. Box 947.

EXERCISE 245

Write a heading for a letter to be sent from your home to-day.

III. THE SALUTATION

The salutation consists of the opening words of respect or affection.

FORMS OF SALUTATION

To relatives or friends —

Dear Father,— My dear Clara,—
My dear Mother,— Dear Uncle Henry,—
My dear Sister,— Dear Miss Edwards,—
Dear Edward:— Dear Mr. Harper:—

To others —

Madam:— Dear Madam:—
Sir:— Dear Sir:—
Dear Sirs:— Gentlemen:—

NOTE. — Some writers make a distinction in the use of the terms of address "Dear Sirs" and "Gentlemen," using the former term in letters purely commercial, and the latter term in addressing firms of lawyers, boards of education, officers of an institution, or others acting in their official capacity.

When the words father, mother, sister, cousin, etc., are used in the salutation of a letter, they should begin with capital letters.

The salutation may be followed by a comma, or by a colon.

NOTE. — The comma is generally used when the letter is informal, and the colon when the letter is formal.

When the address is placed at the close of a letter, the salutation should begin at the marginal line, on the first line below the heading; but when the address is placed at the beginning of a letter, the salutation should be placed on the first line below the address. (See p. 295, and pp. 303 and 304, Ex. 1 and 2.)

EXERCISE 246

Copy the foregoing forms of salutation.

EXERCISE 247

Write a salutation for a letter to—

1. Your mother or your guardian.
2. A lady who is a stranger.
3. A gentleman who is a stranger.
4. A business firm.
5. Your teacher.
6. Your aunt.
7. One of your classmates.
8. Your cousin.

IV. THE CONCLUSION

The conclusion of a letter is made up of the closing words of respect or affection and the signature of the writer.

FORMS OF CONCLUSION

Lovingly yours,
Alice L. Martin.

2

Most sincerely yours,
George H. Reynolds.

Your loving daughter,
Fanny S. Austin.

4

Respectfully yours,
Charles R. Thompson.

With what kind of letter does each conclusion begin? What mark separates the closing words from the name of the writer? What mark is placed after the signature?

The first word of the conclusion should begin with a capital letter.

The closing words should be separated from the signature of the writer by a comma.

A period should be placed after the signature of the writer.

Some of the forms used in closing familiar letters are:—

Your loving son.	Your affectionate father.
Lovingly yours.	Faithfully yours.
Affectionately yours.	Cordially yours.
Sincerely yours.	Very sincerely yours.

The most common forms for closing business letters are:—

Yours respectfully.	Yours truly.
Respectfully yours.	Very truly yours.

When the words, sister, brother, friend, etc., are used in the conclusion of a letter, they should begin with small letters. (See Form 3, p. 301.)

EXERCISE 243

Copy the foregoing forms of conclusion.

EXERCISE 249

- (1) Write five different forms for closing familiar letters.
- (2) Write five different forms for closing business letters.

V. THE ADDRESS

The address is made up of the name, the title, and the residence or place of business of the person written to.

NOTE.— If the letter is an important one, the address should contain not only the name of the place where the letter is to be sent, but the street and number, the county, or such other items as make up the full address. But in ordinary letters the name of the city or town and the name of the state will be sufficient. Many persons omit the address altogether in familiar letters.

In business letters, the address of the person written to is usually placed at the beginning of the letter; but in other letters it is written at the close of the letter. When the address is placed at the beginning of a letter, it should begin at the marginal line, on the first line below the heading (see Business Letter, p. 310); but when it is placed at the close of a letter, it should begin at the marginal line, on the first line below the signature (see p. 295).

FORMS OF ADDRESS

1.— Business Letter

*Rev. John S. Howard,
Portland, Me.*

Dear Sir:—Your favor of May 4th, requesting us, etc.

2. — Business Letter

Messrs. W. H. Sellars & Co.,

913 Broadway,

Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sirs:— In reply to yours of the 28th inst., etc.

3. — Familiar Letter

Your loving daughter,

Edith L. Brown

Dr. Lansing N. Brown,

Ann Arbor, Mich.

Name the different items in each address and tell how those parts are separated. What mark is placed at the close of each address?

Separate the different parts of the address by commas, and place a period at its close.

Do not forget to use a title when writing a person's address. Some of the most common titles used in addresses are:

I.—BEFORE THE NAMES OF PERSONS

Mrs. ¹	Miss	Mr.	Rev.	Prof.
Master	Misses	Messrs.	Dr.	Hon.

Prefix Mrs. to the name of a married woman; Miss to the name of an unmarried woman; Mr. to the name of a man who has no higher title; and Master to the name of a boy. In writing to two or more gentlemen, use the title Messrs.; to two or more young ladies, the title Misses. Prefix Rev. to the name of a clergyman, or Rev. Mr. if the Christian name is not known; Dr. to the name of a physician; Prof. to the name of one who has been elected to a professorship in a college or other institution of learning; and Hon. to the name of a cabinet officer, a member of Congress, a judge, a mayor, and to the names of some others of similar rank.

NOTE. — When a lady writes to a stranger, she should prefix Miss or Mrs., in parentheses, to her name, so that the person who answers the letter may know how to address the reply.

II.—AFTER THE NAMES OF PERSONS

Esq.¹ A.M. M.D., Ph.D. D.D. LL.D.

Esq. is added to the name of a member of the legal profession, and to the names of civil officers not entitled to the prefix Hon. A.M., M.D., Ph.D., D.D., and LL.D. are titles conferred by universities, colleges, or other institutions of learning.

Do not prefix Mr. to a name when Esq., A.M., or some similar title is added to the name; and do not prefix Dr. to a name that is followed by one of the titles, M.D., Ph.D., D.D., or LL.D.; thus, not Dr. John Brown, M.D., but Dr. John Brown, or John Brown, M.D. Not Rev. Dr. Henry S. White, D.D., but Rev. Dr. Henry S. White, or Rev. Henry S. White, D.D.

¹ The meanings of these titles are given in the list of abbreviations on pages 337-338.

EXERCISE 250

Write addresses to be used in letters to—

A married lady.	A boy.	A clergyman.
An unmarried lady.	An editor.	A physician.
A member of Congress.	A business firm.	A lawyer.

VI. THE BODY OF A LETTER

The body of a letter usually begins at the end of the salutation, on the first line below it (see p. 295); but when the address and salutation together occupy more than two lines, the body of the letter is often begun on the same line with the salutation. (See p. 313.)

Adapt the style of the letter to the subject. In writing to relatives or to intimate friends, be unreserved—write as you would talk if your friends were present. In writing to superiors or to strangers, be respectful.

Begin at once with what you wish to say, and when you have finished do not try to think of something to fill the sheet, but add the closing words of respect or affection, and sign your name.

Do not write a succession of short sentences with the subjects omitted; as, Had a pleasant journey. Found my friends well. Shall expect to hear from you soon.

Do not begin a new paragraph under the last word of the preceding paragraph, but leave a space the width of the margin at the beginning of the first line in every paragraph, except the first.

Do not rule a line for the margin of a letter.

When you use the letters st, d, or th after the day of the month, do not write them above the line, but on the line ; as, Dec. 16th, not Dec. 16th.

Do not place periods after 1st, 2^d, 3^d, 4th, etc.

Do not place two periods at the close of a sentence when the last word is abbreviated.

Do not send a letter carelessly written. Pay particular attention to penmanship, capital letters, and marks of punctuation.

If writing to a person who is not a near relative or a close friend, do not forget to enclose a postage stamp when you write requesting an answer for your own benefit.

EXERCISE 251

Write a letter to one of your cousins or to some other friend, describing your school. Tell the number of pupils, the number of teachers, and such other things about the school as interest you most.

Follow the form given on page 295. Give your full address in the heading, and sign your own name to the letter.

EXERCISE 252

Suppose that you are away from home attending school. Write a letter to some member of your family, requesting to have some article that you need sent to you.

VII. THE SUPERScription

The address on the envelope is called the superscription.

FORMS OF SUPERScription

STAMP. Miss Elizabeth S. Howard, 95 Front Street, Binghamton, New York.
--

STAMP. Rev. Henry M. Porter, D. D., Norwalk, P.O. Box 317. Conn.
--

Write the first line of the address near the middle of the envelope, making the right and left margins equal. Begin each of the other lines a little farther to the right than the preceding line.

Notice that in the forms of superscription given the different items are separated by commas. Many persons use no marks of punctuation in the superscription, except the period after an abbreviation.

Place the stamp at the upper right-hand corner of the envelope.

To fold a sheet of note-paper so that it will fit an envelope a little longer than the width of the sheet, lay the sheet before you with the first page up, and the double edge toward your left hand. Then turn the lower third of the sheet up, fold the upper third down over this, and press the folds.

If a large square envelope is used, only one fold should be made. Place the sheet before you in the manner described, turn the lower part of the sheet up until the lower and upper edges meet, and press the fold.

Insert the letter in the envelope in such a manner that it may be right side up when it is taken from the envelope and unfolded.

EXERCISE 253

(1) Copy on envelopes the foregoing superscriptions.

(2) Write on envelopes the superscriptions of letters to be sent to—

1. Your father or guardian.
2. One of your classmates.
3. Your teacher.
4. A business firm.
5. Your uncle in a distant city.

Received Payment,

Smith & Howard,
per Scott.

When a bill is paid, the person to whom the money was due gives a receipt, or writes "Received Payment," and signs his name. The latter is called receipting a bill.

When a clerk receipts a bill, he signs the name of his employer, and then writes his own name below, after the Latin word per = by. In the foregoing example, a clerk named Scott receipted the bill for his employers.

What should be written first in a bill? Where should the name of the person that buys the articles be written? Where should the name of the person or firm that sells the articles be written? How are the names of the articles written?

Received Payment,

Margaret D. Harris.

Of what is the second bill a record? Where are the different items placed? Where are the dates written? What words should not be written until the bill is paid?

EXERCISE 263

Rule paper as in the models given, and copy the two bills.

EXERCISE 264

Herman Fuller bought the following articles of Bell and Norton, Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 17, 1900: 1 Saddle @ $15; 1 Bridle @ $5; 1 Riding Whip @ $2; 2 pairs Skates @ $2.50; 2 Pocket Knives @ 75¢; 1 Hatchet @ $1.25.

Make out the bill, and receipt it in the name of the firm.

EXERCISE 265

Mrs. Harriet West of Buffalo, N.Y., made a dress for Mrs. Orlando Foster. She furnished the following articles: 8 yds. Percale @ 25¢; 4 yds. Binding @ 6¢; 1 doz. Buttons @ $1.00; 3 Whalebones @ 25¢; Braid, Silk, and Twist, 40¢. She charged $10 for making the dress.

Make out a receipted bill, dated to-day. Follow the Form given on page 314.

II. RECEIPTS

A written acknowledgment of money or goods received is called a receipt; as, —

$60.00 Baltimore, Md., Mar. 1, 1909.

Received from George S. Abbott
Sixty and 00/100 Dollars, to balance account.

M. J. Blair.

$ 30-~~00~~.

Chicago, June 1, 1908.

Received from Helen, M. Crawford
Thirty Dollars, for board to this date.

Mrs. C. K. Wright.

When is a receipt given? By whom is it signed? In how many places is the amount written? How is it written? Why is it written twice?

For what purpose was the first sum paid? What is meant by "balancing" an account?

EXERCISE 266

Copy the foregoing receipts. Be careful to arrange the different parts like those in the models given.

EXERCISE 267

Suppose Walter D. Moore rents a house that you own. On the first day of this month he paid you thirty dollars for rent of house to that time.

Write a receipt for the amount received. Follow the Form given above.

EXERCISE 268

Look at the bills on pages 314 and 315 and write the two receipts that might have been given in place of the receipted bills.

III. ADVERTISEMENTS FOR ARTICLES LOST

LOST. — On Saturday afternoon, between the Commercial Bank and the Post Office, a small black morocco pocket-book, containing a check on the Commercial Bank and one or two dollars in silver. The finder will be suitably rewarded upon leaving the article at 714 Broadway.

What was lost? What does the phrase on Saturday afternoon tell? What does the second phrase tell? What words describe the pocket-book? What did the pocket-book contain? Where was the finder requested to leave the article?

When you write an advertisement about an article that is lost, describe the article so clearly that it may be known from your description.

EXERCISE 269

You have lost one of the articles named below. Write an advertisement about the lost article, to be inserted in one of the papers in your town.

bracelet knife dog

horse

IV. ADVERTISEMENTS FOR ARTICLES FOUND

FOUND. — On Main Street, last Friday morning, a watch. The owner can have the article by calling at this office, proving the property, and paying for this notice.

What article was found? Where was it found? When was it found? What is meant by proving the property?

When you write an advertisement about an article that has been found, do not describe the article fully, lest the wrong person should claim it.

EXERCISE 270

You have found one of the things named below. Write a notice for a paper, advertising the article.

muff coat bank-book travelling-bag

V. ADVERTISEMENTS FOR HELP1

WANTED. — A neat, strong girl for general housework; must understand cooking; references required. Apply at 189 West 57th Street.

WANTED. — A bright, active, honest boy for office-work. Apply by letter, stating age and giving references. Address Dr. L. B. Porter, P. O. Box 1247, New York.

What is the first advertisement for? What qualifications must the girl have? How is the applicant expected to apply?

What is the second advertisement for? How is the applicant to apply?

EXERCISE 271

(1) Copy the foregoing advertisements.

(2) Write an advertisement asking for a woman or a girl to take care of young children. Mention some of the qualities that the applicant must possess.

(3) Write a letter in answer to the second advertisement above. Give for reference the name of your teacher.

NOTE. — Do not forget the proper form for the heading, the address, and the other parts. Remember that a neat, well-written letter, sent in answer to an advertisement, will aid the applicant in securing the desired position.

VI. ADVERTISEMENTS FOR SITUATIONS

WANTED. — By a young man, a situation as coachman; understands the care of horses and is a careful driver; good references. Address F. B., 325 Third Avenue.

Who advertises for a situation? What situation does he wish? What does the writer say he can do?

EXERCISE 272

- (1) Write an advertisement for a situation as gardener.
- (2) Write an advertisement for a situation as cook.
- (3) Write an advertisement for a situation as janitor.
- (4) A dressmaker wishes to go out by the day. Write an advertisement for her.

VII. NOTICES OF PUBLIC MEETINGS

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held at the Fourth Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, the 25th inst., at 3 o'clock P.M.

Of what meeting is this a notice? Where is it to be held? When is it to be held?

EXERCISE 273

Rev. William Howard, D.D., will deliver a lecture on Temperance at some church or hall in your place. Write a notice of the lecture:

CHAPTER XCIV

SOCIAL FORMS

FORMAL INVITATIONS

Formal invitations are expressed in the third person: thus—

*Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley request the pleasure of Mr. William King's company at dinner on Tuesday, June nineteenth,
at seven o'clock.*

927 Oak Avenue.

The note of acceptance or regret should correspond in form to the invitation, as in the following examples:—

Mr. William King
accepts with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley's kind invitation for Tuesday, June nineteenth,
at seven o'clock.

or

Mr. William King
regrets that a previous engagement prevents his acceptance of
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley's kind invitation
for Tuesday, June nineteenth,
at seven o'clock.

EXERCISE 278

Study carefully the arrangement of items in the foregoing forms, and then copy on note-paper these forms.

EXERCISE 279

(1) Write an invitation to dinner from Mr. and Mrs. Luther Brown to Miss Julia Reed.

(2) Write an answer, accepting the invitation.

(3) Write an answer, declining the invitation.

APPENDIX

I

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

LANGUAGES that have come from the same original tongue are said to belong to the same family. The English language is a member of the Aryan or Indo-European family of languages. There are two great divisions of the Indo-European family, an Eastern or Asiatic division, and a Western or European division. These include seven branches: Indian (Sanskrit, Hindustani, etc.); Iranian (Persian, etc.); Greek; Italic or Romanic (Latin, and the Romance tongues which have sprung from the Latin, such as Italian, French, Spanish, and Portuguese); Celtic (Welsh, Irish, and Gaelic); Slavonic (Russian, Bulgarian, Polish, Bohemian, etc.); and Teutonic or Germanic (Scandinavian, English, German, etc.).

The principal divisions of the Teutonic or Germanic branch of the Indo-European family are: Scandinavian (Icelandic, Norwegian, Swedish, and Danish); High German, the language originally spoken by the people who dwelt in the highlands of Germany; Low German (Dutch, Flemish, and Anglo-Saxon or English), the language originally spoken by the people who dwelt in the lowlands of Germany, near the coast. The most important member of the Low-German division of the Teutonic group is English.

The English language, in its earliest form, was introduced into Britain about the middle of the fifth century by the Angles, Saxons, and Jutes, Low-German tribes from the northern part of Germany. These invaders gradually displaced the native population of Britain, and founded kingdoms of their own. They were known to the Britons as Saxons, but they called themselves "English" (Englisc), and the land they had won "England" (Englaland, the land of the Angles). The language of these Teutonic settlers of Britain became in time the national tongue. This oldest form of our own language is commonly called Anglo-Saxon or Old English.

The ancient Britons belonged to the Celtic race, and spoke the Celtic tongue. As a result of their intercourse with the Angles and Saxons, a few Celtic words came into our language. Among the words of Celtic origin that were adopted from the conquered Britons are the names of articles in common use at that time, such as basket, cradle, crock, mattock, and mop; and some of the oldest names of rivers, hills, mountains, and towns; as, Avon, Esk, Dee; Cheviot, Malvern, Ben Nevis; Aberdeen, Liverpool, London.

The Teutonic settlers in Britain also borrowed from the Britons a few Latin words left by the Romans, who had held Britain from 43 A.D. to 410 A.D. Among these words are strata (via strata), a paved way, and castra, a camp.

They appear in modern English as street, Chester, Manchester, Lancaster, Leicester.

The introduction of Christianity among the English at the close of the sixth century brought with it the study of Latin, and led to increased communication between England and the other European nations. Hence a great number of Latin words, most of them relating to the church, passed into English; as, altar, bishop, creed, church, clerk, deacon, priest, psalm, temple. Many words of this class had been borrowed by the Romans from Greek, but they came into our language through the Latin tongue. Owing to their extended trade, the English became acquainted at this time with many new things and products, and this brought them such words as cup, fork, lobster, palm, peach.

Toward the close of the eighth century, Northmen or Danes, from the Scandinavian peninsula and from Denmark, began to make incursions into England. After a time they began to settle there, and, finally, in the eleventh century, held for a time the English throne. Owing to this conquest, and to the consequent close commercial and literary intercourse with Denmark and the Low Dutch coast, some Norse or Scandinavian words were introduced into the English language. Among the number are many names of places ending in by (a town); as, Derby, Rugby, Whitby. Proper names ending in son are also of Norse origin; as, Johnson, Stephenson.

While the Danes were making conquests in England, other Northmen settled in northern France, where they were called Normans. Here, in the tenth century, they founded the duchy of Normandy, and gradually adopted the customs and language of the French people. In 1066, the Normans, under William, Duke of Normandy, conquered England.

After the Norman Conquest, French became the language of the English Court and of the higher classes. French was used in Parliament, in the courts of law, and even in the schools. But the great majority of the people continued to speak English. For a time the two languages were spoken, side by side, but gradually the Normans and the English became one people, and spoke one tongue—the English language.

During the long period when the two races were becoming one, a vast body of Norman French words had found their way into English. This element of English is called a Latin element, as the French language, of which the Norman French is a form, is descended from the Latin tongue.

Many different classes of words came into English through the Norman French. The Normans introduced feudalism and the chase into England; they also introduced new methods of warfare and their own system of law. Some of the words that came into the language as a result of this are homage, fealty, vassal, relating to feudalism; bracc, chase, forest, mews, connected with the chase; arms, battle, captain, mail, vizor, pertaining to warfare; attorney, court, judge, justice, plaintiff, sue, trespass, terms used in the law.

Some of the church terms came to us through the Normans; as, ceremony, miracle, penance, procession, relic, tonsure.

A great number of English titles were introduced by the Normans; as, count, countess, duke, empress, peer, mayor; but king, queen, earl, lord, lady, and alderman, are old English words that were in use before the Norman Conquest.

Certain refinements of life were introduced by the Normans, and hence came such words as carpet, curtain, mirror, napkin, parlor, table. Norman French words, like beef, mutton, pork, veal, were introduced to designate the flesh of certain animals when used as food; but the old English names, ox, sheep, swine, calf, are still used in speaking of the living animals.

Besides the few Latin words that the Teutonic settlers adopted from the Britons, the Latin words that came into English through the introduction of Christianity into Britain, and the great body of Latin words that came into the language indirectly through Norman French, there are many others that found their way into the language at a later period. Owing to the revival of classical study in England, a great number of Latin words came into the language during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Many of these words appeared in the written or printed language, but never passed into general use.

Many Greek words have also come into the language since the beginning of the sixteenth century. Most of our scientific terms are of Greek origin.

The spread of English exploration and the growth of commerce between English-speaking people and people who speak other languages, has brought into English words from the Spanish, Italian, French, German, Dutch, Chinese, Russian, Persian, Arabic, and many other languages. Many of these words are the names of articles or customs peculiar to the country from which the words were borrowed; as, Spanish: armada, cigar; Italian: balcony, lava, opera; French: bouquet, chagrin, programme; German: kindergarten, meerschäum, waltz, zinc; Dutch: skate, sloop, yacht; Chinese: china, nankeen, tea; Russian: Czar, drosky, steppe; Persian: chess, shawl, turban; Arabic: algebra, coffee, gazelle.

The English of the present day differs greatly from Anglo-Saxon or Old English. Anglo-Saxon was an inflected language. That is, the relation of words to each other was expressed, as in Latin and Greek, by the endings of the words. Nearly all of these grammatical endings or inflections were gradually lost after the Danish and Norman Conquests, and we now in most cases indicate the relations of words by their position in the sentence, or by distinct words, such as prepositions and auxiliary verbs.

Modern English differs from Old English not only in its lack of inflections, but also in the character of its vocabulary. The language of our Teutonic ancestors was an unmixed speech. It contained no foreign elements. Modern English has in its vocabulary more words of foreign than of native origin. A large majority of these words are from Latin or Greek, many of which are scientific, philosophical, or technical terms. About three-fourths of the words in common use are of Anglo-Saxon origin.

RULES FOR THE USE OF CAPITAL LETTERS AND MARKS OF PUNCTUATION

I. CAPITAL LETTERS

1. The first word of every sentence should begin with a capital letter.
2. A proper name should begin with a capital letter.
3. Nouns or adjectives derived from proper names should usually begin with capital letters.
4. The names of the months and of the days of the week should begin with capital letters.
5. Titles of honor or respect and official titles should begin with capital letters, when they are applied to an individual or are used as part of a name; as, —

The President of the United States, the Governor of New York, the Mayor of Chicago, William the Conqueror, dear Sir.

Queen Victoria, President Lincoln, General Grant.

6. The name of a religious body, or of a political party, should begin with a capital letter; as, —

Roman Catholic, Protestant, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist; Whig, Tory, Democrat, Republican, Conservative, Liberal.

7. The important words in the title of a book, of a newspaper, or of any other composition should begin with capital letters; as, —

The Jungle Book, New York Evening Post, In the White Mountains.

8. All names and titles of the Deity should begin with capital letters; as, —

Lord, God, Creator, Father, the Supreme Being.

9. The pronoun I and the interjection O should be written or printed in capital letters; as, —

O father ! I see a gleaming light.

10. The first word of a direct quotation should begin with a capital letter; as, —

He replied, "Kindness wins friends."

11. The first word of every line of poetry should begin with a capital letter.

II. MARKS OF PUNCTUATION

THE PERIOD

1. A complete sentence, not interrogative or exclamatory, should be followed by a period.

2. Every abbreviated word should be followed by a period; as, —

Mr. Mrs., Dr., Hon., Rev.

THE INTERROGATION POINT

An interrogative sentence should be followed by the interrogation point; as, —

What will be the result?

THE EXCLAMATION POINT

An exclamatory word, phrase, or sentence should be followed by the exclamation point; as, —

Hark! I hear footsteps. O noble judge! What a wonderful gift he possesses!

THE COMMA

1. The name of a person or thing addressed should be separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma or commas; as, —

Come with me, John. Ring, happy bells, across the snow.

2. A series of words, phrases, or clauses in the same construction should be separated by commas; as, —

He was an honest, temperate, forgiving man. I come to bury Cæsar, not to praise him. She knew how far she could go, and what she could do.

NOTE. — Two words in the same construction, or two short phrases connected by and, or, or nor, should not be separated by the comma; as, He was brave and patriotic.

3. A transposed phrase or clause is usually separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma; as, —

In a very short time, they had passed the spot. If we fail, you will be disappointed.

NOTE. — If the phrase is closely united with the sentence, the comma is not used; as, Beneath the window is a wooden bench.

4. An appositive word or phrase is usually separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma or commas;

as, —

Milton, the great English poet, was blind.

But when the explanatory term combines closely with the word explained, the comma is omitted; as, —

The outlet of this lake is the river Nile. The emperor Augustus was a patron of the fine arts.

5. Words, phrases, or clauses placed between closely related parts of a sentence should be separated from the rest of the sentence by commas; as, —

It is mind, after all, which does the work of the world.

6. A relative clause not restrictive should be separated from the remainder of the sentence by the comma; as, —

Cherish true patriotism, which has its root in benevolence.

7. The comma is often used to indicate an omission of a word or words; as, —

Labor brings pleasure; idleness, pain.

8. A short quotation, informally introduced, should be separated from the preceding part of the sentence by a comma; as, —

Agassiz once said, "I have no time to waste in making money."

9. The members of a compound sentence, when short and closely connected, should be separated by the comma; as, —

He whistled shrill, and he was answered from the hill.

THE SEMICOLON

1. When the members of a compound sentence are subdivided by the comma, they are usually separated by the semicolon; as, —

If I ever saw the creature, it was a long, long while ago; and, to tell you the truth, I doubt whether I ever did see him.

2. Short clauses, slightly connected in meaning and not joined by conjunctions, should be separated by the semicolon; as, —

The old men sit at their doors; the gossip leans over her counter; the children shout and frolic in the streets.

THE COLON

When a speech or quotation is formally introduced by thus, as follows, these words, or some similar expression, it should be preceded by a colon; as, —

Carlyle used these words: "Be true, if you would be believed."

MARKS OF PARENTHESIS

Marks of parenthesis are used to enclose words or expressions which do not strictly belong to the sentence; as, —

Nor did I fail (as is the custom of landed proprietors all about the world) to parade the poor fellow up and down over my half a dozen acres.

THE DASH

1. The dash is often used instead of marks of parenthesis to enclose parenthetical expressions that are closely related to the whole sentence; as, —

A room with seven doors — like the famous apartment in Washington's headquarters at Newburgh — is an invitation to bewilderment.

2. The dash is used to mark an abrupt change in thought or in the construction of a sentence; as, —

She happened to cast her eyes over a great, broad field of waving grain — and whom do you think she saw?

Hast thou — but how shall I ask a question which must bring tears into so many eyes?

QUOTATION MARKS

Every direct quotation should be enclosed by quotation marks. When the quotation is divided by other words, each part should be enclosed by quotation marks; as, —

"Have you anything to tell me, little bird?" asked Ulysses.

"Peep!" said the bird, "peep, peep, pe-weep!"

THE HYPHEN

1. The hyphen is used to join the parts of a compound word; as, — man-of-war

twenty-three crab-apple

2. To join the syllables of a word divided at the end of a line.
